MILWAUKEE (AP) — More prisoners of war from Wisconsin are being released from Vietnam prison camps, the Pentagon said Thursday.

"You can just imagine the load that was lifted off my shoulders," Mrs. Frank Hess of La Crosse said after hearing that her son is among more than 130 POWs to be freed by the North Vietnamese during the weekend.

Air Force Lt. Col. Gordon A. Larson, 44, was shot down in May, 1967, and had been paraded through the streets of Hanoi by his captors.

He has listed Winona, Minn., and La Crosse as home. His wife and three children live in San Antonio, Tex.

Others on the release list include:

Capt. Fredric R. Flom, 32, of Appleton, shot down in August, 1966. His parents live in Menasha. His wife and their two children live in Appleton.

Lt. Cmdr. William J. Metzger Jr., whose mother teaches school in Wisconsin Rapids. He was captured in May, 1967, after parachuting when his jet was disabled during a Hanoi bombing raid.

Metzger's wife, Bonnie, an Appleton native who now lives in Annandale, Va., has relatives in the Fox Valley.

Her grandmother, Mrs. Rose Strutz, was celebrating her 80th birthday at Oneida Heights when a prisoner of war agreement was revealed in January. Mrs. Strutz was notified Thursday of Metzger's impending freedom.

Bonnie Metzger's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Darold Schade, moved from Appleton to rural Stevens Point. A number of Mrs. Metzger's relatives, in the Schade and Strutz families, live in and near Appleton.

Viet Cong stall on POW release

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. delegation announced tonight that North Vietnam has informed it 106 American prisoners will be released in Hanoi on Sunday, but that the release of 30 other U.S. prisoners by the Viet Cong, scheduled for Hanoi at the same time, had hit a snag.

The dispute that the U.S. delegation said threatens to delay the release of the 30 American POWs is between the Viet Cong and the South Vietnamese over the number of Communist military prisoners to be released by the Saigon government in South Vietnam.

A statement from the U.S. delegation to the four-party Joint Military Commission said the Viet Cong notified the U.S. side that 30 American prisoners and four foreigners would be released in Hanoi, but refused to give a date. A spokesman said this meant that the Viet Cong were stalling and threatening to delay the release.

Asked for comment on the U.S. statement, a Viet Cong spokesman declared: "The 34 prisoners will be released on Sunday at Gia Lam airport."

Told again that the U.S. statement said the Viet Cong refused to give the American side the date of release for the 34 detainees, the spokesman said he had been told by a superior an hour before the statement was issued that the 34 prisoners would be freed on Sunday at Gia Lam.

The U.S. spokesman, asked about the Viet Cong statement, replied: "For three hours this afternoon, they told us they could not give us a date of release for the 34. They said they would ask their chief and would have to wait for an answer.

"They're playing games. They are a bunch of liars. Our people repeatedly ask this question: 'Will you give us the date?' They said they could not but would tell us later.

"They tell newsmen one thing and they tell us another."

The Viet Cong spokesman said the dispute centered over the number of Communist military prisoners the Saigon government would release parallel with the American release.

By "common agreement," he asserted, each party will release a fourth of the POWs it holds each time. He added, however, that the South Vietnamese representative said today Saigon would release only 3,000 military prisoners, when the number should be about 7,000.

"This is not consistent with what the republic of Vietnam representative agreed upon," the spokesman said. "The South Vietnamese hold more than 26,000 military prisoners and they should release about 7,000 this time."

The U.S. delegation said arrangements for the release of 106 Americans and two Thais held by the North Vietnamese "will go forward."

The Viet Cong had actually handed the United States a list of 34 prisoners captured in South Vietnam, including two Filipinos and two Germans.

The statement from the U.S. delegation said: "The release date of the 34 detained persons held by the Provisional Revolutionary Government (Viet Cong) will be the subject of further communications between the delegations."

The U.S. statement was issued shortly after the second of two meetings today by the four-party Joint Military Commission's subcommittee on prisoners. Spokesmen for both sides reported no progress in resolving the dispute.

Another meeting is scheduled for Saturday, the U.S. spokesman said.

Earlier, the Viet Cong delegation had announced to newsmen that it would release the 34 persons captured in South Vietnam on Sunday at Hanoi's Gia Lam airport at the same time North Vietnam released its 108 prisoners.

Later a Communist spokesman said an impasse had developed over Vietnamese prisoner exchanges and threatened to block release of the 30 Americans.

Also affected are two Germans and two Filipinos on the Viet Cong list of 34 handed to the U.S. delegation to the Joint Military Commission today.

The spokesman indicated the dispute between the Saigon government and the Viet Cong would not affect the release of 106 American servicemen and two Thais by North Vietnam.

"From the point of view of the Provisional Revolutionary Government, the release of POWs is blocked by this issue," the spokesman said. He said this includes American and other foreign prisoners of the Viet Cong as well as Vietnamese.

He added that efforts were being made to resolve the dispute.

U.S. spokesmen were not immediately available for comment.

Sudan to fly hostages, Arab guerrillas to U.S.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Arab guerrillas held five diplomats, including two Americans, hostage in an embassy in Sudan for the second day today and an Egyptian news agency reported the terrorists want to fly to the United States with their hostages.

The Middle East News Agency said the Sudanese government agreed to provide a plane for the guerrillas, members of the Black September organization. The dispatch from Khartoum, Sudan's capital, did not say why the terrorists would choose to fly to the United States.

In Washington, President Nixon told a news conference the United States "will not pay blackmail" to the Palestinian terrorists, members of the same group that carried out last September's Olympics massacre in West Germany.

A U.S. State Department official headed for Khartoum.

Observers in Beirut speculated that the guerrillas want to go to the United States because this would gain them maximum publicity for the Palestinian cause. On the other hand, the observers said, they may hope the United States would agree to the release of Sirhan B. Sirhan, the Palestinian convicted in California of killing Sen. Robert F. Kennedy in 1968.

Sirhan's release was one of the original demands announced by the guerrillas Thursday after they seized the hostages in the Saudi Arabian Embassy in Khartoum.

The Egyptian dispatch said the guerrillas wanted Foreign Minister Mansour Khaled and Information Minister Omar Haj Nousa of Sudan to go along on the flight to the United States but the government "totally

Indians break off negotiations

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (AP) — Indians continued to hold the settlement of Wounded Knee today and Sen. George McGovern said he hoped the militants would begin negotiations with Justice Department officials to end what he called the "armed truce."

McGovern said he planned to remain in the Black Hills area until Sunday. Sen. James Abourezk, who journeyed with McGovern to meet with the protesters at the reservation Thursday, returned to Washington and was expected to hold a news conference there later in the day.

Despite a late-night meeting between the two South Dakota Democrats and leaders of the protest, the stalemate continued today with federal marshals ringing the historic reservation village. There was no indication from either side that further talks had begun.

It appeared the tension was lessened somewhat after McGovern and Abourezk concluded more than three hours of talks with leaders of the 200 Indians who took over Wounded Knee late Tuesday.

The meeting ended on a "jarring note," however, McGovern said, when the Indians, many of them members of the American Indian Movement, were told that the home of one of their leaders, Aaron Desersas, was fire-bombed in nearby Pine Ridge.

Desersas is national communications director for the American Indian Movement (AIM), whose members were prominent in the takeover here. Pine Ridge is about 15 miles southwest of Wounded Knee.

It was not known whether Desersas was among the militants still barricaded at Wounded Knee.

It was reported that Desersas' wife was injured in the fire, which caused moderate damage to the rear of the building.

Police officials in Pine Ridge refused comment.

McGovern said the 15 Indian leaders who spoke with the senators "were very disturbed about the fire-bombing ... but it underscores the danger that exists here."

McGovern said the Indians "gave every indication that they expected to face charges."

He said they did not mention amnesty but were interested in learning what charges would be placed against them and what the bail might be.

World money sale shut off

LONDON (AP) — Official exchanges around the world closed down today in hopes that a long weekend would halt the selling wave against the dollar. But dealings on free markets and in banks sent the dollar's value down again.

In London the pound rose to $2.51½ on the unofficial market, continuing its rise from the $2.40 level before the official devaluation of the dollar last month.

The dollar sank in Paris and Frankfurt.

In Paris the dollar slumped to 4,500 francs from 4,490 Thursday and the French central bank had to step in with support buying. After more than an hour of this the exchange was ordered shut.

The dollar sank to 2,7450 marks in Frankfurt, far below its floor value of 2,8350.

The dollar's sharp nose dive on world markets Thursday prompted the halt in official dealings.

Hundreds of American tourists in Madrid found most private banks refusing to take their dollars and had to line up at the Bank of Spain to get their money changed.

The few Spanish banks that did take dollars offered only 35 to 36 pesetas per dollar, well below the official floor level of 58.02 at which the Spanish central

Nixon sees aid to Hanoi as its stake in keeping Vietnam peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, acknowledging that postwar aid to Hanoi faces stiff opposition, said today he views it as essential so "North Vietnam will have a stake in peace."

This aid, Nixon said at his first news conference since Jan. 31, would all come out of the foreign aid and defense budgets.

At a wide-ranging news conference, Nixon also announced he will confer at the Western White House in San Clemente, Calif. on April 2-3 with President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam.

And questioned about new attacks on the U.S. dollar in foreign money markets, Nixon said:

"We'll survive it. There will not be another devaluation."

He said the troubles of the dollar stem from attacks by international speculators reaping windfall profits by moving their money from one currency into another.

Almost at the beginning of the free-wheeling question and answer session in the White House press room, filmed for television use later, Nixon said the question of aiding Hanoi was not part of a Washington-Hanoi agreement leading to the cease-fire in the conflict there.

Nixon said there was considerable opposition 25 years ago to aiding World War II enemies, Germany and Japan. He said he voted for such funds sought by a Democratic president, Harry Truman, because he felt the aid would promote stability in Europe and the Far East.

Nixon said he is equally convinced now that Hanoi must be convinced that its future does not rest in military activity.

North Vietnam, he said, should have "a stake in peace." And he expressed confidence Congress would eventually go along with his thinking.

"The costs of peace are great," he said, "but the costs of war are much greater."

12 nations sign Indochina peace treaty

PARIS (AP) — Twelve governments of East and West gave the Vietnam peace settlement the seal of world approval today.

The act was performed in a ceremonial signing by the foreign ministers of the Big Five powers, the contending regimes in Vietnam and the four countries supervising the peace.

A week of hectic diplomacy — mainly between the United States and North Vietnam — had preceded agreement on a four-page declaration binding outsiders to quit meddling in the affairs of all Indochina.

It also set up a system to deal with violations of the peace agreements.

Both sides made concessions at the five-day conference to reach unanimous agreement on the declaration. Canada, South Vietnam and Britain expressed disappointment that more effective measures were not adopted.

Rogers and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko expressed satisfaction with the declaration. North Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Duy Trinh and the Viet Cong foreign minister, Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, were elated.

"We are very happy with what has been achieved," Mrs. Binh told newsmen at a reception she gave last night to celebrate.

For the first time, American and South Vietnamese officials turned up at a social function organized by Mrs. Binh in the name of the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government. But Rogers and Saigon's foreign minister, Tran Van Lam, stayed away.

The nine-point declaration was initiated yesterday by representatives of the United States, Britain, France, China, the Soviet Union, North and South Vietnam, the Provisional Revolutionary Government and the four members of the International Cease-fire Commission — Canada, Indonesia, Poland and Hungary.

The declaration provides that the former belligerents or the members of the control commission can circulate reports on cease-fire violations to the signers of the declaration and to Waldheim. In case of serious violations or the threat of a new Vietnam war, any six signatory governments can reconvene the 12-power conference to consider appropriate action.

The declaration did not specify what action a future conference might take.

For the United States, the importance of the declaration lay in linking the Soviet Union and Communist China with the peace settlement. American officials believed that the two Communist superpowers' support could act as a decisive restraint on Hanoi.

The major Western nations attending the conference were reported agreed that establishment of diplomatic relations with North Vietnam is inevitable, but they differ over timing.

Informed diplomats said France favors swift recognition of the Hanoi government in the wake of the signing of the declaration today, while the United States takes the view normalization of relations should come after a steady process of improvement.

Britain's position is in the middle. It wants to keep more or less in step with the other members of the European Common Market but doesn't want to embarrass the U.S. administration by moving too quickly.

The Common Market countries have agreed to coordinate their policies as far as possible. One member, Denmark, has recognized Hanoi, and the British and French maintain consular missions in the North Vietnamese capital.

Flieth found guilty in deaths

GREEN BAY, Wis., (AP) — James Flieth, 22, of Green Bay, was found guilty today of first degree murder in the October knife slaying of his wife and child.

The Brown County Circuit Court jury deliberated for just one hour before returning its verdict shortly before noon.

Flieth's wife, Jane, and their 16-months old daughter, Jessica, were stabbed to death last October.

The trial started Wednesday before Circuit Judge Robert Parins.

The second portion of the trial, to determine Flieth's mental condition at the time of the slaying, was to start this afternoon.

Women with doctorates at UW-O achieve salary equality

OSHKOSH—Female faculty members who hold the doctorate degree at the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh (UW-O) have achieved equality with males — at least where average salaries are concerned.

According to statistics compiled by the UW-O Office of Institutional Research, women faculty members holding the doctorate have higher average salaries than their male counterparts at the ranks of professor, associate professor and assistant professor. Women with less than the doctorate—master's-plus, master's or bachelor's degrees—surpass males at some ranks but fall behind in others when average salaries are considered.

There are seven females with the doctorate who have the rank of full professor at UW-O. As a group, they had an average academic year salary which was $242 higher than the 66 males in the same category. The females had accumulated an average experience of 24.3 years with 11.9 years of service at UW-O; the males averaged 20.6 years and 10.7 years in experience and service.

In the associate professor rank, there are 23 women with the doctorate. Their average yearly salary was $288 higher than that recorded by the 102 males at the same level. Average years of experience and of service to UW-O were: female, 21.6 and 5.6, and male, 13.6 and 6.2.

Seventeen females with doctorates at the assistant professor level exceed the average salary of 102 males in the same classification by $97 per academic year.

There are no UW-O women holding the doctorate at the instructor and unranked levels. A few doctorate males do serve in those categories.

Among faculty members without the doctorate, but with the master's degree-plus, females fall behind the men in average salaries at the associate professor level, lead the males in the assistant professor category and exceed male salaries as a total group by $498 yearly on the average. There are 26 women and 93 men in this classification.

Females with the master's degree lead their male counterparts only at the associate professor level, where their yearly salary is $1,145 higher than the men average. There are five females and four males in this category.

Fourteen male assistant professors with the master's degree average some $828 more than 19 females at the same rank. Male instructors and unranked personnel also average higher salaries than females in the same groups.

The largest differential in favor of the male staff member is recorded in the bachelor's degree category, where 18 unranked male staff members have an average salary $2,493 above that of 16 females in the same category. These male staff members had more than twice the years of experience as the female members.

When all ranks and degrees are considered, females average higher in yearly salaries at the professor and associate professor levels, fall behind slightly as assistant professors, with increasing margins of difference at instructor and unranked position.

According to David Mayer, director of the Office of Institutional Research, the statistics deal only with averages and have nothing to say about individual salaries for females or males which are significantly higher or lower than the averages.

The statistics were published and circulated to the UW-O faculty through the Office on Institutional Research "Trendata" publication.

'Stop, look, listen to God' to be theme of day of recollection

The Vicariate IX Council of Catholic Women will sponsor its annual Day of Recollection, a one day retreat, March 11 at Holy Name Activity Center, Kimberly. Theme will be: Stop, Look and Listen to Your God.

Guest speaker will be the Rev. Willard Vande Loo, spiritual director at Sacred Heart Center, Oneida, for four years. The Hollandtown native taught history at the seminary for 16 years. He earned a master's degree from Marquette University, studied under a Fulbright Grant in India and in Hawaii under another grant.

Registration is scheduled at 9:45 a.m. with the opening conference, "Stop and Pray, Don't Knock It if You Haven't Tried It," slated at 10 a.m. Dinner will be served at 11:45 a.m. with announcements at 12:45 p.m. "Look for Today's Vision in Tomorrow's World" will be the theme of the afternoon conference beginning at 1 p.m. At 3 p.m. there will be a conference and mass in the church with "Listen to the Silence" the topic.

The Ladies of Holy Name will serve a country-style beef dinner. Reservations are not necessary but will be helpful. Tickets may be arranged for by calling presidents of each church's women's society. Last minute reservations may be made with Mrs. Orry Schmalz, Vicariate president, or with Mrs. Richard Reider, president of the Ladies of Holy Name.

There is no charge for the conference

All who attend the pre-Lenten party are encouraged to come in costume, although it is not necessary.

Entertainment will be provided by the St. John Ramblers.

Church slates booyah dinner

Ladies of St. Thomas Moore have scheduled a cafeteria style booyah dinner Sunday. The menu will feature chicken booyah, Spanish hamburgers, dessert and beverage. Serving will be from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. and from 5 to 7 p.m.

In addition to the booyah, the women are having a card party in rooms 128 and 129 of the school and coffee and dessert. Card playing will be from 2 to 5 p.m. and from 7 to 10 p.m. Movies will be shown in the parish center.

Children need closeness to someone says anthropologist

Children need a close relationship with at least one person that is continuous and a sense that their surroundings are familiar, that what their hand reaches out for it will find, says Margaret Mead, anthropologist, Museum of Natural History.

This basic need for a sense of continuity in relationships and surroundings exists in any culture in the world, she says, and failure to fulfill it may lead to severe conflict in young children. But once parents realize it does exist, they can move around freely providing for it in many ways.

Dr. Mead makes these points in her new book, "Twentieth Century Faith: Hope and Survival," published by Harper & Row. She discusses in this book a wide range of subjects pertaining to the mental, emotional and physical needs of mankind today and tomorrow.

The basic needs of children are dealt with in a chapter, "Neighborhoods and Human Needs." In discussing the child's requirement for familiarity in surroundings and how parents can deal with it in a changing world, she writes:

"We can turn the family car into a house, and when the child, together with the cat and the dog and familiar toys, is moved to a strange place the car will still be a familiar home. Or we can bring children up to live in the same place every summer but in a different place each winter."

The idea that a baby must be brought up by its biological mother and that it will be traumatized by the mother's absence for a week has its roots in the recognition of this basic requirement for continuity, she says. Actually, a child surrounded from birth by eight different people with whom it has a relationship can derive this sense of continuity from being with any one of them, she writes.

"Where the immediate environment—the shape of its bed and the smell of its room—is part of what is con-

Home furnishings

Taking a cue from ready-to-wear, the chic new home furnishings fabric is linen.

See it in natural or white embroidered with colorful geometrics. For a totally together room, there are embroidered linen upholstery fabrics to coordinate with sheer embroidered Dacron drapes.

In towels and sheets, it's the quality look, with expensive, intricately embroidered heirloom sheets. Following the natural trend, casual sheets often come in fabrics that have a gingham or denim look, some with eyelet embroidered hem. Reversible blankets—solid on one side and patterned on the other—and coordinate sheets and bedspreads are other new trends in bed fashion.

Ann Landers

No relationship can be found

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 16-year-old girl who needs an answer from you in the paper. It seems that every time I bring a fellow home my folks find something wrong with him. For example, Jim's eyes are too close together which means he is sneaky. Harold has a low forehead which is a sign that he is not very intelligent. Bill's pointed ears make him look like a fox—which means he is sly. Bernie looks like a baboon because his arms are long and he has long hair and sideburns. Eddie has thin lips, which means he is cruel and stingy.

Now, Ann Landers, will you please tell me if there is any relation between physical characteristics and a person's character? I'm beginning to believe my folks want me to be an old maid. And the way they tear up every guy I bring

Women use prayer to kick habits

ORFORDVILLE, Wis. (AP) — Only five of the 30 women who voluntarily entered the New Life School here during the last year in an effort to fight heroin addiction and alcoholism are still enrolled.

The institution operated under the direction of the Rev. Curtis Johnson attempts to replace the drugs with dedication to Christ.

"The love of God is the basic thing, along with the firm hand of discipline," he said.

Women who enter the school are not given any medication to ease the agony as their body is deprived of its dependence on drugs.

"Our medication is prayer," Johnson said.

"The only way to cure the problem is to break out completely. But kicking isn't the worst part. You can kick the monkey off your back in 72 hours, but you've still got the monkey on your mind."

The 23-year-old minister said the cure couldn't be forced, and some abruptly leave the rural Rock County institution.

"God has a permissive will," he said. "Some aren't ready to receive help, to receive love."

The school needs $40 a day to continue operations, Johnson said, and raises funds through appearances by staff members and students at which they describe their past experiences and new life at the institution.

Johnson said the staff hopes that, at the end of the year, each woman will have "received Christ," have learned a skill such as typing and will stay off drugs for life.

The New Life School is the women's division of Prevention, Inc., which also has a house for men in Chicago.

tinuous, the child can stand a greater variety of persons close to it," she points out.

"For those who live in the modern world it is a disabling experience to grow up knowing only their own relative," Dr. Mead continues. "The fewer the relatives, the more disabling an experience it is. And yet, all over the world, as older forms of the extended family are breaking down into small, isolated family groups, the child is becoming disastrously overdependent on its two parents. Disastrous in the sense that living in large cities is disastrous for those who have not learned to deal with a variety of people and who have not learned to expect that the strange will be interesting and rewarding, or to recognize that it must be treated with a certain wariness.

Living dangerously

"Certainly, we need streets where young children are safe and where they can move on their own legs (and this will affect the location of nursery and primary schools), but we also need to provide for their living dangerously part of the time, even while very young. Strangeness and danger are part of living in an urban environment."

Although play places and front yards are needed where children can walk safely, she says, parents must not be so frightened of traffic that they give children no freedom in a newly built housing estate inadequately protected from automobiles.

It is necessary to understand the nonhuman in order to be human in any culture in the world, she points out, and this means some understanding for the child of plants, animals, sunshine, earth (not merely a sandbox), stars, moon, sun, and water—preferably water that moves.

"Moving water is one of the major experiences through which a child's senses are amplified," she writes. "The child needs to learn what lives in the water, what lives in the air, what lives on the earth, and how human beings are related to these growing, living, singing, fighting and playing creatures. Any environment is crippling if it cuts the child off from such experiences.

"In building a neighborhood that meets human needs, we must start with the needs of infants," Dr. Mead says. "This gives us the groundwork on which we can build for contact with other human beings, with the physical environment, with the living world, and with the experience through which the individual's full humanity can be realized. We have as yet scarcely begun to explore human potentialities.

The book, "Twentieth Century Faith: Hope and Survival," is a volume in the Religious Perspective Series planned and edited by Ruth Nanda Anshen for Harper & Row.

West opened the five of hearts, and my friend won in the South hand with the nine. Even from his peculiar position he saw that he needed dummy's diamonds to make the contract.

Now, a normal human being would lead a low diamond from the South hand and try a finesse with dummy's queen. And this would land him squarely in the minus column. Back would come a heart to dummy's ace, and South would have no diamonds, no game and no rubber.

What has this to do with yoga? Don't forget my friend was standing on his head. He found a different way to play the diamonds: He got to dummy with a spade and then led a low diamond from dummy.

Poor East, with K-x of diamonds, stepped up with the king for fear of losing it. (There are a dozen players in the country who would play a low diamond quickly and casually from the East hand, and there are a few hundred more who say they'd make this play.)

After East had played the king of diamonds, South had no further problems.

What if East held three diamonds instead of only two? Then South would have to lose two diamond tricks no matter how he played the suit.

What if West had the king of diamonds? South would take the normal diamond finesse later, and would lose nothing by his initial topsy-turvy play.

In short, my friend's play was perfectly correct.

Embroideries bloom

This is a field day for eyelets, for florals of all kinds from ethnic to opulent. The general look is less contrasty, lots of white on white, pastel on pastel. It's all over blouses, lingerie, children's wear. Tiny metallic flowers bloom on linen, huge pastel peonies bloom on satins and silks for evening.

Tennis is the number one sport in embroidery and fashion. All kinds of tennis racquet emblems, ribbons, even all-over embroidered tennis dress shows up on the courts. Tiny/geometrics, cowboy embroideries, names of cities, fruits and vegetables also stitch out the spring embroidery story.

Reassessment for village

BY ROBERT LAUX
Post-Crescent staff writer

LITTLE CHUTE—All of the taxable property in the village will be reassessed this summer. Starting in June, four specially trained "field men" will be sent out to inspect every building, inside and out.

They will talk with owners and gather data on lot sizes, building dimensions and construction, remodeling projects, rents—anything which affects the fair market value of real estate. Village Assessor Richard Kilsdonk will take these raw figures and calculate the new assessment on each property.

The purpose of the reassessment is to make sure Little Chute land and buildings are fairly taxed. Although land values were doubled, across the board, in 1966, and land and buildings were increased 10 per cent in 1958, the village has never had a full scale reassessment.

As a result, village property taxes now are regressive: Lower priced properties are over assessed and more expensive properties are under assessed. Technically, owners of property in the village are not being taxed according to their ability to pay. This condition occurs over a period of years in most communities and the state Department of Revenue recommends that assessors adjust all the property values on a districtwide basis, every four or five years.

Reassessment does not mean taxes will go up for all property owners. Some owners will pay more taxes after reassessment; some will pay less; and some tax bills will remain about the same next year as they are now.

Reassessment, in other words, is not a device for raising more government spending money. The purpose is to distribute the tax load more equitably. Kilsdonk said, "There's no reason why the people in Little Chute shouldn't have as fair an assessment as possible."

The village board included the reassessment program in the 1973 budget. The major expense will be the wages of the four field men.

Kilsdonk hired two teachers and two college students. One of the teachers has had 20 years of experience as an assessment field man in Appleton and the other teacher has 12 years of experience. The students will be trained this spring. Together with tools, office supplies and printing expenses, the cost of the reassessment will be about $6,000. If the village had contracted with an appraisal firm, the cost of the program would have been about $20,000.

Both Kilsdonk and the board felt the reassessment would be more accurate and fair if it were controlled locally—besides being cheaper. The appraising firms also use students and other part time workers for their field work.

Kilsdonk has prepared an informational booklet which the field men will hand out to the owners this summer. The booklet answers many of the basic questions about reassessment. When the assessments are calculated, Kilsdonk will mail each owner a copy of the new figures. Owners will also be able to compare their assessments with the assessments of other owners before the village board of review meets this fall.

Kilsdonk would like to take some of the mystery out of property taxation. He feels the tax is poorly understood and attracts more complaints than other taxes simply because it is more visible. One of the common misconceptions concerns the ratio of assessed value to market value and what this ratio means to taxation, he said.

In Little Chute, property is assessed at 34.68 per cent of true market value (the market, or appraised value of a piece of property would be the selling price of the property in an "arm's length" transaction between an informed buyer and seller). This percentage is an "aggregate ratio." It is the quotient obtained by dividing the total assessed value of the village by the total actual worth of the village.

At the present time, a building in

4 rape suspects now free on $10,000 bail

The release Thursday afternoon of two more members of the D.C. Eagles brings to four the number out on bail from the Outagamie County jail.

The wives of William E. Lux and Bertram J. Siegel, both 27 and from Chicago, posted $10,000 cash bonds, a few hours after a representative of a Milwaukee insurance and bonding agency posted a $10,000 corporate surety bond for Robert J. Wysocki, 27, 804 N. Monroe St., Little Chute.

The fourth man released is Daniel J. LeDesma, 34, Chicago, for whom a Sauk County man posted a $10,000 cash bond late Monday.

Release of the four leaves nine other defendants still in jail. Together, the 12 men and one woman are charged with 26 counts of being party to the rapes of two 15-year-old Appleton girls early Sunday in and near Little Chute. Police believe that most of the alleged rapes took place at Wysocki's residence.

The four released men must abide by bail conditions set Monday by Schaefer. They may not contact the two girls or potential witnesses to the incidents, and with the exception of Wysocki, must stay out of Outagamie County, except during the court proceedings.

County jail officials were not certain as to how many of the remaining nine defendants would be bailed out before the group's next scheduled court appearance, a preliminary hearing Wednesday morning before Schaefer.

The nine include two local men, James P. Bloy, 21, 1513 S. Oneida St., Appleton, and Alan J. Snortum, 19, 230 Broad St., Menasha. Another defendant, Noel W. Sheritt, 25, told Schaefer on Tuesday that he had moved to Neenah last weekend, but listed no address.

The remaining six still list Chicago addresses. They include the lone female, Debra L. Achor, 22; Russell J. Lafferty, 27; Robert L. Hannigan, 21; Donald R. Chenweith, 29; Frank Casella, 28; and Robert E. Freeman, 37.

Appleton gets formal bid on shredder site

Two Outagamie County officials have formally asked Appleton to sell to the county a Northeast Industrial Park parcel for the planned solid waste disposal shredder site and said they will ask the County Board to support the request.

County Executive Alvin Woehler and Supv. Joseph DeBruin, chairman of the zoning and economic advancement committee, wrote a letter this week requesting the purchase of a 6.5-acre site immediately east of the city municipal building and bordering E. Glendale Avenue on the south.

The letter to the city clerk also indicated that they wanted the option to purchase an additional 7.1 acres immediately east of the proposed site.

Woehler and DeBruin asked the city to move expeditiously on considering the request.

Some aldermen expressed objections to locating the shredder facility on the industrial park site, and City Planner Jack Hetu indicated earlier this week that zoning requirements prohibit such use.

Woehler said he considered the site, which is bounded on the south by the Chicago and North Western railroad tracks, an "ideal location." He noted that the rail proximity added a transportation alternative for those using the shredder.

In their letter, Woehler and DeBruin cited reasons why they liked the site. They said most of the tonnage would be in the area of the site, namely the Fox Cities urban area, so it would be more economical by holding down transportation costs; the site has transportation alternatives; it conforms to the governor's task force recycling guidelines, and it "renders itself amenable to maximum esthetic appeal" since it wouldn't be too noticeable and would conform to surrounding environs and buildings.

Woehler said a buffer of trees could be provided on the Glendale site, and the other three borders were buffered by the municipal building, railroad tracks and the 7.1-acre site.

He said the county was evaluating current costs to determine what a fair price would be for the land. He added that it seemed logical to use the federal revenue sharing funds to buy the land since that was being used to construct the facility.

Woehler said he hoped the county could proceed so the shredder operation would be working by Jan. 1, 1974. "I think that anytime we delay now, it's a delay in providing appropriate resolve to the solid waste disposal problems of the county," he said.

The city had sought the formal request from the county so its appropriate committees would have a written proposal to review. If the city decided to sell, a price would have to be negotiated.

The county is planning to contract with Allis-Chalmers in Appleton for the shredding operation. The plant will serve as a pilot for continued research by the firm which is just getting into the solid waste management business.

Penal reform under fire

BY TIM WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON—Gov. Patrick J. Lucey's budgetary proposal to close the Green Bay Reformatory and Central State Hospital for the Criminally Insane next year continued to draw blistering heat Thursday in the wake of outspoken opposition Tuesday at a state Senate hearing in Green Bay.

Lucey's proposal drew few supporters when considered by the Legislature's joint committee on finance — while dozens of speakers spent the day attacking the proposals and drawing repeated applause from an audience of more than 300 that crowded the state Assembly chambers here.

Lucey's call for the closing won vocal backing as well from a sizable but distinctly minority segment of the crowd — and won its main backing from a Lucey appointee on the state Health and Social Services Board and from Joe Nusbaum, Lucey's secretary of administration.

Spokesmen for two taxpayer groups also backed the Lucey plan, contending that taxpayers want unnecessary state institutions closed, but Sen. James Swan, R-Elkhorn, charged that the Lucey closing plans will result in increased tax spending because of the boosted costs of alternative corrections proposed by Lucey.

Harry Schmidt, Nusbaum's top lieutenant and state budget director, blasted Health and Social Services Department officials for revealing "for the first time" Tuesday that prison population declines have ended, that populations have leveled off and that the 1,900 average daily prisoners projected count for the next two years that the Lucey plan is based upon probably will not be reached.

Nusbaum said that even if prison populations climb rather than continue to fall, the reformatory and Central State closings can be carried out. Overflow populations can be housed temporarily in other institutions, such as the then-vacant Central State Hospital facilities, said Nusbaum.

State Corrections Division Director Sanger Powers countered that the reversal of the prison population trends first started showing up about three months ago. By the time it was apparent that the 1,900 average daily population projection would be too low for the coming two years, it was too late to include corrected figures in the printed budget documents, he told the committee.

The prison population figures were available in regular monthly publications of the Health and Social Services Department, and Nusbaum's analysts could have had the changing figures at any time during the process by asking for them, said Powers.

But State Rep. Gary Wilkom, D Chippewa Falls, defended Lucey's administrative appointee by charging that officials in Powers' agency had refused to supply him with corrected figures two weeks ago, contending that the new figures were not available.

In response to questioning by Swan, Powers said corrections agency officials had not been consulted about the proposed closings or notified of them until Lucey made his public announcement of the plan.

Nusbaum charged that the outline of Lucey's possible policy was apparent to the state corrections officials as early as last August.

Nusbaum stressed fiscal results of the closing, saying that the prison system now has an excess capacity of already gone through the tests through the industrial programs in the county. The health department has requested that people who are employed in industries which have scheduled the health bus for their own people take that opportunity to allow more time for other county residents to use the open clinics. The purpose of taking the tests, despite good health, it is explained, is to avoid chronic diseases, which usually get started long before the symptoms are felt or visible. The screening tests are set up to detect these conditions early when control is possible.

Other conditions may be detected which are not diseases, but could lead to disease if unchecked. An example is a high cholesterol level in the blood which could lead to heart or artery disease if untreated.

The tests offered in the clinic include blood pressure readings to detect hypertension (high blood pressure), blood chemistry analyses (a series of 12 tests are made on a sample of blood drawn from the arm. These include the blood cholesterol level, the uric acid level as an indication of gout, the blood sugar level as an indication of diabetes and others that indicate the possibility of heart, kidney and liver and bone disease as well as certain forms of cancer.

Everyone over the age of 35 should take the blood pressure readings and the blood chemistry tests.

People who take the blood tests will be given a special orange-flavored drink high in sugar an hour before the tests. Those who have diabetes should not take the drink and should not eat for four hours prior to the test.

There will be no need to disrobe, but clothes which have sleeves that can be rolled up easily should be worn.

Chmiel relies on experience in judgeship bid

By ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent staff writer

Stanley S. Chmiel, an Appleton attorney for the past 24 years, says his inclination to be thorough and well-prepared in his law practice is a characteristic that he believes would fit in very well in the requirements of a Circuit Court judge.

"By nature, I'm a very studious sort of fellow," he said. "I'm inclined to be thorough. I'm inclined to research everything I do, inclined to be prepared. I like to take into consideration all the facts."

Chmiel attempts to apply himself "quite conscientiously to a given set of facts and to the results." He adds that he has a "very deep general type of experience" in law.

He is one of three candidates for the 10th Judicial Circuit judgeship. The 10th district includes Outagamie, Shawano, Langlade and Menominee counties. Chmiel unsuccessfully sought the interim appointment to the post last summer when Judge Andrew Parnell retired.

Chmiel believes his long tenure as a practicing attorney have given him important legal experience and the feeling for attitudes in people that he believes is important in a judge. He believes one must put in the hours to properly handle a case, as an attorney.

He recalled one case where his thoroughness paid off in clearing up the unanswered question of who was at fault in a two-car crash that killed four persons and left no witnesses. Recalling his FBI experience, he purchased some dental plaster and made an impression of tire prints, and then purchased the tires of the two vehicles.

The tires and cast were found to have similarities, he said, and that answered the question about fault.

Chmiel doesn't believe that judicial reform is so important as putting the right man on the bench. However, he does believe there is need for some reform.

He said that if a judge is a "working judge," who has experience and is willing to apply himself in an organized manner, the court will function effectively.

Chmiel has other ideas about what a judge is and should be.

Stanley Chmiel

"When a person becomes a judge, he is a total person made up out of the totality of all his experiences from early childhood until he becomes a judge," he said. This includes his background, reputation, accomplishments, education, community and government service, community activities and other factors.

"I think all of this has a total impact upon what a person is and what his values are"; what his sensitivity is to people; whether he's a student of law; whether he applies himself, and whether he's a "man of his word."

Chmiel believes that a judge should be treated no differently than any other public official in ethical matters, and he should be accountable. He noted that perhaps he should be scrutinized more closely because "a judge is in a very sensitive position because of what his duties and responsibilities are."

He said he has had the experiences to give him the knowledge that he believes is important in the legal profession, including the judiciary.

He said experiences important in his development go back to his 4-H Club days when he was president of the state organization and attended the national meeting. He also pointed with pride to his seven years in the Federal Bureau of Investigation as a special agent where he came in contact with all types of criminal cases.

Chmiel, a strong supporter of the police, recalled that he was conducting police training schools in Wisconsin and Connecticut long before it was popular as it is today. He said the FBI training was at a high level even back in the 1940s and it was invaluable to him.

He began his law practice in Appleton in 1948. He had attended Lawrence University on a scholarship some years before.

His practice almost spans the state, clients coming from many areas. He has

City pay plan review called for by council

NEENAH — A complete review and update of the city's personnel classification and compensation plan is in the offing and Mayor Roman V. Hauser has been directed to interview experts to see who might be qualified to do it.

The move, directed by the finance committee this morning, apparently grew from a closed-door council session Thursday night called by Hauser to review salaries.

When he closed the meeting, Hauser said he was doing so because "it's going to be on individuals and salaries." He added that it wouldn't get to the city's current pay plan under which the city has been granting pay increase for four years.

50 jobs at K-C are cut

NEENAH — A proximately 50 jobs in its Fox Valley research and engineering division will be eliminated by Kimberly-Clark Corp. as a result of a decision to make those jobs more responsive to present and future company needs through a series of management and organization changes. The cutback represents about 7 per cent of the company's research and engineering staff. Harry J. Sherrin, president, notified employees of the changes Thursday and said the company has decided to bring research and engineering closer organizationally to the businesses they serve. "We decided we must become even more responsive to the needs of the marketplace," Sherrin said. He said the amount of Kimberly-Clark research in some areas, such as pulp, will be substantially reduced, but that the company is organizing a new corporate research function tied to its long-range plans for entering new fields.

Under the reorganization, research and engineering, which had been a separate division, will be broken up into smaller units and assigned to production divisions. They will be primarily responsible for research on products of their respective divisions.

A small corporate research and engineering division will be retained, it was explained.

"The consequences of these decisions will redirect our research and engineering efforts to make them more responsive to the present and to the future," Sherrin said. "This does not mean we are cutting back on research. We expect heavy investment in highly productive research."

In announcing the change to employees, Sherrin said, "The management of change is not always easy. Some of your fellow employees will lose their jobs as a result of these moves since 50 jobs will be consolidated or eliminated." He said liberal severance allowances and vested rights under the pension plan would be provided.

The plan, adopted in 1969 was drafted by Chicago personnel fire, Grifenhagen-Kroeger and classified each job in the city structure. It also encompassed growth steps within a job to reflect the time it takes to gain expertise.

One of the recommendations of G-K when the plan was presented was an annual updating to reflect current conditions. So far this hasn't been done and it's been the general feeling of the city council that the time had arrived for a close, in-depth look at the plan.

For the past two years, Ald. Robert Troyer has taken issue with across-the-board pay increases and has argued that some people within the city structure were getting pay hikes well in excess of the federal 5.5 per cent guidelines of the price-wage freeze.

Just two weeks ago, when the finance committee recommended an across-the-board 5.5 per cent hike, Troyer objected, arguing that some people were getting more than that.

Ald. Michael G. Ellis today took issue with Troyer, in pointing out that each job had growth factors which were reflected during the year by wage increments. He also cited a cost of living factor which is a part of the plan.

"Sure some of the increases are more than 5.5 per cent, but these are called for in the plan as an individual assumes an expanded work load and gains more knowledge and understanding of the job," Ellis said.

Ellis, who was not at the closed door session on Thursday said, "Maybe we should hire G-K to update their plan."

Closed door sessions are allowed under Wisconsin statutes to give governmental bodies an opportunity to discuss salaries of named individuals. However, the closed door sessions statute does not cover general policy discussion.

Immediately after this morning's open session, the committee closed the doors to go into negotiations for property purchase.

Officials, citizens clash on lake filling

NEENAH-MENASHA — Municipal officials and environmentally concerned citizens remained at odds Thursday night after clashing over the proposed filling of a bay in Little Lake Butte des Morts for sewage treatment plant expansion.

Officials argued that the filling of about two acres in Klondike Bay just west of the plant — which would eradicate the bay by creating a straight bulkhead line — represented the most viable compromise, while protestors claimed the filling would further deplete prime fishing waters.

The most vocal of seven citizens to appear was Virgil Achterberg, 115 Washington St., Neenah, who led an unsuccessful battle in 1964 to halt construction of secondary treatment facilities for many of the same reasons.

William Beson, 1214 Manitowoc Road, Menasha, who appeared at the hearing with his three sons, told officials, "You can't replace waters that are gone."

Achterberg and Beson were two of six persons who wrote the sewerage

City, county reach fire station accord

OSHKOSH — An agreement to draft a written list of recommendations for a city-county solution to the fire protection needs of Wittman Field was reached Wednesday in a joint meeting of city representatives and the county board's aviation committee.

Airport manager, Michael Brock, said that an understanding was reached whereby Oshkosh City Atty., John Pence, and Winnebago County Corp. Council, Gerald Engeldinger, would jointly draft the recommendations.

Any written suggestions would have to be reduced to resolution form and submitted to the city council and county board for ratification to become effective.

The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) told the aviation panel in late January that the FAA would be left with no choice but to immediately suspend scheduled flight operations at the county-owned airport if fire protective measures are not met by May 20.

Late last year, Oshkosh City Manager Gordon Jaeger informally proposed that one city fire station (10th and Ohio) could conceivably be moved onto the airport, thus meeting the most crucial federal requirement, a three minute response time to on-airport fire disasters.

As a condition, most of the airport property, now located in the Town of Algoma, would be annexed into the city.

Neither the city council or county board took action on the proposal. Wednesday's meeting, in fact, was the first public meeting between city and county officials since the January crackdown by FAA. The county had known of the new measures since July of 1971.

Since January, however, Brock has obtained three bids for a skid-mounted piece of fire fighting apparatus, which FAA said could be used in place of a fire truck if mounted on another vehicle. Brock was also to explore the possibility of the county's purchasing a fire truck, and getting estimates on the cost of manpower. Surplus equipment was also to be considered.

Brock has yet to file his findings on the latter two possibilities.

In addition, Brock has filed a letter with the FAA, asking for a temporary waiver of compliance with the new regulations.

On Jan. 25, Al Zukauskas, airport certification safety inspector with FAA, flatly told the county no waiver would be granted.

Pence and Engeldinger were given no definite date by which they might file the recommendations with their municipalities. Engeldinger was out of town Wednesday.

appeared in most of the Circuit Courts in Wisconsin.

Chmiel enjoys reading law materials and decisions, and this along with his reflection about one of his first cases in the Circuit Court in Appleton shed some light on the reasons for his interest in the judiciary.

The case involved an automobile accident and a defense argument of assumption of risk, whereby the man injured allegedly knew that he was proceeding into a potentially dangerous situation and therefore, shouldn't be entitled to damages.

Parnell, the opposing attorney in that case, years later abrogated that defense position after it had been an absolute defense for years. The State Supreme Court upheld Parnell's ruling in an appeal.

This shows how a judge can legislate, noted Chmiel.

While he isn't sold on the idea of mass judicial reform, Chmiel thinks the court system could make better use of its judges, notably shifting them to heavy caseload areas. He considers, preventing lengthy delays in trials an important goal.

He also endorsed the Idea of the Citizens' Study Committee on Judicial Organization's proposal for making a single-level trial court, eliminating the Circuit Court, as such.

The circuit distinction between the circuit and county courts "is artificial" because supposedly all judges have full capability to hear all types of cases but don't have the opportunity under the current arrangement. He added that he would support an intermediate appellate court so the state Supreme Court would not be bogged down with all appeals from lower courts. However, Chmiel said he is fairly well satisfied with the way the court system has operated, particularly in his personal experience.

To several other specific questions, Chmiel said he:

— Favors the idea of a family court where divorces and child custody cases both would be under the same judge. He believes the judge would be in a better position to make rulings with the additional understanding of cases.

Chmiel said it is unfortunate that certain members of the judiciary in Outagamie have been unable to resolve their differences on the newly formed family court but he added that he doesn't consider that an issue in the Circuit Court campaign.

— Doesn't believe the nonunanimous jury verdict for conviction in a criminal case would necessarily be harmful or unfair. He said the split decision verdict can be just as effective as the unanimous verdict now required, as long as the method being used is clearly understood by those involved.

— Believes it is very difficult to get citizen involvement in the judicial system, in the sense of suggesting improvements or effecting changes. The judge must base his decisions first on the law, even though the decision may go against what the community wants. He noted, however, that the judge may have some discretion within the law, allowing for a moral evaluation to be included.

— Favors keeping elected judges, instead of appointed because it's "more in keeping with the democratic idea." He said the appointment system has merits but it tends to create long tenure in judgeships.

— Personally is opposed to plea-bargaining, whereby a defendant agrees to plead guilty to a lesser offense in exchange for a specified punishment. He noted that it tends to defeat the law enforcement process, that police should be more strongly supported in their enforcement efforts.

— Prefers a unanimous jury verdict necessary for conviction in criminal trials because the "very serious personal rights of people are involved." A larger jury allows for better judgment, he said.

Chmiel, who was raised on a farm near Mosinee, attended Lawrence University prior to attending law school at Boston University. He has been associated, and still is, with numerous community organizations, as well as being district governor of Lions International.

He and his wife have two children, and they reside in Appleton.

about 1,600 beds and that all of the proposed Lucey budget changes will reduce the capacity to 2,021 beds. The proposals were based on the projected population of about 1,900 inmates — while Powers said the new projections indicate that that level will not be reached, and that the state should expect to have at least 2,100 inmates.

Nusbaum said any such overflow could be temporarily housed in other secure facilities. The state should not turn away from looking at the budgetary alternatives for the sake of saving existing institutions, existing programs and existing jobs, he said.

The programs can be replaced elsewhere at less cost than keeping the reformatory open, and state workers who lose their jobs can be helped by the state to find new employment, he added.

Powers stressed the different institutional needs of different categories of prisoners, contending that "any" prisoner cannot be slipped into "any" prison bed anywhere in the system.

Many reformatory inmates could be safely housed in the state prison at Waupun under the Lucey plan, said Powers. "Whether they were 16 or 60, they would have to be in that prison — the sheep with the wolves," he told the lawmakers.

The closing plans drew the support of Dr. Paul Glunz of Beaver Dam, a Lucey appointee to the Board of Health and Social Services. The department, he said, is spending 75 per cent of its correctional budget on 8.5 per cent of convicted offenders — those in prisons and juvenile facilities. The state cannot maintain a prison program in which half of the prison money goes for security, and less than 15 per cent of rehabilitation programs, he charged.

But Lucey's proposals drew the strong opposition of Health and Social Services Board Chairman Truman McNulty, who said Lucey cannot dispute the "facts" recently provided by the corrections division about the change in prison commitment rates.

The reformatory is near capacity now, and "you just can't mix pickles and milk" and redistribute those inmates to any state prison facility, he warned the committee.

Serious crimes, including rape, murder and burglary, sent 65 per cent of the reformatory inmates behind bars, said McNulty.

The inmates sent to Green Bay and Waupun are those who already have failed in other, milder forms of treatment programs, he said. "When you get sent to Green Bay and Waupun, you have already had it," he said of localized treatment programs.

"Don't be afraid to call the governor wrong," he told Democrats on the finance unit.

In a rare display of disunity, Lucey lost the influential backing of the state AFL-CIO during the Thursday session, as labor lobbyist Jack Rhiel opposed Lucey's plan.

Labor has been a strong supporter of most Lucey programs, but under questioning from Democrats, Rhiel said the state AFL-CIO agrees that prison reform is needed in the country, but warned that the specific Lucey proposals need "very serious study" before being put into effect.

Henry Duer, a Central State employee, warned that criminally insane patients cannot be housed at Mendota and Winnebago state mental hospitals — as proposed by Lucey — and the safety of regular patients there protected.

In the first two months of this year, he said, 546 hours of leave time have been granted Central State employees to recover from injuries sustained in attacks by criminally insane inmates in that specialized institution.

Retired Waupun Prison Warden John Burke repeated that warning. The regular state mental hospitals could not be used for the criminally insane without the creation of special security buildings, he said, separating the classes of patients. The criminally insane would lose their existing treatment programs and could not benefit from the programs administered for regular state mental patients, he said.

"Let's not go back to the days in which we locked the insane up in cages," said Burke.

Menasha man sentenced to 3 years in prison

A 21-year-old Menasha man, convicted on Feb. 15 for two counts of burglary, was sentenced today to three years in the Wisconsin State Prison at Waupun by Circuit Court Judge Gordon Myse.

In sentencing Harold Huff, 219 Main St., Myse urged the defendant to obtain job training and psychiatric treatment while in prison. Myse indicated that Huff had a very poor record, including a series of offenses and repeated failures at probation and parole attempts.

Huff had been found guilty by a 12 member jury of the Nov. 21 break-ins at the Greenville Cooperative Gas Co., Greenville, and the Paradise Club, 4201 W. Wisconsin Ave., Town of Grand Chute. Clothing and tools valued together at $196 were reported taken in the Greenville burglary, while an unspecified amount of change was taken from a vending machine at the Paradise Club.

Still pending against Huff is a charge of concealing stolen property, relating to the Sept. 11 theft of an $18 pair of handcuffs from the Walworth County Correction Center, but Dist. Atty. John Ensley indicated he would probably move for dismissal of that charge when it is taken up next week before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Another man charged in the Paradise Club burglary, Thomas Jury, 21, 1338 W. Prospect Ave., Appleton, is being held in the Winnebago County jail under $3,500 bond, where he is awaiting a Circuit Court trial on one count of burglary in connection with a Jan. 9 break-in at Valley Press Inc., Chapman Ave., Town of Menasha.

Boy loses transplant

Without kidney again

BY ALICE CONNORS
Post-Crescent correspondent

CHILTON — Eight-year-old Lenny Schneider, who received a kidney from his mother last August, lost it last night in emergency surgery.

Lenny is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Schneider of route 4. He has spent all but about a month of his life since August at the University Hospital in Milwaukee.

He was doing well and was allowed to go home late last November for the holidays, but had to return after Christmas because the transplanted kidney was rebelling.

He was scheduled to have the surgery to remove the kidney next Monday, but the Schneiders received a call Thursday that further hemorrhaging of the arteries leading to the kidney had caused complications and that the surgery would have to be performed right then.

Because of the foggy weather conditions, the Schneiders were not able to rush to Milwaukee and had to send a telegram giving permission for the surgery. They left early today to be with their son.

Mrs. Schneider was advised by her son's doctors that, if all goes well, Lenny will be able to come home in two or three weeks. However, he will have to return to Milwaukee twice a week to be put on a kidney machine for six hours each time.

Lenny's name will be placed on a donor list in the hopes that he will be able to receive another kidney. However, no one can tell how long this might take.

The cheerful youngster's picture is on several Kidney Foundation posters located throughout the city which ask for donations in his behalf. All the money from the insurance policy for Lenny has been exhausted by his long stay at the hospital.

The Schneiders, who have one other son age 11, say that as soon as possible they hope to be trained to operate a kidney machine and perhaps be able to purchase or lease such a machine for Lenny's use at their home.

Reassessment. . .

Little Chute would be perfectly assessed if its assessment were exactly 34.68 per cent of its probable selling price. However, there is a wide deviation from this ideal ratio. Kilsdonk reports that only 38 out of every 100 assessments listed in the tax rolls are within 15 per cent of this ratio.

According to the Supreme Court, any assessment 12.5 per cent above or below the community average is still equitable for taxing purposes. In the village, where 62 out of 100 assessments are at least 15 per cent above or below the community average, many people are obviously paying too much or too little in property taxes.

When the reassessment is completed, all property will be assessed at 100 per cent of true value. The percentage itself is unimportant, Kilsdonk explained, although property owners often rally around "100 per cent" as a magic number. What is important is that all the assessments cluster closely around one ratio. (The village's assessed value ratio could be 100 per cent now, and the current inequities would still be glaring.)

In a survey of 47 sales during 1972, Kilsdonk found that the assessed value ranged from a low of 19 per cent of the selling price to 67 per cent.

Over the years, as inflation and property values rose, the community's assessment ratio eroded. In 1967, the ratio was 42 per cent of true value, in 1971 it was 35 per cent and now it's 34 per cent.

When reassessment is completed, the 100 ratio will also erode, but taxes should be fair. A complete reassessment is needed because it would not be fair for an assessor to put only new houses, or sale properties, at their true value while surrounding homes were valued considerably higher or lower than the community average. An assessor has to take neighborhood taxes into consideration when he adjusts assessments at the time of sale.

While this practice ensures equity from house to house, it actually forces the assessor to perpetuate the larger inequities in the community. Therefore, all the properties must be reassessed at once he said.

Irish poet to read works at UWGB

GREEN BAY — An Irish poet who has spent much of the last five years in the United States will read from his works during a free public program Monday at the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay.

He is James Liddy, visiting professor of English at the University of Wisconsin-Parkside, who will present his readings at 8:15 p.m. in the conversation lounge of the Library-Learning Center. Liddy, who returns to Ireland in June, has published five books of poetry, both in Dublin and San Francisco, and his work has appeared in numerous books, newspapers and magazines on both sides of the Atlantic.

will be sent to the state laboratory of hygiene where they will be put through an instrument known as a multiple channel AutoAnalyzer.

Following the evaluation, the people will be notified by mail, either that no abnormalities have been found in the screening test or that a report on some findings has been sent to the physician and that the patient should contact that physician for an appointment and further explanation.

The notification to the physician, however, does not mean that there is a disease necessarily. Any abnormalities indicated must be followed through tests and examinations by the personal physician to verify or rule out diseases.

Further, a part of the testing is planned to indicate conditions that could lead to a disease later in life, such as the example of high blood cholesterol.

If the report indicates that no abnormalities were found, however, it does not mean that the person is in perfect health. The tests are done for a limited number of disease possibilities.

Lucey acts to head off opposition

P-C Madison Bureau

MADISON — Gov. Patrick J. Lucey moved Thursday to visit Green Bay to head off mounting opposition to his proposal to close the state reformatory as the institution's union president called the Lucey plan "a license to steal."

Lucey will visit the city on March 19 to make public appearances defending his controversial budget proposal and to meet with officials of Reformatory Local 32 of the Wisconsin State Employees Union, the executive office announced — as Local 32 President Jerry Tierney of Green Bay was delivering blunt criticisms of the closing plans to intent lawmakers.

In an appearance before the legislature's Joint Committee on Finance, Tierney drew rapt attention as he broke down the costs of keeping the Reformatory open — and warned of the consequences of closing the institution, as proposed in Lucey's 1973-75 budget.

"The cost of the Reformatory is in the millions of dollars," Tierney said of the budget being considered by the lawmakers.

"I make $8,000 a year. I just can't comprehend millions," he said.

But translated into a per person cost, the Reformatory can be kept open at a price of 75 cents per year for each resident of the state, he said.

"No one is going to jeopardize their security for 75 cents," he added.

Claims by the Lucey administration that prisoners from the Reformatory can be shifted elsewhere in the prison system to fill vacancies in other institutions are false, said Tierney, because the other institutions house specialized groups of prisoners, as does the Reformatory, he told the committee.

"They are mixing apples and oranges," he warned of administration proposals to send some Reformatory inmates to the maximum security state prison and others to a proposed youthful offenders institution.

Season draws near

Foxes sell buttons

The Appleton Foxes have begun their booster button drive for the 1973 season.

The button, which sells for $1, will permit youngsters (up to age 13) to see all 65 Foxes games at Goodland Field, according to chairman Owen (Dooley) Balliet. Buttons will be available from all Foxes directors as well as at many Fox Cities retail establishments.

The Foxes open their Midwest League season April 21 at Wisconsin Rapids. Appleton's home opener is set for Easter Sunday, April 22.

For the first time ever, the Foxes' "Welcome Home" banquet will be held after the opening of the season. Chairman Tom Schmidt has announced that the banquet date is Monday, April 30. The principal reason for the change is that the dinner, if scheduled as in previous years, would have come during Holy Week.

Like to have those players? So would the general managers who haven't signed them yet.

As spring training swung into its second official day, a total of 90 major leaguers remained unsigned, although some like Rusty Staub of the New York Mets and Tom Bradley of the San Francisco Giants reportedly had agreed to terms and were heading for camp. ## Stefanich boosts lead in Miller pin tourney

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Jim Stefanich, the leader since play began in the $80,000 Miller Open bowling tournament, had a wider margin going into today's two eight-game blocks.

The Joliet, Ill., kegler, who averaged more than 228 for the first 18 games, won six of eight matches Thursday night and totaled 1826 pins to grab a lead of 207 over runnerup Mark Roth of Brooklyn, N.Y.

Stefanich, 31, who owns 11 titles, shot games of 188, 237, 255, 204, 234, 238, 226 and 244 as he lost only to Jimmy Wright of San Antonio, Texas, and Barry Asher of Costa Mesa, California. One of Stefanich's victories was a 90-pin decision over Barry Warshafsky of Watertown, Mass., 238-148.

Roth, trying for his first Professional Bowlers Association victory, captured seven games and spilled 1822 pins on games of 191, 223, 253, 258, 217, 211, 232 and 237. The youngster picked up 210 bonus pins, 30 for each triumph.

Wright, third with 1828, had the night's best pinfall. But even with games of 226, 216, 220, 225, 237, 238, 246 and 220 he managed only three victories.

Craig Mueller, Union, N.J., who qualified fourth when the field of 192 was cut to 24 earlier in the day, took four tilts with 1779 pins and remained in that position, 321 behind the leader. He was 38 ahead of Don McCune, Munster, Ind., winner in last Saturday's Winston-Salem Classic.

Dick Ritger of Hartford, Wis., won all eight of his match games and was sixth with 5751 pins, while Don Gazzana of Milwaukee won seven and was ninth with 5688.

The top five bowlers after today's action advance to Saturday's nationally televised finals and a chance at the $12,000 first place prize.

Jabbar leads with 36

Bucks top Knicks, 114-100

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Jerry Lucas' long range bombs backfired Thursday night, helping the Milwaukee Bucks to shoot full of holes the theory that they choke at the sight of New York Knicks' uniforms.

With Lucas shooting unusually cold from outside, the Bucks' Kareem Abdul-Jabbar was able to concentrate on offense. He responded with 36 points as Milwaukee opened a 21-point lead and held off a New York rally for a 114-100 National Basketball Association victory.

It was only the Bucks' eighth victory in 31 games with New York over their five year history, but it squared the season series at 2-2 and, more important, increased their Midwest Division lead over Chicago to 3 games. The Knicks slipped 3½ games behind first place Boston in the Atlantic Division.

Lucas, the Knicks' center, usually has been able to connect from the top of the key, or even further out, against Milwaukee and draw the 7-foot-2 Abdul-Jabbar away from the basket. But this time he sank only four of 13 shots, and only one of his field goals came from as far away as 15 feet.

"The bomb had a bad fuse tonight—it fizzled for the first time in a long time," said Lucas, generally considered one of the finest outside shooting big men in the NBA.

"I didn't make one long shot and lately I've been making eight out of 10," he said. "But I just wasn't getting my hand under the ball right."

"You can't expect our offense to work unless I do the job outside against the big guys," he said. "I've got to shoot well so we can force them outside and open up the middle. If I had shot half as well as I have been, we would have been effective."

Abdul-Jabbar, who sank 16 of 27 shots and grabbed 14 rebounds to help Milwaukee control the boards by a 53-45 margin, admitted Lucas' ineffectiveness was a big help.

"When he's really hitting, he's pretty tough for me," Abdul-Jabbar said. "This was a big win. If we're going to get moving, it's got to be soon."

Robertson hit 11 baskets in 15 attempts for 23 points and totaled 10 assists in his second game since he discarded a thick tape he had been using to support a pulled hamstring muscle.

Reserves Phil Jackson, who scored 20 of his 22 points in the second half, and John Gianelli sparked the Knicks as they rallied from a 95-74 deficit to within 99-92 with 5:51 to go.

But Jon McGlocklin, Lucius Allen and Abdul-Jabbar responded with baskets for Milwaukee, offsetting one by New York's Earl Monroe. After Dave DeBusschere connected for New York, Oscar Robertson and Terry Driscoll scored for the Bucks to make it 109-96 with 1:41 left.

"I just couldn't run well with the wraps on so I took them off," Robertson said. "If I'm going to get hurt, I'm going to get hurt."

Robertson poured in six of his baskets in the first quarter as the Bucks broke from a 6-6 tie to a 33-23 lead. They extended it to 57-42 at halftime behind .596 shooting and eight times held 20 point margins in the third quarter.

Jackson, who got most of his points on rebounds or drives down the lane, attributed the Knicks' belated comeback to more aggressive defense and a change in offensive strategy.

"In the first half we tried to run the ball upcourt but we didn't get many good shots," he said. "Later we started running more things inside, but we didn't have enough time."

The Bucks, however, still have to prove they can beat the Knicks in New York's Madison Square Garden, where they are 0-2 this year. After New York scored the final 19 points of a game there Nov. 18 to beat the Bucks 87-86, several Knicks' players said the Bucks almost seem to have a premonition of disaster when they play in the Garden.

"There's no Garden jinx—that's for college teams—although I have to admit it looks that way," Bucks' guard Jon McGlocklin said.

"I feel we've played well in a majority of our games with them," he said. "Our defense has been good against them everytime, but our offense has been much better here because we've happened to have more movement. I like playing in the Garden, personally."

Four FVA cagers win unanimous recognition

BY ROGER PITT

Post-Crescent staff writer

Four players are unanimous selections on the 1972-73 All-Fox Valley Association basketball team named by sportswriters today.

Heading the honor list is 6-5 Carl Joosten of Appleton West, who was named "player of the year." Joosten won a 3-way contest for player of the year. He gained eight of 10 votes for the honor.

Gaining one vote each in "player of Joining those players on the first team are Oshkosh North's Nels Naslund and Menasha's Paul Wisniewski. Wisniewski was the only first team member not getting 10 first-place votes.

Joosten led West to an 11-3 record and second place in the FVA. Early in the year he had to do much of the scoring and as the team gained

Warriors to play Miami of Ohio '5'

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Marquette, which has competed in the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) basketball tournament in seven previous years but never has gotten beyond the regionals, will try again this month.

The Warriors, ranked fifth in the country with a 22-2 record, received their anticipated bid Thursday and promptly accepted. They will meet Mid-American Conference champion Miami of Ohio in the Midwest Regional's qualifying round at Dayton, Ohio, March 10.

If successful there—and the Warriors have lost an NCAA opener only in 1961—they would meet the Big Ten champion at Vanderbilt March 15.

The field at Vanderbilt also will include the Southeastern Conference champion and the winner of the other subregional at Dayton between Jacksonville and the Ohio Valley Conference champion.

The closest Marquette ever has come to advancing to the "final four" was in 1969 when they lost to Purdue 75-73 in overtime at the University of Wisconsin fieldhouse.

"It looked like we were going to (get the bid), but I'm happy because I didn't think this was an NCAA tournament team at the beginning," Coach Al McGuire said in California, where the Warriors will meet Long Beach State Saturday.

"I really didn't think we'd make it to the NCAA this year, not after losing Jim Chones last season," McGuire said. "Not much has been said about Jimmy this year, but he made a big difference in our program this year."

Chones, Marquette's star 6foot-11 center, left the team to sign a pro contract late last season. The Warriors dropped four of their remaining eight games, including 85-69 to Kentucky and 77-72 to Minnesota in the Midwest Regionals.

"If injuries stay away, we have an excellent chance to be very representative in the tournament," McGuire said. "We have been very fortunate with injuries this year. That has helped a lot."

"Besides that, this has been the kind of team where the kids pick each other up," he said. "They've been a surprise to me and I think the bid is a real credit to them."

It will mark the seventh successive postseason tournament competition for the Warriors, who won the National Invitation Tournament in 1970 and finished second in 1967.

Tom Jones named to independent all-stars

MILTON — Tom Jones, a 6-8 junior attending UW-Green Bay, was named to the Wisconsin Independent College Association 10-man all-star team selected by coaches of the nine-member schools recently.

Jones, a 1969 graduate of Appleton High School-East, was the Phoenix leading scorer with a 15.1-point per game average. He also averaged 5.3 rebounds per game.

Jones, who transferred from Kent State was one of the team's most accurate shooters. He converted 59 per cent of his shots from the field and 79 per cent from the free throw line.

Others selected from UWGB were repeater Dennis Woelfler, a 6-5 senior from St. Norbert, Gen Sims, a 6-5 junior from College of Racine and Chuck Chambliss, a 6-2 sophomore from UW-Parkside.

Honorable mention was accorded to Gary Cole, Bill Sobanski and Mike Hanke (UW-Parkside), Jonn Sattler (St. Norbert) and Terry Schott (UWGB).

Rodriguez and Gilbert tied for tourney lead

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — "All I want to do," said Chi Chi Rodriguez, "is to be the best golfer in the world and live to be 140 years old."

"I may not make it, either one, but I'm sure gonna try."

The little Puerto Rican showman has a project going toward each goal, hard work and concentration aimed at the golfing aspect and a diet—yes, that's right, the 126-pounder is on a diet—directed toward long life.

Maybe those are the answers, but something paid off for Chi Chi when he forged a magnificent 64, his best competitive round in nine years and tied for the first round lead Thursday in the $150,000 Florida Citrus Open Golf Tournament.

Sturdy Gibby Gilbert used a rebound putting touch—he needed only 11 strokes on the greens on the last nine holes he played—to match Rodriguez' eight-under-par effort on the 6,928 yard Rio Pinar Country Club course and shared the No. 1 spot going into today's second round.

Two strokes off the pace at 66 were Bob Murphy, Buddy Allin and rookie Tom Kite. Just one more stroke behind in the exceptionally low scoring were Dave Hill, Bob Payne and Ed Sneed.

Third was a group of seven at 68 as a total of 53 players broke par and another 23 matched it.

Arnold Palmer, 60-year-old Sam Snead and Australian Bruce Crampton had 70s, but were a distant six strokes off the pace of the streaking Rodriguez and Gilbert.

Lee Trevino, winner of the rich Jackie Gleason Classic last week, had a 71. Defending champion Jerry Heard was at 73 and must improve if he is to make the cut for the final 36 holes. Jack Nicklaus is not competing.

Little Marquette pick over tall Aquinas

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A good big team usually will beat a good little team, and La Crosse Aquinas is both good and big.

However, there can't be many better little teams—or teams of any size, for that matter—than Milwaukee Marquette, Aquinas' first round opponent at 8:45 p.m. today in the state independent high schools' basketball tournament at the Arena.

Marquette, ranked No. 1 in the state a second year in a row, returns starters Jimmy Smith, Wayne Heidenreich and all-stater Jeff Jonas from last season's tournament championship team.

In four seasons at Marquette, Smith, Heidenreich and Jonas have played on an undefeated freshman team and a varsity that has lost only 10 games in three years.

Eight of those defeats came in their sophomore year, but six were by two points or less. The Hilltoppers were 26-0 a year ago and enter this season's tournament 20-2. The losses were 44-40 to Milwaukee More and 48-34 to seventh ranked Milwaukee Pius.

Heidenreich, a forward, is the tallest starter at 6-foot-3. Smith shifted from guard to forward this year, is 6-foot-2, while center Joe Kauser is just 6-foot-1, as is Jonas. Gary Rosenberger, the other guard, is 5-foot-10.

"We're not as good a rebounding team as last year because we were stronger physically with Reggie Harris and Felix Mantilla up front," Coach Paul Noack said. "But we shoot better."

The Hilltoppers, who play a deliberate offense, are shooting an incredible 55 per cent as a team, and that includes the lowest reserves.

"We have to shoot well because we're just not big enough to get those second and third shots," Noack said. "Hauser is really a guard, and it's a real credit to him that he's played like he has at center. Unfortunately, he doesn't get the recognition he deserves."

Aquinas, with 6-foot-9 Mark Newburg and 6-foot-6 Joe Topinka, may be able to control the boards. However, that doesn't mean the Bugolds will be able to translate defensive rebounds to fast breaks because defense is what Marquette does best.

"It's hard to say whether we've improved defensively, because we've always played it so well," Noack said.

Aquinas Coach Dave Bruha said the Bugolds will challenge Marquette with their physical advantage.

"We've been successful fast breaking when we get the boards and we've broken open several games that way," Bruha said. "I know Marquette likes to stop teams from running. A lot of teams have been holding the ball on us and to a degree have been successful, but we've won the games."

Aquinas, 19-4, shared the Central Wisconsin Catholic title with Wisconsin Rapids Assumption and Stevens Point Pacelli, splitting two regular season games with both.

Blues defeat Bruins

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Boston's Ken Hodge carried a big stick Thursday night but the St. Louis Blues spoke anything but softly about it.

Actually, there really wasn't a peep out of the Blues ... until only three minutes remained and they were trying to hang onto a 4-3 National Hockey League lead over the explosive Bruins.

"We knew from the beginning Hodge was playing with an illegal stick," confessed St. Louis Coach Jean Guy Talbot. "It was obvious just looking at it. We decided to wait until late. We waited for him to be on the ice and in a position where he couldn't sneak it off."

With three minutes left, the Blues spoke up, informing the referee that the curve on the blade of Hodge's stick exceeded the allowable half inch. Hodge as promptly socked two minutes—which hurt the Bruins—and an automatic $200—which hurt his pocketbook.

"They waited, obviously, and they pulled it at the right time," conceded Boston Coach Bep Guidolin. "It was a good move. I would have done the same thing."

The 4-3 triumph gave fourth-place St. Louis a three-point lead over Pittsburgh in the West Division playoff battle and the Blues are only two points behind Minnesota. Boston, third in the NHL East, remained three points behind the New York Rangers.

The Blues snapped a 2-2 tie on goals 24 seconds apart by Bob Plager and Garry Unger early in the third period and held on despite Phil Esposito's second goal of the game and 42nd of the season for the Bruins.

Elsewhere, the Buffalo Sabres and Atlanta Flames battled to a 4-4 standoff while shutout goaltending by Rogatien Vachon and goals by Frank St. Marseille and Bob Berry kept the Los Angeles Kings' playoff hopes alive with a 2-0 triumph over Philadelphia.

In the World Hockey Association, the Los Angeles Sharks beat the Minnesota Fighting Saints 4-1 and the Ottawa Nationals nipped the New York Raiders 2-1.

BRATISLAVA, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Canada's Karen Magnussen skated off with the women's world figure skating crown, but the runnerup, Janet Lynn of Rockford, Ill., conquered Czechoslovak hearts with a sensational free skating finale.

Clinching the title with a masterful performance in her concluding routine Thursday night Miss Magnussen won the title held for the past two years by Austria's Trixie Shuba.

The 5-foot-3 blonde from North Vancouver, B.C. won three gold medals in the competition. In addition to a gold medal for being first over-all, she took golds for winning the compulsory figures and the free-skating.

Other members of the championship team were Tom Baumgartner, Jeff School, Bud Wurdinger, Quinn Vanden Heuvel, Jim Brown, Rick Van Roy and Manager Bob Pendleton.

Brewers' Auerbach signs

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Six players were absent for the first workout of the full Milwaukee Brewers squad Thursday, but two of them were expected to report today.

Ron Theobald was given permission to report a day late, and Rick Auerbach didn't agree to terms until Thursday night. Also missing—and classified as holdouts—were John Briggs, Brock Davis, Ellie Rodriguez and Ray Newman.

"Some teams fine a certain amount every day they're late," said General Manager Jim Wilson. "I'm not considering anything like that at this time."

Wilson said he was still having trouble reaching an agreement with Briggs and Rodriguez, both of whom have been dealing through an agent. The others weren't expected to be too much of a problem.

A lengthy batting practice concluded Thursday's 4½-hour workout and batting coach Harvey Kuenn was pleased with the results.

"Everybody was making good contact for the first day," he said. "Everybody was, and they were doing it consistently."

Nixons provide lavish evening for Israeli Prime Minister Meir

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon provided a gala evening at the White House for visiting Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir, with lavish praise for the Jewish leader who "had her roots in our country."

Nixon predicted that Milwaukee-raised Mrs. Meir would "play a great role" in building peace in the Middle East. He said achieving that peace would not be "easy... soon or instant."

But he suggested that the "enlightened, courageous and strong" leadership that built an independent Israel and has defended it "has the genius" to provide real peace and security in that area.

In a champagne toast, the President said the 120 guests at Thursday night's steak dinner was made up of Mrs. Meir's friends and admirers.

The gathering included members of the Cabinet, congressmen, big Nixon campaign contributors. The guests ranged from the chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, Paul Zuckerman of Livonia, Mich., to John Connally of Texas, who jokingly sidestepped reporters' queries about his future political plans.

Even 89-year-old Alice Longworth, daughter of President Theodore Roosevelt, turned out, along with Nixon's newly named woman ambassador to Luxembourg, Mrs. George Farkas of New York City.

National-security adviser Henry A. Kissinger was seated between two women—international lawyer and Nixon campaigner Rita Hauser of New York and dark-haired singer Lainie Kazan of Beverly Hills. He told them "some people seem to forget that I'm Jewish."

bank normally would intervene with support buying.

Americans in Paris discovered their dollar had shrunken to only 4.24 francs at the First National City Bank, down from 4.40 Thursday.

In Zurich the dollar skidded to an all-time low of 3.05-3.08 Swiss francs in interbank trading, and among banks which offered any rate at all for travelers the dollar bought only 3 francs. Then it recovered somewhat, to 3.1150-3.1250.

But it was the big money holders that had set off the crisis — multinational companies, Middle East oil countries, banks and private investors. They were unloading their dollars by the millions for West German marks, and other European currencies on a bet that there would be weekend developments that would in effect mean an unofficial devaluation of the dollar.

Government ministers and economic leaders met to discuss how to cope with the widespread dumping of U.S. currency.

Prime Minister Edward Heath of Britain and Chancellor Willy Brandt of West Germany were meeting in Bonn, but spokesmen said they would not decide any new monetary moves before conferring with other members of the Common Market.

Widespread belief that Heath and Brandt would agree on a joint float of Common Market currencies apparently touched off the run on the dollar Thursday.

"It's not really a decision-making meeting," British spokesman Donald Maitland said.

But his remarks and those of Bonn spokesman Ruediger von Wechmar appeared to indicate Brandt and Heath were trying for a common assessment of the situation which they could pass on to other capitals.

Nixon covers wide area

Nixon said, "I think I made my position abundantly clear... I do not intend to change my position."

—Sudan Terrorism: The chief executive said the United States "will not pay blackmail" to Palestinian guerrillas who seized the new American ambassador and other diplomats at a party in Khartoum Thursday. "We cannot do so and we will not do so," he said.

—Wage Controls: Asked to clarify whether the administration intends to maintain a 5.5 percent annual ceiling on major wage increases, as administration spokesmen suggested Monday, Nixon said that even during Phase 2 of his economic program "there were very few" labor agreements that yielded a 5.5 percent increase. Looking ahead to 1973 wage negotiations, Nixon said, "some will go a little higher, some will go a little lower."

—John B. Connally: Nixon reported that his former secretary of the treasury has carried out some private chores for him while traveling here and abroad, especially in the field of energy policy.

—Gray nomination: While saying he would not comment on Senate hearings on the nomination of L. Patrick Gray III to be permanent head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Nixon said the FBI chief "must be a nonpartisan figure." He expressed the view that Gray made no political speeches during last fall's campaign and certainly never intended to inject himself into politics.

—Watergate: Asked to comment on the verdict in the recent federal court trial of defendants convicted of bugging Democratic National Headquarters in —Vietnam cease-fire: Asked about continuing violations of the Vietnam cease-fire agreement, Nixon said, "The main point is it is going down now," and said the United States would use its good offices with all concerned to promote an effective cease-fire.

—Laos: He said he thought chances for peace there would be greatly enhanced by the withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops—part of the Washington-Hanoi Indochina agreement.

—Cambodia: Peace prospects in Cambodia are not quite as encouraging, he said, because of the complexity of the situation there, but again he said he thought withdrawal of North Vietnamese forces would greatly improve prospects for a meaningful cease-fire.

Nixon said that until there is a firm Cambodia agreement, the United States will continue to support the government of Lon Nol.

—Blacks: Nixon said he felt no president should kick any group around, especially one that had borne the special disadvantages that had been the plight of blacks for decades.

"The issue is doing what is right," he said, and pictured his administration as doing a great deal for black Americans.

—Welfare Reform: Questioned about his decision, announced Thursday, to abandon his family assistance welfare reform program, Nixon argued there was no chance of winning Senate passage of the program.

Pianist Van Cliburn entertained the dinner guests and 100 others invited for the East Room concert. He played Chopin and Debussy for 45 minutes and took two encores for 10 minutes.

Nixon hailed Cliburn's performance, saying he had "never before heard anything like the brilliance, feeling and sheer genius that we heard tonight."

He told Mrs. Meir "that is the essence we have for you, your people and your country."

The President also saluted Israel's departing ambassador, Yitzhak Rabin.

"May our two countries always stand together in the course of peace and independence and freedom for all people," Nixon concluded his toast.

In her response, Mrs. Meir said it is Israel's greatest dream to cooperate and live in peace with its neighbors—"to cross the borders not with tanks but with tractors" and to build together an area where people can be happy.

"Mr. President," she concluded, "when that great day comes, and I am convinced that it will come, we will always remember that in days of sorrow and difficulties and danger, we were not alone, we had a friend."

rejected" this.

Two Americans are among the hostages: Ambassador Cleo A. Noel Jr. and the U.S. charged'affaires, G. Curtis Moore. The reception was in Moore's honor because of his imminent departure for home.

The others held are Adley el Nasser of Jordan, Guy Eid of Belgium, both charges d'affaires, and the Saudi ambassador.

The hostages had been held for 20 hours at the time of the Middle East News Agency report.

The French Embassy in Khartoum informed Eid's brother George in Brussels that the terrorists had put back their deadline to 7 p.m., noon EST, and that it expected the situation would be "cleared up" by early evening in Khartoum.

The Egyptian dispatch did not make clear whether Sudan's refusal to allow its Cabinet ministers to go on the plane had canceled the deal or whether the guerrillas still would go ahead with the plan.

Sudan's radio reported that a senior U.S. State Department official would arrive in Khartoum at midnight. He was not identified.

The U.S. emissary is empowered by his government to conduct "whatever negotiations are necessary with the guerrillas," the radio said.

The guerrillas were notified of his coming, the broadcast added.

leaders in all departments for league champion Kimberly. Thiel averaged 15.1 points for the Paper makers and hauled in 117 rebounds. Thiel has great jumping ability and is one of the outstanding one-on-one men in the league. He was also a strong defensive player.

Giordana, 6-0, was the only junior named to the first unit. He set a new FVA record in scoring (290 points) and average, 20.7, this season. He also had 65 rebounds and 58 assists for the Ghosts.

Wisniewski, a 6-5 senior, set a conference rebound record by pulling down 178 missed shots and averaging 12.7 retrieves a game. He scored 14.7 points a game for the Bluejays.

Naslund, at 6-2, was the outstanding performer for Oshkosh North. He set FVA records for free throws (114) and attempts (160) in averaging 17.9 points.

Kelly and Luedtke each gained one first-team vote and were named on nine second team ballots.

Accorded honorable mention were Roger Johnson, 6-5 senior, Neenah; Reid Holdorf, 6-2, senior, Appleton West, and Todd Luedtke, 6-5 junior, Kaukauna.

Welfare board chief protests cabinet plan

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The chairman of the Wisconsin Health and Social Services Board sharply objected Thursday to Gov. Patrick J. Lucey's proposal for a cabinet form of government.

Wauwatosa Lawyer Truman McNulty called Lucey's plan, which would eliminate his board, "an endorsement procedure for the actions of the prevailing political power."

"The basic reason (for Lucey's plan) is a power grab by the executive branch to take policy from the people—the governor does not want policy made by the people," McNulty said in written remarks submitted to the Joint Finance Committee.

The governor has proposed that state agencies now ruled by citizens' boards be brought under a cabinet system, in which the departments would be governed by secretaries appointed by the governor and serving at his pleasure.

Lucey and others supporting the change claim the agencies are insulated from public responsiveness under the present system.

"To supplant a policy making board with an advisory council having no legal responsibilities whatsoever will not increase citizen participation in agency direction or policy review," McNulty said. "It will decrease participation."

"To abolish the concept and the practice of policy-making boards, which are a basic form of Democracy in action, would be one giant step backward for Wisconsin," he said.

Manpower unit sets meeting to weigh priorities

OSHKOSH — Citizens concerned with the problems of manpower are invited to attend the March 5 hearing of the Lake Winnebago Area Manpower Planning Board on priorities and general funding, scheduled for 7 p.m. at Oshkosh North High School.

According to Eugene Bogard, chairman of the board, the general public, educators, elected officials, agency leaders and employees, clientele groups, and all persons concerned with manpower problems will find the meeting informative.

Priority items will include expansion of occupational or skill training that incorporates training allowances and classroom instruction; job creation through economic development, employer incentives and public employment; work experience for potential and recent school dropouts; extensive personal counseling of the potential and recent dropout or pushout; attitudinal change or sensitivity development of educators who are employed to teach youth who find education irrelevant, and transportation for the disadvantaged and handicapped.

State and local leaders will attend the meeting to discuss the priority items.

9 accept NCAA bids

BY GORDON D.S. PETERSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

"Sure we'd love to play UCLA," Jacksonville Coach Tom Wasdin, echoing the sentiments of all nine coaches whose teams got at-large bids for the National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball playoffs. "It would mean we'd be in the NCAA final."

Major college basketball's playoffs began to take shape Thursday as Jacksonville and eight other schools were tapped by the NCAA.

Eight of the teams are in The Associated Press Top Twenty and only Southwestern Louisiana is a member of a conference—the Southland, which doesn't automatically get a bid to the playoffs, known as the UCLA Invitational in some circles.

The UCLA Bruins have won the tournament six straight times, and seven out of the last eight years, and are heavily favored again this year. UCLA, however, hasn't wrapped up the Pacific-8 championship but that's considered a mere formality.

The other ranked teams joining No. 18 Jacksonville and No. 11 Southwestern Louisiana were No. 5 Marquette, No. 8 Houston, No. 6 Providence, No. 17 St. John's of New York, No. 19 South Carolina and No. 14 Syracuse.

Unranked Oklahoma City rounded out the at-large teams.

Syracuse, St. John's and Providence were assigned to the Eastern Regionals opening round. Marquette and Jacksonville went to the Midwest with South Carolina selected for the Midwest with Southwestern Louisiana and Houston. Oklahoma City will play in the West.

Coach Al McGuire of Marquette said it didn't matter to him which team the Warriors faced. "Once the tournament comes, the only thing to worry about is injuries. You just shoot the works."

Marquette has never gotten out of the Midwest Regionals.

Officials at Southwestern Louisiana said the invitation was especially meaningful in view of pressures caused by 125 alleged charges of NCAA recruiting violations. USL is currently embroiled in a court fight over answering charges that it offered to pay players and committed other recruiting violations.

For veteran Coach Frank McGuire of South Carolina, it "was like getting a bowl invitation in college football."

The National Invitation Tournament, held at Madison Square Garden in New York, tabbed Notre Dame, Virginia Tech and American University on Thursday. The remainder of the 16-team field will be announced next week.

Weekend fishing outlook

Snowmobilers will find that good conditions continue for their sport in many northern Wisconsin counties and improved conditions are reported in some of the state's central and north central counties as the result of a recent snowfall, according to the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

Good snowmobiling is reported from scattered areas around the state.

Conditions for snowmobiling are reported excellent in many counties in northwestern Wisconsin and the trails in the Brule area, however, are reported as having only a thin cover of snow remaining.

Six-inch snowfall this past week in some of the central and north central counties has improved conditions for snowmobiling. These include Dodge and Jefferson counties, and the Wisconsin Rapids and Antigo areas, with fairly good snowmobiling conditions reported around Waubesa. Good snowmobiling conditions are also reported around Marinette and in the Oconto and Ashland areas.

Snowmobiling is generally poor in the southern tier of counties because of a lack of an adequate snow cover.

The inland game fishing season ended Thursday. The fishing season for panfish continues, and good catches have been reported in Langlade, Washburn, Burnett, Marinette, Oconto, Shawano, Wausau, Green Lake, Dane, Dodge, Iowa, Washington and Waushara counties and lakes.

Fishermen are advised to use caution and be alert for thin ice conditions in some areas.

LAKE MICHIGAN DISTRICT
Marinette Area: — Fishing for panfish is good on Spruce Eagle Chain and Lake Emily.

Marquette county: — Panfish are being taken on Lake Neogebow. Bayly "flawed" is still good for panfish. Snowmobiling conditions are good.

Oconto county: — Spruce Lake is reported good for crappies. Chute point is still good for panfish. Panfish fishing is good on most lakes. Snowmobiling is good, however, trails are beginning to show ice.

Shawano county: — Northern pike are being taken on Shawano lake where the season is still open. Perch and bluegills are biting. Snowmobiling is poor.

Waushara county: — Lake trout are being caught in good numbers on Big Green lake. There is excellent panfish fishing on Lake Puckaway. Good catches of perch and large size crappies are being taken on small lakes. Snowmobiling conditions in the Waushara area is good with 5-8 inches of new snow. All trails are open.

Culmott county: — Snowmobiling on the east shore of Lake Winnebago is excellent but snowmobiling on the land area is poor.

Fond du Lac county: — Snowmobiling in the Kettle Moraine area is good. Fishing on Long and Mouille lakes very slow.

Winnebago county: — Snowmobiling is good. Fishing on area lakes is poor. Car travel on Lake Winnebago is difficult because of drifting snow.

Green Bay Area: — Doan county — Fishermen are taking some rainbow trout from Whitefish creek and Heins creek in Doan county.

NORTH CENTRAL DISTRICT
Wisconsin Rapids Area: — A stormy night of new snow in the area has improved snowmobiling considerably. Fishing is very slow on all lakes.

Antigo Area: — Snowmobiling is reported as good. Cross-country skiing is good with considerable activity in Langlade county and vicinity. Panfish are biting on Twin and Rolling Stone lakes in Langlade county.

Marion Lappen hits 603

Marion Lappen cracked a 603 national honor series Thursday in the Hahn's Navy League to highlight area women's bowling action.

Mrs. Lappen rolled lines of 213, 195 and 195. Sally Nabbefeld jolted a 202-525 and Jo Ann Mueller 209.

Alice Patterson cracked a 570 series in the Koffee Koppers League at Sabre Lanes.

Alice Patterson jolted a 213-570 pacesetter in the Koffee Koppers League at Sabre Lanes Thursday to highlight women's bowling action.

Other highs in the Koffee Koppers were Carolyn Bergman with 210, Leone Taubel 207, Jane Stumpf 206, Boots O'Brien 201 and Jo Stephens 201.

Lois Bressers crashed a 211-569 in the Crispy Critters at Sabre Lanes.

Leaders in the Early Swingers at 41 Bowl were Shirley Bernthal with 214-558, Kay Bliese 542, Lucille Smith

220, Mary Grueth 208 and Betty Kadatz 200.

Karen Fentz rolled a 550 series and Mary Koepsel a 205 line in the Bent Sabres League.

Janet Palmer logged a 546 and Marilee Schultz 203-534 in the State's League at 41 Bowl. Jerry Green hit 203-529.

Pauline Pleier smacked a 207-545 and Karen Paschen 228-545 in the Kimberly Ladies at Jerry's Lanes.

Phyllis Ludwig rolled a 540 and Lorna Pekarske 539 in the Hahn's Women's League.

Highs in the Lucky Strike League at Jerry's Lanes were Ella Ahrens with 540, Lori VanBakel 537 and Ade Evers 200-529.

Barb Bobber hit a 205-539 in the Pixie loop at Little Chute Recreation.

Evelyn Nichols hit a 544 in the Flower League at 41 Bowl.

Ditka retires, will become coach

DALLAS (AP) — Four-time All Pro tight end Mike Ditka announced his retirement as a player Thursday and will become a receiver coach for the Dallas Cowboys, the team he has played with the past four seasons.

Ditka, 33, a 12-year National Football League veteran, said of his new coaching career, "It's something I always wanted to do. You've got to work hard and I think I can do that."

Ditka's retirement as a player left the Cowboys with three tight ends, the number they carried last season. Their first round college draft pick was tight end Billy Joe Dupree of Michigan State. He now joins Billy Truax and Gene Fugett.

"Mike has been a great player. He has the potential to become a great coach," said Cowboy Coach Tom Landry. "He had reached a point in his career where he was in a position to make a decision like this."

"We both feel coaching provides a greater opportunity for Mike than playing another year or two."

Ditka was All-Pro four times in his first six years in the NFL with the Chicago Bears. He spent the 1967 and 1968 seasons with the Philadelphia Eagles before coming to the Cowboys.

His 427 pass receptions are more than any other tight end in NFL history.

Indiana leads swimming meet

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Indiana held a commanding lead today, evidently en route to its 13th straight Big Ten swimming and diving championship, while Michigan headed for its customary second-place finish.

The Hoosiers captured first place in the 400-yard medley, the 200-yard medley and the first two places in the 500-yard freestyle, amassing 195 points after the first day of competition Thursday. Michigan trailed far behind with 95 points, placing second in the 200- and 400-yard medleys.

Michigan State's Glenn Disoway placed first in the 50-yard freestyle. The Spartans were third with 70, while Wisconsin was fourth at 60. Ohio State, boasting a first-place finish by Tim Moore on the one-meter diving board, was next with 56.

After that it was Northwestern 22, Illinois 21, Minnesota 19, Iowa 8 and Purdue 6.

Michigan has finished second behind the Hoosiers for the last 12 years.

Indiana's Gary Hall set a Big Ten record in the 200-yard individual medley, winning the event in 1:54.86. The old record of 1:55.16 was set last year by teammate Larry Zarziere.

Nixon faces unpopular decision on aid to Hanoi

WASHINGTON—Despite rising hostility in Congress to U.S. aid for reconstruction of North Vietnam, President Nixon is moving toward a most unpopular decision: asking Congress for direct U.S. aid money, not funneled through the World Bank or any other multilateral source.

That bold but still tentative decision shows just how confident Mr. Nixon is that, when the issue is sharply drawn, enough liberals—maybe even Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, the defeated 1972 Democratic presidential nominee—will have to go along.

Hard-line anti-foreign aid conservatives, such as Senate Democratic whip Robert Byrd of West Virginia, seem unalterably opposed to aiding Hanoi in any shape or form. Some liberals, such as Sen. J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas, are just as unalterably opposed unless the aid is multilateral. But the President is hoping that McGovern and other super-doves, now opposed to direct aid, ultimately will support it rather than risk collapse of the fragile peace settlement.

The strong inclination of State Department and White House officials to push direct aid is based on long-range political factors, which can be summed up in this question:

Why should the U.S. spend up to $1.5 billion over five years to help reconstruct Hanoi and other war-damaged parts of North Vietnam without reaping political and economic benefits?

If all aid were funneled through the Asian Bank or some new international consortium, the U.S. hand would be hidden. But with most U.S. aid bearing a prominent Made-in-America sign, Washington could gradually build real political influence in Hanoi.

That is surely also the explanation for Hanoi's demand, which first publicly surfaced this week, that American aid be "direct." Hanoi, too, looks on aid not just as bricks and mortar and machinery, but as opening up a political option in Washington for possible future use.

Moreover, Rep. Otto Passman of Louisiana, chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee handling Hanoi aid, has already issued this blunt warning to the administration: under no conditions will multilateral aid be acceptable.

Passman told us he would much prefer 40-year, no-interest loans for Hanoi. But he did not rule out direct grants, if no third countries were involved.

In the long run, the administration believes, the hard-boiled advantages of direct aid in international politics will be easier to sell on Capitol Hill and in the nation. But for the short run, it deepens Mr. Nixon's problems and gives his liberal opponents a rationale for hedging on previous promises of aid. McGovern is a conspicuous example.

Several times during the presidential campaign, McGovern strongly supported postwar reconstruction aid. Asked early in 1972 whether he endorsed former President Johnson's proposal for $1 billion in postwar aid, McGovern replied: "Absolutely, absolutely." Later, he said the U.S. should treat North Vietnam just as it did Japan and Germany after World War II.

Yet, McGovern today hedges on aid for North Vietnam. He recently said he would vote for aid money only if it was not direct. Other liberals, angry at the President's impoundment of social-welfare funds and his budget ceiling, are similarly threatening to block any direct aid request by Mr. Nixon.

The screams from congressional liberals that greeted the first reports of U.S. aid for Hanoi surprised the White House, deeply worrying top officials who know that Hanoi feels it was given a hard commitment in Paris for direct reconstruction aid. Every indication that Congress might actually refuse to vote what Hanoi regards as its due increases this official worry.

"If Hanoi thinks we are playing a shell game with them on reconstruction aid," one official told us, "all bets for a peaceful settlement are off." In short, once the Hanoi politburo suspects Mr. Nixon cannot or will not deliver on that key element in the agreement ending the war, the Communists might wreck the whole agreement.

As the battle deepens and Mr. Nixon moves frontally toward direct aid, that fact alone may be his trump card. Surely, McGovern and the other liberals who screamed longest and loudest for an end of the war would not risk seeing the war-end agreement undermined because of their own refusal to honor a commitment for direct aid to North Vietnam.

Some rules eased for personal exemptions

With each personal exemption deduction now worth $750 on your 1972 return, you surely will be delighted to learn that the Treasury significantly liberalized some exemption rules last year.

If you are among the hundreds of thousands who contribute toward the support of another household including two or more relatives—for instance, your mother and father—one 1972 blind but qualified as blind for tax purposes, you had to attach to your return each year an eye doctor's or registered optometrist's statement that you met the required conditions for being considered blind that year—necessitating an examination and a statement each year. But under the new rules, if an examining physician certifies your condition is irreversible and you file a copy once with your return, all you need on future returns is a simple statement referring to the previous opinion.

A not so favorable court decision in 1972 makes it more difficult for certain unmarried taxpayers to qualify for the lower tax brackets of head of a household. One prerequisite for these lower rates is that you must maintain a household that is the principal place of abode for a dependent child—but in this era of wandering sons and daughters, it may be difficult to tell what is the principal place of abode for a child. One divorced widow always maintained a room for her adult son, kept some of his belongings there and supported him—but he was usually wandering and only occasionally did he vacation with her. Last year, a court agreed with the Treasury that, because of his life style, he wasn't just temporarily away from home and his

Save on taxes—5

Treasury rule may make it a lot easier for you to justify a dependency deduction for at least one (or more) of them.

Here's a commonplace problem you can now lick fairly easily. Say your parents live together in their own home and have their own combined income of about $2,500 a year. Say you give them $1,500 a year toward their support. They spend the whole $4,000 to run their household during the year—meaning it costs $2,000 to support each one for the year.

For you to claim a $750 dependency deduction for either one of your parents, you would have to be able to prove that you contributed more than half of the year's support for that parent. Under the tax rules that have existed until now, your $1,500 contribution for the year was viewed as being split equally between our mother and father—meaning that you contributed only $750, or less than half, toward the $2,000 support of each parent. You got no $750 exemption for either parent unless you could prove that your $1,500 was actually used for one of them alone—a practical impossibility.

But a 1972 Treasury rule says you can now pinpoint your contribution toward a particular person so that you can claim the support was for that person—without having to prove that individual person alone actually used your contribution. You can "designate"—preferably in writing—that your contribution is intended specifically for the support of your mother, father or other relative. Except where your designation can be contradicted—which would be rare—the Treasury will accept your statement without requiring you to prove that the designated amount was actually spent for that particular dependent.

With this new most favorable 1972 ruling, you now have an approved way of arranging your support contribution to give yourself the maximum possible $750 dependency deduction, emphasizes The Research Institute of America. You might just "designate" the desired use of your contribution on your check. If you do this, says the Treasury, on a check payable to an individual who has custody of a claimed dependent, it will be regarded as evidence of actual support.

Another 1972 change in Treasury regulations will help those among you who get an extra exemption for being blind. Until now, if you were not totally

Rogers tells mayor he won't remove pets

KAUKAUNA — State Rep. William Rogers in a letter to Mayor Robert La Plante announced that under no circumstances will he remove the family pets from his yard as has been directed earlier this month by the city health and recreation committee.

Rogers has claimed that the animals including a horse, sheep and water fowl can legally be kept in his yard. "If and when they are removed, it will be done at my time and convenience, or if this is taken to court, at the direction of the court," he said. The complaints which had been filed by several of the law-maker's neighbors had brought a cleanup order by the committee by March 4.

The committee at its meeting asked both neighbors and Rogers to give statements concerning the complaint. Rogers went on to say that the hearing, chaired by Ald. James McDaniel, 3rd, at which Rogers was denied permission to make a prepared statement, was a "flaunt of the democratic idea we were all elected to uphold."

He also stated in his letter that the motion by Ald. Lloyd Kloehn, 2nd, ordering him to rectify violations was without opinion of legal council and was "the height of irresponsible action". Rogers claims he was annexed under state statutes providing for "non-conforming uses". His letter stated that his children had raised six beef animals from a few days old to maturity and that those animals were on his property at the time of annexation.

His letter indicated that at least one member of the health and recreation committee knew that his children had raised these animals and that his neighbors also know of this. He said it was his opinion that the non-conforming use, which is agricultural, has been maintained by his children for at least eight years.

Rogers said, "Although I intend to move the animals outside of the city, I believe it is necessary to protest the action of the committee, because I feel that my animals are there legally and because of the law, my children have a right to continue, if they wish, to raise the animals on our property within the city."

La Plante said he has turned his copy of the letter over to City Attorney Donald Green and that it will be read at Tuesday's council meeting at which time the council is expected to determine a course of action.

Persons disabled before 22 may receive Social Security

Under a change in the Social Security law, effective in January, monthly benefits can be paid to adults who were severely disabled before age 22, according to Frank M. Donnick, manager of the Appleton Social Security office.

Previously, "childhood disability" payments could be made only to qualified adults who were severely disabled before age 18.

Monthly payments are made to severely disabled adult sons and daughters of workers getting retirement or disability benefits from Social Security and to those same sons and daughters of deceased workers whose families get Social Security survivor's benefits.

Froehlich co-sponsors bill on solid waste

WASHINGTON — Eighth District Congressman Harold V. Froehlich has announced that he is co-sponsoring legislation that provides federal tax incentives to encourage the utilization of recycled solid waste materials and offset existing tax advantages that promote the depletion of virgin natural resources.

"To make recycling meaningful," he said, "tax incentives not to recycle must be removed. The Internal Revenue Code now encourages the unnecessary depletion of many of our most critical natural resources. We can provide incentives to recycle, he said.

Froehlich's bill, H.R. 4627, contains two key provisions. The first, provides specific tax deductions for manufacturers utilizing recycled materials.

The bill's second feature allows for the amortization of solid waste material facilities on a five-year basis. This will provide tax benefits for the recovery, processing, converting and manufacturing of solid waste into raw materials and products. Under this bill recycling facilities would receive similar tax treatment to that already given to other types of pollution control facilities.

"The new law extends the age for qualifying," Donnick said, "because people who become severely disabled between 18 and 22—like those disabled when younger—generally haven't had the chance to work long enough under Social Security to get disability benefits on their own work records."

"If they become able to work," he said, "their Social Security payments stop. But if they become severely disabled again within seven years of the time they became able to work, the new law provides that payments can be resumed."

About 13,000 people will be newly eligible for about $1.4 million a month in benefits under the new law.

Social Security now pays $30 million a month to 300,000 people 18 and over who were severely disabled in childhood.

Miller Masonry to build in Kaukauna

LITTLE CHUTE — Miller Masonry, with offices in Kaukauna and warehousing space in Appleton, has received a building permit to construct an 80-by-80-foot, $50,000 building at Moasis Drive and Kelbe Drive on a two and one-half acre site.

Building Inspector Gerald Locy said that the building would be of steel and masonry construction, and work would be handled by company crews. The structure will be 18 feet high and have a partial basement. The structure will serve both as office and warehousing area. Work will begin immediately and is expected to be completed before the major summer building season.

Bake sale is planned

KAUKAUNA — Employees of River-view Hospital have scheduled a bake sale in the main recreation room on the first floor of the hospital from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. March 9.

Proceeds will be used to help purchase an organ for the church services and entertain functions for patients.

Persons attending the sale are requested to use the office entrance at the front of the hospital.

TO BENEFIT PIPER OWNERS who purchased their Pipers at AL ROLLO'S STUDIOS, group sessions will be held for 4 consecutive weeks beginning March 8 and 9 (Thursday and Friday evenings from 8:00 to 8:30 p.m.) at Al Rollo's Studios, 788 W. Foster Street, Appleton. Piper owners, says Al Rollo, shown above at the keyboard, will benefit from picking up "helps and tips" on how to enjoy their Piper more fully. Phone number at Al Rollo Studios is 739-3158. (Adv.)

Al Rollo's Studios will also be featuring a large display of some new and exciting concepts in Hammond Organs at the Park Plaza Home Show in Oshkosh's beautiful Park Plaza on March 15, 16, 17 and 18th.

Al Rollo's Studios in Appleton and Fond du Lac are the home of the famous Hammond Piper in the Fox River Valley, as well as all models of Hammond Organs and including another keyboard line... the famous "STORY AND CLARK" pianos and Hobart M. Cable pianos.

Al Rollo's Studios is also the home of "Rollo Records" featuring EDDY HANSON.

If you have not already registered, Al explains, you may do so by phoning 739-3158 between 11 a.m. and 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, or 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday.

Sessions will be limited to 15 or 20 people per group, and owners are asked to bring along the "Piper Playing Guides" that came with the instrument. Supplementary material will be furnished according to need.

This is just another way, says Al, that the studios help their customers to enjoy their investments to the fullest extent.

Wedding world Al Rollo's Studios will be well represented at the forthcoming "WEDDING WORLD" on March 4th and 5th as sponsored by WBAY-TV channel 2. The Studios will be featuring a display booth, as well as the organs and music for formal Wedding World presentations.

"If you can't get to us... a card or phone call will bring us to you", Al points out. Remember, he says, "Price is... what you pay, but value... is what it's worth to you!"

Milk prices may increase

BY DAVID WEITZ
Post-Crescent Farm Editor

Shoppers may pay more for the cheese and milk they buy in coming weeks and farmers may get more money for the milk they sell, according to predictions at the National Agricultural Outlook Conference in Washington.

In Wisconsin it will mean stronger dairy prices and larger exports of milk. But if the state is like most of the nation much of the increase paid to farmers will be eaten up by rising costs.

Cheese prices are rising, largely because many families are eating cheese instead of meats, and haven't yet hit a peak. The price of milk also is likely to increase in Wisconsin, according to Lavern Krahn, Madison, statistician with the Statistical Reporting Service, a cooperative agency of the state and United States Department of Agriculture.

The Wisconsin Cheese Exchange, at Green Bay, is an indicator market for the price of cheese and David Nusbaum, Green Bay, a director, said he expects a rise of 2.25 cents in the price of cheese. Nusbaum is executive vice president of Schreiber Cheese Co., Green Bay.

That increase may not be felt at all by consumers, he said, but wholesale prices may rise because milk prices will be increased when federal support prices on milk are increased. "The law specifies that milk has to be supported at 75 per cent of parity and it's not that now."

Parity is a measure of how well farmers are doing economically when compared to urban workers.

With rising food prices an increase much beyond 75 per cent of parity would be politically "unpopular," said Nusbaum. The effect would be to put a new floor under the price of cheese which already exceeds the minimum established by federal law.

The increases in red meat prices already has had an impact on the cheese market and should bolster prices. "It definitely has a firming influence on cheese (markets)," said Nusbaum.

Federal analysts have forecast a steady increase in the price farmers will receive for their milk. An "outlook" report by A. G. Mathis of the United States Department of Agriculture said, "For the year, milk prices promise to average about 4-5 per cent more than 1972, if dairy supports are set at 75 per cent of parity and federal order pricing is not changed. This year manufacturing milk prices should average well above 75 per cent of parity."

His report estimated the gross cash receipts from dairying as $7.5 billion in 1973. Last year the nation's dairy farmers received slightly less than $7.2 for their product.

The all-milk price for Wisconsin during February was $5.94 per hundred-weight, according to Krahn. The price for all milk sold in the nation during the first quarter of 1973 averaged $6.45 per hundredweight.

There was a positive increase in the amount of dairy products sold last year with a 12 per cent increase in cheese sales and an 11 per cent rise in sales of lowfat milk. Most products, except canned milk and nonfat dry milk, increased.

"The good sales picture in 1972 brought the first gain in per capita consumption of dairy products in nearly two decades," said the federal report.

It was a turnaround for the dairy industry.

An industry plagued by surpluses that have depressed prices to federal support levels in past years now is virtually free of surpluses.

The Commodity Credit Corporation, which purchases surplus agricultural products, has sold its uncommitted stocks of nonfat dry milk and cheese. Butter stocks are only a little above a year earlier, according to the federal report.

Much of the surplus milk was used in sales of nonfat products, said Krahn. Some of the increase, however, was due to higher sales in cream. The development of a market for yogurt depleted additional supplies of skim milk.

Now dairy markets are strong. Next year, if weather permits dairymen to secure good crops, a production hike of 1 to 2 per cent is forecast, said Krahn.

The impact at the supermarket will be simple. "The price to the consumer is going to go higher."

This year, for the first time, Wisconsin has shipped large amounts of fluid milk to eastern states. Much of that shipment has been because of storms which affected much of the dairying area but in addition population increases in the east are requiring additional milk supplies, according to Krahn. Last year 16.2 per cent of the nation's milk supply came from Wisconsin.

The federal report said the future of the industry will depend greatly on the ability of farmers to keep on building sales. Last year, nationally, farmers sold 35 per cent more milk than the year before.

With promotion efforts, and meat prices high farmers should be able to sell more milk, said Krahn.

Sales already are increasing fast enough so that nonfat dry milk may have to be imported unless whey products can be used, said the federal study. Now the dairy industry is undergoing a change that is turning the byproduct into what may become a profitable item.

Pollution regulations have required safe disposal of whey and as prices rise the dried, demineralized product is becoming increasingly valuable.

Farmers can be optimistic. The market for dairy goods "looks very bright...and it does for future years."

Prices rising

The price of dairy products may go up for both consumers and farmers. Much will depend on the amount milk price supports are increased in April but cheese already is leading the support price by a significant margin. Wholesale buyers, who bid on the Wisconsin Cheese Exchange in Green Bay, may experience a 2.25 cent increase per pound. That may not be passed on to consumers, however, said an Exchange director. ## Farm taxes pass value

WASHINGTON AP—Studies by the Agriculture Department show that taxes on farm real estate, including land and buildings, have been rising faster than the values of the property.

In 1971, the Economic Research Service reported Monday, the total taxes levied on farm real estate was $2.66 billion, up 6.4 per cent from 1970.

Computed on the basis of tax rates per $100 of value the value, the average levy nationally in 1971 was $1.21 or a gain of three cents in the year.

That rate has increased annually since 1966 when it held steady at $1 per $100 of real estate value, according to ERS records.

CHILTON—Oscar Hedrich Jr. and Martin Biese topped Calumet County dairymen with high producing cows listed by the county Dairy Herd Improvement Association during January.

Hedrich had a six-year-old with 24,420 pounds of milk and 816 pounds of butterfat. Biese's high cow had, as a four-year-old, 832 pounds of butterfat and 20,070 pounds of milk.

The remaining top five in the four-year-old group were listed by Reuben Keuler, 18,530 milk, 726 butterfat; Ruffing Brothers, 20,320 milk, 711 butterfat; Leonard Woelfel, 18,310 milk, 690 butterfat; Glenn Hacker, 14,810 milk and 647 butterfat; Hubert Jacobs and Sons, 17,440 milk and 640 butterfat and Leslie Schnell, 15,430 milk and 630 butterfat.

The remaining top five in the aged cow class were listed by: Edward

In the three-year-old group the top five were led by Ruffing Brothers, 19,560 milk, 827 butterfat. Others were, Martin Biese, 16,870 milk, 643 butterfat; Van Treeck Brothers, 14,600 milk, 640 butterfat; William Scholz, 15,850 milk, 631 butterfat and Henry Juckem, 16,320 milk and 629 butterfat.

Ruffing Brothers also topped the two-year-old group with a listing of 15,710 milk and 711 butterfat. Others were, Van Treeck Brothers, 19,240 milk, 631 butterfat; Leonard Schmidt, 14,970 milk, 581 butterfat; Geraiu Geiser, 11,730 milk, 580 butterfat and Joseph Miersberger, 15,220 milk and 573 butterfat.

By 1980 American farmers will be using more than $120 billion each year in credit, nearly twice the amount they were using in 1970, according to forecasts by E.A. Jaenke, governor of the Federal Farm Credit Administration.

Jaenke told stockholders at the annual meeting of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of St. Paul that much of that credit may be supplied by farmer-owned Production associations. "Thanks to the broadened authority brought about by enactment of the new Farm Credit Law in 1971, PCAs are now able to take on the challenges and opportunities involved in meeting these responsibilities," he said.

The new law permits the Production Credit Associations to provide credit to non-farmers who serve farmers directly by providing custom services, he said.

It also permits the lending agencies to provide funds for some non-farm housing and provide electronic record facilities for farmers.

Recent increases in prices of soybean oil may result in lower prices for soybean meal, according to a statement of the American Soybean Association in its bi-monthly newsletter, Soybean Profits.

Winners

A trio of winners has been selected from participants in the 1973 Outagamie County 4-H speaking contest conducted at Black Creek, according to William Shaw, county 4-H and youth agent.

The winners were, Linda Lund, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Lund, route 1, Hortonville, Ellington 4-H club, junior division; Lori Diermeier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Diermeier, route 2, Black Creek, of Cicero Busy Bees 4-H Club, in intermediate division; and Paula Diermeier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Diermeier, in senior division.

County alternates were, Sheila Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Allen, Shiocton, of Chief Shioct 4-H Club, junior division; Tim Diermeier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Diermeier, intermediate division; Barbara Tesch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Tesch, Black Creek, of Cicero Busy Bees 4-H Club, senior division.

The Wide Awake Forward 4-H Club will conduct a roller skating party March 18 at Fox Valley Roller Rink. Committee members planning the event are Diane Wichman and Judith Wichman.

The next meeting of the Countryside 4-H Club will be Monday at the Leslie Schmidt residence. Members are planning a roller skating party in the future and will conduct a paper drive during Easter vacation.

The Calumet County music festival will be presented at 1:30 p.m. Sunday at the Hilbert High School.

Feeder pig co-op plans meeting

STEVENS POINT—A Canadian feeder pig raiser will describe management practices used in his operation, which has an average of weaning 23 pigs per sow per year, here March 10 at the annual meeting of the Wisconsin Feeder Pig Co-op, Francis Creek.

The feeder pig producer, David Sutherland, Putnam, Ontario, will discuss ways good management can boost the output of feeder pigs.

Sutherland is a native of England. He attended Essex Institute of Agriculture and Harper-Adams School of Agriculture. Before graduating and emigrating to Canada in 1968 he was employed as a working man on English farms.

Bruce Barth, Black Creek, will discuss experiences with the Wisconsin Federation of Cooperatives Youth Corps. He will outline working with cooperatives and personal involvement in the operations.

Harold P. Pluimer, Minneapolis, a consultant and writer and speaker, will stress food production and the need for the best utilization of lands.

Special awards will be presented to farmers who marketed more than 1,000 pigs through the co-op during 1972. Thirty-four members will receive the awards.

Dr. Norbert Dahlke, general manager, and Raymond Butterbrodt, Burnett, co-op president, will discuss the present status of the organization.

In addition members will elect resolution and districting committee members; advisory board members and district four and five representatives to the co-op board of directors.

Nominees for the district four director chair are Howard Fuelle, Pound, Jack Finger, route 1, Oconto and Silas Uelman, route 2, Cecil. Nominees from district five are Neil Warsaw, Kendall and Robert Riekeman, route 4, Eau Claire. Delegates to the session from district three which encompasses Portage, Waupaca, Outagamie and Winnebago Counties are Stephen Simon, Robert Griffith, Merlin Heiden and Donald R. Olson, all route 2, Black Creek; Lloyd Semrow, route 3, Appleton; Earl F. Maxwell route 1, Neenah; Clifford Much, route 1, Fremont; Dennis Otto, Amherst; Charles Barden, route 1, Scandinavia; Leonard W. Kloehn, route 1, Fremont; alternates are, Eldred Getzlaf, Getzlaff, route 5, Wisconsin Rapids and Clarence Kloehn, route 1, New London. Resolution committee members are Gilbert Laabs, route 2, Hortonville; John Much Jr., route 1, Fremont and districting committee nominee is Earl Maxwell. Director William Knitt, route 1, Bear Creek, will represent district three at the meeting.

Embargo ends

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The ending of an embargo on the shipment of swine into Wisconsin from 12 states which had experienced outbreaks of hog cholera was announced by the Wisconsin Agriculture Department.

The embargo was imposed Oct. 13 after the federal government declared a hog cholera emergency. The disease is highly contagious to swine, but does not affect human beings.

Veterinarian Gordon Janney said the federal emergency is still in effect but that hog cholera has been brought under control in the states nearest to Wisconsin.

'Big' Holstein plan criticized

EAU CLAIRE—Holstein raisers have been making a mistake by trying to breed big cows that can break production records, according to Max Trake, Tiffin, Ohio, manager of the Northern Ohio Breeding Association Inc.

He told nearly 1,000 Wisconsin Holstein-Friesian Association members meeting here for their 82nd annual convention that they've been making serious errors in cattle breeding.

It's wrong for cattle judges to favor large animals, he said, because the big cows often are shorter lived and poor in feed conversion.

He contrasted present dairy breeding practices to the tradition of beef breeding that has produced chunky animals which now are considered inefficient in many cases.

Lopsided breeding practices that consider only size and production quotas can cause damage to the quality of Holstein cattle, said Drake. He said udder wear, longevity and the resistance of animals to mastitis are among other factors that should be considered when breeding programs are planned.

Later, during a panel discussing national Holstein policy, Gene Nelson, Union Grove, asked members to accept production records from all nations of the world. Such records could hardly be worse than some maintained in the United States, he said.

He criticized the quality of cow testing within the state since the test procedures have moved from county to regional organizations. Supervision has become lax, he said, and the lack of formal participation has caused deterioration of quality.

Jon Schaumberg, Seymour, was named distinguished junior Holstein association boy and Miss Donna Lynn Cooper, 19, DeForest, was named the distinguished junior Holstein association girl.

Dodge County won the trophy for the membership contest and the Elmer Berg Trophy for best large county organization.

Jackson County was winner of the best small county organization award, the Sontag Trophy.

Twenty-two farmers received the Progressive Breeder Award of the organization.

Kufuss says farmers hold prices down

JOLIET, Ill.—The price consumers pay for food would be higher today if farmers had not reached an efficiency that is cutting costs, according to William Kuhfuss, American Farm Bureau Federation president, speaking here Sunday before the Joliet Kiwanis Club.

"Farmers deserve recognition as 'inflation fighters,'" he said, "through their efforts to increase production. What has happened, especially in the case of meat supplies, is that demand has increased faster than supplies."

He said the Nixon Administration has made efforts to increase food supplies. Meat import quotas have been suspended, export subsidies terminated and federal Commodity Credit Corporation stocks are being sold, he said.

He said farmers have boosted the amount of beef they produce two and one-half times during the past twenty years despite periods of low prices. Today Americans eat an average of 115 pounds of beef, he said.

He opposed federal price controls and said such acts would lead to shortages.

"If markets are permitted to reflect rising consumer demand, farmers and ranchers will respond with increased production. However, if the government imposes price controls on live animals, there will be less incentive for increased production," he said.

Scott seeks land use plan

WASHINGTON—The National Grange has called for a national land use plan in testimony before the Senate Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs which opposed a land use policy act submitted by Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Washington.

Land and water use must be planned on a national level instead of left to local zoning authorities because too often local government does not conserve agricultural lands, said John W. Scott, master of the National Grange.

"The Grange cannot endorse Sen. Jackson's bill," he said, "because we feel it does not provide for the preservation of prime agricultural land. While we are in favor of leaving local zoning laws in the hands of local governments, in many areas it's difficult to convince these local governments of the importance of preserving land for agricultural uses. For this reason, the Grange feels some overall national planning emphasizing the priorities of land use in relationship to economic needs and national goals is desirable."

'72 wheat harvest hits record $3.4 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1972 wheat crop, counting government payments, is worth more than $3.4 billion to farmers, says the Agriculture Department.

On that basis, the average value of wheat this year was $2.23 per bushel, compared with $1.89 in 1971, the USDA said Tuesday in a year-end crop report.

The gross value, up from 1971's total of $3.05 billion because of sharply higher market prices, eclipsed the old record of $3.1 billion set in 1947. But the unit price was higher then—$2.29 per bushel.

Soaring exports this year, led by 400 million bushels sold to the Soviet Union, resulted in the highest wheat market prices in a decade. The average rose from $1.32 per bushel last July to $1.97 in November.

This year's wheat crop was more than 1.54 million bushels, down from the record of 16 billion in 1971.

Piecework pay rate for workers

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON—The revival of the piecework method of paying fruit and vegetable harvest workers has been proposed in a bill offered in the Assembly by two representatives of major fruit and vegetable producing areas.

The measure proposes to permit employers to ask for such authority from the state Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations, with the condition that the rate scales for workers would not be less than the prescribed minimum hourly wages for such work. Authors are Rep. Lary Swoboda, D-Luxemburg and Rep. Jon Wilcox, R-Wautoma.

Recruitment of workers

MADISON—The state is making plans to recruit farm workers from a labor pool of migrant workers in Texas. A statement by the Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations said it would recruit workers for camps which comply with federal migrant housing codes or the state migrant housing code.

Two state representatives will be sent to cities in Texas from March 12 to 30 to contract workers for the coming season.

Camps must provide workmen's compensation coverage if subject to the law and have provisions for keeping required wage and hour records, said the department statement.

Those wanting to have camps inspected for code compliance should contact the Paul Bishop and those seeking worker recruitment should contact Alcario Samudio also at the department.

Corporate farm bill lashed

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A modified plan for controlling corporation farming ran into opposition Wednesday in the Wisconsin legislature.

Bills to curtail control of agriculture by absentee investors have been introduced since 1969. Virtually each subsequent version has been flavored with compromise, but without winning adoption nevertheless.

Proponents of the legislation say controls are necessary to save family farms from the economic competition of corporate organizations.

They cite studies which indicate corporate farms do not lower prices for consumers despite talk of big-business efficiency.

They also cite evidence that corporations divert farm-equipment, seed and fertilizer purchases away from rural communities.

The chief sponsor of the current legislative effort is Democratic Rep. Laurence J. Day of Eland. He has the support of Gilbert C. Rohde, president of the Wisconsin Farmers Union.

"We must restrict new attempts to industrialize agriculture," Rohde told a joint hearing of the Assembly and Senate agriculture committees.

The measure would prohibit farming by corporations having more than 15 stockholders.

"I wish this bill were stronger," Rohde said.

Corporate farms may not have as big a foothold in Wisconsin as in other states, he said, but a threat exists.

Absentee corporations, he said, are careless about conservation practices, don't buy supplies from local merchants and are able to regulate wholesale food prices.

Marvin Verhulst, executive director of the Wisconsin Canners and Freezers Association, objected to the legislation.

He said the measure would increase prices, restrict competition, reduce the number of investors able to buy farm land, and chase agricultural investment money out of the state.

Another foe of the bill was Robert Walton, president of American Breeders Service of DeForest.

Walton said his firm had received a warm welcome in Colorado where the firm invested after the Wisconsin legislation was introduced in 1969.

Lawmakers cite danger to farms

MADISON—Two Marathon County lawmakers backing a bill to limit corporate farming testified here Wednesday that their measure, Assembly Bill 354, would limit the power of corporations to buy land for farming.

The lawmakers, Sen. Walter John Chilsen-R Chilsen, R-Wausau, and Rep. Laurence J. Day, D-Eland, said small family farms are threatened by large corporations that are entering agriculture.

In a joint statement before the Joint Committee on Agriculture they called for passage of the bill to limit power of corporations.

"We have seen some firms enter the farming field simply as a tax write-off, corporations have seriously threatened the bargaining power of small independent farmers who must compete in the marketplace."

The two contended that corporations can control the economics of small communities and pose a danger to such communities. Sen. Chilsen said, "We are concerned absentee ownership of large farms will adversely affect the viability of small communities, result in monopoly control of agricultural markets which could influence higher pricing of products despite decreasing profits for smaller farm operators and allow unfair competition to develop between independent operators and corporate farmers seeking a tax loss." Under the measure championed by the men a corporation would be allowed to acquire farm land only if it does not have more than 15 shareholders nor may it have two classes of shares. It said exceptions may be made for family corporations. The measure exempts corporations now engaged in agriculture from terms of the measure. Corporations also are exempt from terms of the measure if land is acquired by bequest or satisfaction of a mortgage providing the farm acreage is sold within five years of acquisition. The legislation carried a penalty not to exceed $1,000 per day for each day of violation.

Crop earnings show boost

WASHINGTON (AP) — Higher crop earnings increased the value of the nation's farming industry by 7.7 per cent last year $370.6 billion as of Jan. 1, preliminary figures by the Agriculture Department show.

Even counting a further upward spiral in farm debt, totaling $70.1 billion at the beginning of this year, farmers in 1972 increased their equities in holdings to a record $298.2 billion, a boost of $25.9 billion last year.

Budget cuts don't halt FHA loans

Although disaster relief and interest subsidy loan funds have been pared from federal Farmers Home Administration budgets the agency still may make loans to most applicants who would have qualified under the programs, according to Vernon Reed, supervisor of FHA programs in Outagamie and Winnebago Counties.

The agency had "quite a substantial," number of interest-credit loans, he said. Such loans could can qualify for reductions in interest to as little as one per cent.

The real difference the cut in the special loans to low-income families might make is that many will have to shop for lower-priced houses.

"They might have to go to a lower priced house that they could better afford." $bA There have been cutbacks in the organization and Reed said it may have stopped many persons from attempting to secure Farmers Home Administration loans. "...they might be a little more hesitant to come in...but if they are able to locate a house in their price class we might be able to help them." At the present time an estimated 500 persons have loans with the Outagamie-Winnebago county office. Housing loans comprise the largest category with farm ownership loans second. The agency also provides operating loans for farmers. At the present time they actually may be more total funding available for housing loans than for farm loans, said Reed. "Our farm loans are probably the tighter of the two."

Now it's 'Bullock' beef

WASHINGTON—Federal standards for beef have been revised so meat from young bulls can be graded similarly to that from steers. The meat will bear the label "Bullock," according to the United States Department of Agriculture.

The term will appear with the agriculture department quality grade shield and provide a way to identify the meat. Department officials said the new meat category would be graded the same way beef from steers now is graded.

The meat labeled "Bullock" may be more variable in quality than steer meat, said the department. Research has shown, said a statement, that, "beef from young bulls may be more variable in palatability than steer beef with the same quality-indicating characteristics."

their lean meat yield, said the department.

The older bull classes still will be graded for meat yield.

The revision of standards would not change beef grades now available in supermarkets. A department statement said "...consumers could continue to purchase USDA graded beef with complete assurance that the quality in each grade has not been changed."

Very few young bulls now are being produced for use as fresh meat, it said. Consumers cannot expect large supplies of the new "Bullock," beef at retail counters, said the statement.

At the same time the department has discontinued quality grades for beef from older bulls. Such beef is used almost exclusively in processed meat products and value differences among such carcasses depend mostly upon

Oleo tax to continue?

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Rural district legislators are rallying behind a new cause to justify the continuation of a tax on oleo-margarine which Gov. Lucey and a probable majority of representatives want to eliminate permanently.

Senate and Assembly representatives of Farm districts would continue the tax to provide funds to be used in aiding farmers to meet the anticipated costs of pollution control measures in their agricultural operations.

Controls explicitly designed to prevent surface water pollution through nutrient run-off from agricultural lands are now being evolved by the state Department of Natural Resources through an act of the 1971 legislature. Compliance could require substantial expenditures for some farmers, especially those who operate feedlots.

The present tax is five and one quarter cents a pound, and produces about $2,500,000 yearly for the state treasury.

The plan to tie its extension to a

Check on equipment

MADISON — Now when milking equipment or milk hauling gear is installed operators must provide farmers with a signed statement that the gear meets specifications of the state agriculture department.

The statement is required according to a change in codes which went into effect Jan. 1, according to an agriculture department statement. It applies both to Grade A and manufacturing grade milk operations.

Earlier standards required approval by the agriculture department before milking equipment could be installed on a Grade A dairy operation. Now installers must provide signed statements that their equipment meets state specifications after it is installed.

The advance notice isn't required when farmers of manufacturing milk install new systems but installers still must provide a statement pledging the quality of the equipment.

Norman Kirshbaum, administrator of the food and standards division of the department, called the code change a major step forward for the dairy industry.

The need for state standards was expressed at a joint legislative hearing reviewing mastitis problems in 1971.

farmer aid program would phase out the levy in stages until 1977, when it would be permitted to lapse.

During the interim the state department of agriculture would make special grants to operators of farms who are required by Department of Natural Resources orders to make expenditures for pollution controls.

The grants to individual operators would be equivalent to the interest charges on such expenditures.

Among the authors of the plan are Reps. David O'Malley D-Waunakee and Lewis Mittness D-Janesville, chairman of the Assembly committees on Agriculture and Natural Resources, respectively.

State POWs listed

MILWAUKEE (AP) — More prisoners of war from Wisconsin are being released from Vietnam prison camps, the Pentagon said Thursday.

"You can just imagine the load that was lifted off my shoulders," Mrs. Frank Hess of La Crosse said after hearing that her son is among more than 130 POWs to be freed by the North Vietnamese during the weekend.

Air Force Lt. Col. Gordon A. Larson, 44, was shot down in May, 1967, and had been paraded through the streets of Hanoi by his captors.

He has listed Winona, Minn., and La Crosse as home. His wife and three children live in San Antonio, Tex.

Others on the release list include:

Capt. Fredric R. Flom, 32, of Appleton, shot down in August, 1966. His parents live in Menasha. His wife and their two children live in Appleton.

Lt. Cmdr. William J. Metzger Jr., whose mother teaches school in Wisconsin Rapids. He was captured in May, 1967, after parachuting when his jet was disabled during a Hanoi bombing raid.

Metzger's wife, Bonnie, an Appleton native who now lives in Annandale, Va., has relatives in the Fox Valley.

Her grandmother, Mrs. Rose Strutz, was celebrating her 80th birthday at Oneida Heights when a prisoner of war agreement was revealed in January.

Mrs. Strutz was notified Thursday of Metzger's impending freedom.

Bonnie Metzger's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Darold Schade, moved from Appleton to rural Stevens Point. A number of Mrs. Metzger's relatives, in the Schade and Strutz families, live in and near Appleton.

Viet Cong stall on POW release

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. delegation announced tonight that North Vietnam has informed it 106 American prisoners will be released in Hanoi on Sunday, but that the release of 30 other U.S. prisoners by the Viet Cong, scheduled for Hanoi at the same time, had hit a snag.

The dispute that the U.S. delegation said threatens to delay the release of the 30 American POWs is between the Viet Cong and the South Vietnamese over the number of Communist military prisoners to be released by the Saigon government in South Vietnam.

A statement from the U.S. delegation to the four-party Joint Military Commission said the Viet Cong notified the U.S. side that 30 American prisoners and four foreigners would be released in Hanoi, but refused to give a date. A spokesman said this meant that the Viet Cong were stalling and threatening to delay the release.

Asked for comment on the U.S. statement, a Viet Cong spokesman declared: "The 34 prisoners will be released on Sunday at Gia Lam airport."

Told again that the U.S. statement said the Viet Cong refused to give the American side the date of release for the 34 detainees, the spokesman said he had been told by a superior an hour before the statement was issued that the 34 prisoners would be freed on Sunday at Gia Lam.

The U.S. spokesman, asked about the Viet Cong statement, replied: "For three hours this afternoon, they told us they could not give us a date of release for the 34. They said they would ask their chief and would have to wait for an answer."

"They're playing games. They are a bunch of liars. Our people repeatedly ask this question: 'Will you give us the date?' They said they could not but would tell us later."

"They tell newsmen one thing and they tell us another."

The Viet Cong spokesman said the dispute centered over the number of Communist military prisoners the Saigon government would release parallel with the American release.

By "common agreement," he asserted, each party will release a fourth of the POWs it holds each time. He added, however, that the South Vietnamese representative said today Saigon would release only 3,000 military prisoners, when the number should be about 7,000.

"This is not consistent with what the republic of Vietnam representative agreed upon," the spokesman said. "The South Vietnamese hold more than 26,000 military prisoners and they should release about 7,000 this time."

The U.S. delegation said arrangements for the release of 106 Americans and two Thais held by the North Vietnamese "will go forward."

The Viet Cong had actually handed the United States a list of 34 prisoners captured in South Vietnam, including two Filipinos and two Germans.

The statement from the U.S. delegation said: "The release date of the 34 detainees persons held by the Provisional Revolutionary Government (Viet Cong) will be the subject of further communications between the delegations."

The U.S. statement was issued shortly after the second of two meetings today by the four-party Joint Military Commission's subcommittee on prisoners. Spokesmen for both sides reported no progress in resolving the dispute.

Another meeting is scheduled for Saturday, the U.S. spokesman said.

Earlier, the Viet Cong delegation had announced to newsmen that it would release the 34 persons captured in South Vietnam on Sunday at Hanoi's Gia Lam airport at the same time North Vietnam released its 108 prisoners.

Later a Communist spokesman said an impasse had developed over Vietnamese prisoner exchanges and threatened to block release of the 30 Americans.

Also affected are two Germans and two Filipinos on the Viet Cong list of 34 handed to the U.S. delegation to the Joint Military Commission today.

The spokesman indicated the dispute between the Saigon government and the Viet Cong would not affect the release of 106 American servicemen and two Thais by North Vietnam.

"From the point of view of the Provisional Revolutionary Government, the release of POWs is blocked by this issue," the spokesman said. He said this includes American and other foreign prisoners of the Viet Cong as well as Vietnamese.

He added that efforts were being made to resolve the dispute.

U.S. spokesmen were not immediately available for comment.

Sudan to fly hostages, Arab guerrillas to U.S.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Middle East News Agency said today the Sudanese government has agreed to provide a plane to fly Arab guerrillas and their hostages to the United States from Khartoum.

The Egyptian agency said in its dispatch from Khartoum that the guerrillas, holding the U.S. ambassador and four other diplomats, also demanded that two members of Sudan's Cabinet go with them on the flight to the United States. This was refused, the agency reported.

The dispatch was filed about an hour after the deadline set by the guerrillas, members of the Palestinian Black September organization, for the execution of their hostages if their demands were not met.

There was no immediate explanation why the guerrillas wanted to come to the United States.

After seizing the hostages Thursday during a reception at the Saudi Arabian Embassy in Khartoum, the guerrillas demanded the release of dozens of colleagues held in Jordan and freedom for Sirhan B. Sirhan, convicted assassin of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy in 1968 now serving a life term in California. But they were reported to have eased these demands.

The Egyptian dispatch said the guerrillas wanted Foreign Minister Mansour Khaled and Information Minister Omar Haj Nousa of Sudan to go along on the flight to the United States but the government "totally rejected" this.

Two Americans are among the hostages: Ambassador Cleo A. Noel Jr. and the U.S. charged'affaires, G. Curtis Moore. The reception was in Moore's

12 nations sign agreement to end intervention in Indochina

PARIS (AP) — Twelve governments of East and West gave the Vietnam peace settlement the seal of world approval today.

The act was performed in a ceremonial signing by the foreign ministers of the Big Five powers, the contending regimes in Vietnam and the four countries supervising the peace.

A week of hectic diplomacy — mainly between the United States and North Vietnam — had preceded agreement on a four-page declaration binding outsiders to quit meddling in the affairs of all Indochina.

It also set up a system to deal with violations of the peace agreements.

Both sides made concessions at the five-day conference to reach unanimous agreement on the declaration. Canada, South Vietnam and Britain expressed disappointment that more effective measures were not adopted.

Rogers and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko expressed satisfaction with the declaration. North Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Duy Trinh and the Viet Cong foreign minister, Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, were elated.

"We are very happy with what has been achieved," Mrs. Binh told newsmen at a reception she gave last night to celebrate.

For the first time, American and South Vietnamese officials turned up at a social function organized by Mrs. Binh in the name of the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government. But Rogers and Saigon's foreign minister, Tran Van Lam, stayed away.

The nine-point declaration was initiated yesterday by representatives of the United States, Britain, France, China, the Soviet Union, North and South Vietnam, the Provisional Revolutionary Government and the four members of the International Cease-fire Commission — Canada, Indonesia, Poland and Hungary.

The declaration provides that the former belligerents or the members of the control commission can circulate reports on cease-fire violations to the signers of the declaration and to Waldheim. In case of serious violations or the threat of a new Vietnam war, any six signatory governments can reconvene the 12-power conference to consider appropriate action.

The declaration did not specify what action a future conference might take.

For the United States, the importance of the declaration lay in linking the Soviet Union and Communist China with the peace settlement. American officials believed that the two Communist superpowers' support could act as a decisive restraint on Hanoi.

The major Western nations attending the conference were reported agreed that establishment of diplomatic relations with North Vietnam is inevitable, but they differ over timing.

Informed diplomats said France favors swift recognition of the Hanoi government in the wake of the signing of the declaration today, while the United States takes the view normalization of relations should come after a steady process of improvement.

Britain's position is in the middle. It wants to keep more or less in step with the other members of the European Common Market but doesn't want to embarrass the U.S. administration by moving too quickly.

The Common Market countries have agreed to coordinate their policies as far as possible. One member, Denmark, has recognized Hanoi, and the British and French maintain consular missions in the North Vietnamese capital.

Casuse, who was president of the Indian Kiva Club at the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque, had opposed Garcia's recent appointment as a university regent. Casuse objected to the mayor's interest in a liquor store near the reservation, contending the store contributed to Indian alcoholism.

Casuse's body was found just inside the front door, the district attorney said. An autopsy was ordered.

Indians break off negotiations

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (AP) — Sen. George S. McGovern said early today that a negotiating session with representatives of the 200 Indians who had taken over this historic hamlet "ended on a jarring note" when the militants were informed that the home of one of their leaders was fire-bombed while the parley was under way.

Word of the reported firebombing "stirred them up pretty much," said Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., who was also at the negotiating session.

The senators said the situation before dawn was very tense.

The new tension flared several hours after the militants had released 11 hostages they had held since taking over the village late Tuesday.

The 11 who were freed declined to leave the village, preferring to remain in their hometown.

McGovern, also a South Dakota Democrat, said the report of the fire-bombing of the home of Aaron Desersas in nearby Pine Ridge became known as the meeting drew to a close.

Desersas is national communications director for the American Indian Movement (AIM), whose members were prominent in the takeover here. Pine Ridge is about 15 miles southwest of Wounded Knee.

It was not known whether Desersas was among the militants still barricaded at Wounded Knee.

It was reported that Desersas' wife was injured in the fire, which caused moderate damage to the rear of the building.

Police officials in Pine Ridge refused comment.

McGovern said the 15 Indian leaders who spoke with the senators "were very disturbed about the fire-bombing ... but it underscores the danger that exists here."

McGovern said the Indians "gave every indication that they expected to face charges."

He said they did not mention amnesty but were interested in learning what charges would be placed against them, and what the bail might be.

The senator said they advised the Indians to meet with Department of Justice officials, who have surrounded the tiny hamlet since Wednesday morning, to discuss an end to the armed conflict.

World money sale shut off

LONDON (AP) — Official exchanges around the world closed down today in hopes that a long weekend would halt the selling wave against the dollar. But dealings on free markets and in banks sent the dollar's value down again.

In London the pound rose to $2.51½ on the unofficial market, continuing its rise from the $2.40 level before the official devaluation of the dollar last month.

The dollar sank in Paris and Frankfurt.

In Paris the dollar slumped to 4.5005 francs from 4.4950 Thursday and the French central bank had to step in with support buying. After more than an hour of this the exchange was ordered shut.

The dollar sank to 2.7450 marks in Frankfurt, far below its floor value of 2.8350.

The dollar's sharp nose dive on world markets Thursday prompted the halt in official dealings.

Hundreds of American tourists in Madrid found most private banks refusing to take their dollars and had to line up at the Bank of Spain to get their money changed.

The few Spanish banks that did take dollars offered only 53 to 56 pesetas per dollar, well below the official floor level of 58.02 at which the Spanish central bank normally would intervene with support buying.

Americans in Paris discovered their dollar had shrunken to only 4.24 francs at the First National City Bank, down from 4.40 Thursday.

In Zurich the dollar skidded to an all-time low of 3.05-3.08 Swiss francs in interbank trading, and among banks which offered any rate at all for travelers the dollar bought only 3 francs. Then it recovered somewhat, to 3.1150-3.1250.

But it was the big money holders that had set off the crisis — multinational companies, Middle East oil countries, banks and private investors. They were unloading their dollars by the millions for West German marks, and other European currencies on a bet that there would be weekend developments that would in effect mean an unofficial devaluation of the dollar.

Government ministers and economic leaders met to discuss how to cope with

Gallup mayor injured, would-be kidnaper dies

GALLUP, N.M. (AP) — Two young Indians who the mayor of Gallup says posed as reporters and marched him from his office at gunpoint arrived here after forcing a 20-year-old university student to drive them from Albuquerque, police say.

Mayor Emmett Garcia, 35, suffered a superficial gunshot wound and facial lacerations after escaping his captors by diving through a plate glass window.

One of the abductors, Larry Casuse, 20, was found dead of an apparently self-inflicted gunshot wound after an ensuing gun battle, according to authorities.

Police identified the second abductor as Bob Nakaitinae, 20, of Fort Defiance, Ariz. He was to be arraigned today by Gallup Magistrate Lidio Rinaldi on kidnapping and burglary charges.

Gallup police said Nakaitinae also was charged with kidnapping a University of New Mexico student, Delbert Rudy, earlier Thursday.

Officers said the two Indians forced Rudy to drive them the 138 miles from Albuquerque to Gallup. Rudy escaped unharmed and notified police after taking the two men to the Gallup City Hall.

Casuse was a resident of Mexican Springs on the Navajo Reservation that begins about 10 miles north of this community of 14,000.

Dist. Atty. Louis DePauli said Casuse died of a shotgun wound under the chin that "appears to have been self-inflicted."

Nixons provide lavish evening for Israeli Prime Minister Meir

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon provided a gala evening at the White House for visiting Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir, with lavish praise for the Jewish leader who "had her roots in our country."

Nixon predicted that Milwaukee-raised Mrs. Meir would "play a great role" in building peace in the Middle East. He said achieving that peace would not be "easy ... soon or instant."

But he suggested that the "enlightened courageous and strong"

leadership that built an independent Israel and has defended it "has the genius" to provide real peace and security in that area.

In a champagne toast, the President said the 120 guests at Thursday night's steak dinner was made up of Mrs. Meir's friends and admirers.

The gathering included members of the Cabinet, congressmen, big Nixon campaign contributors. The guests ranged from the chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, Paul Zuckerman of Livonia, Mich., to John Connally of Texas, who jokingly sidestepped reporters' queries about his future political plans.

Even 89-year-old Alice Longworth, daughter of President Theodore Roosevelt, turned out, along with Nixon's newly named woman ambassador to Luxembourg, Mrs. George Farkas of New York City.

National-security adviser Henry A. Kissinger was seated between two women—international lawyer and Nixon campaigner Rita Hauser of New York and dark-haired singer Lainie Kazan of Beverly Hills. He told them "some people seem to forget that I'm Jewish."

the widespread dumping of U.S. currency.

Prime Minister Edward Heath of Britain and Chancellor Willy Brandt of West Germany were meeting in Bonn, but spokesmen said they would not decide any new monetary moves before conferring with other members of the Common Market.

Widespread belief that Heath and Brandt would agree on a joint float of Common Market currencies apparently touched off the run on the dollar Thursday.

"It's not really a decision-making meeting," British spokesman Donald Maitland said.

But his remarks and those of Bonn spokesman Ruediger von Wechmar appeared to indicate Brandt and Heath were trying for a common assessment of the situation which they could pass on to other capitals.

New AEC head has to move; motor home violates ordinance

FREDERICK, Md. (AP) — Dixy Le Ray, the new chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, is going to have to move because her motor home violates a Frederick County ordinance.

Dr. Ray lives in a 28-foot self-contained motor home on a dairy farm here and uses the farm's power lines and occasionally its water.

J. Alfred Cutsall, county zoning administrator, said Thursday the owners of the farm had been sent a letter saying county laws make it illegal to live in a motor home in the county.

Dr. Ray said she was not disturbed because she had planned to move anyway "within a matter of weeks."

Pianist Van Cliburn entertained the dinner guests and 100 others invited for the East Room concert. He played Chopin and Debussy for 45 minutes and took two encores for 10 minutes.

Nixon hailed Cliburn's performance, saying he had "never before heard anything like the brilliance, feeling and sheer genius that we heard tonight."

He told Mrs. Meir "that is the essence we have for you, your people and your country."

The President also saluted Israel's departing ambassador, Yitzhak Rabin.

"May our two countries always stand together in the course of peace and independence and freedom for all people," Nixon concluded his toast.

In her response, Mrs. Meir said it is Israel's greatest dream to cooperate and live in peace with its neighbors—"to cross the borders not with tanks but with tractors" and to build together an area where people can be happy.

"Mr. President," she concluded, "when that great day comes, and I am convinced that it will come, we will always remember that in days of sorrow and difficulties and danger, we were not alone, we had a friend."

Penal reform under fire

BY TIM WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — Gov. Patrick J. Lucey's budgetary proposal to close the Green Bay Reformatory and Central State Hospital for the Criminally Insane next year continued to draw blistering heat Thursday in the wake of outspoken opposition Tuesday at a state Senate hearing in Green Bay.

Lucey's proposal drew few supporters when considered by the Legislature's joint committee on finance — while dozens of speakers spent the day attacking the proposals and drawing repeated applause from an audience of more than 300 that crowded the state Assembly chambers here.

Lucey's call for the closing won vocal backing as well from a sizable but distinctly minority segment of the crowd — and won its main backing from a Lucey appointee on the state Health and Social Services Board and from Joe Nusbaum, Lucey's secretary of administration.

Spokesmen for two taxpayer groups also backed the Lucey plan, contending that taxpayers want unnecessary state institutions closed, but Sen. James Swan, R-Elkhorn, charged that the Lucey closing plans will result in increased tax spending because of the boosted costs of alternative corrections proposed by Lucey.

Harry Schmidt, Nusbaum's top lieutenant and state budget director, blasted Health and Social Services Department officials for revealing "for the first time" Tuesday that prison population declines have ended, that populations have leveled off and that the 1,900 average daily prisoners projected count for the next two years that the Lucey plan is based upon probably will not be reached.

Nusbaum said that even if prison populations climb rather than continue to fall, the reformatory and Central State closings can be carried out. Overflow populations can be housed temporarily in other institutions, such as the then-vacant Central State Hospital facilities, said Nusbaum.

State Corrections Division Director Sanger Powers countered that the reversal of the prison population trends first started showing up about three months ago. By the time it was apparent that the 1,900 average daily population projection would be too low for the coming two years, it was too late

P-C Madison Bureau

MADISON — Gov. Patrick J. Lucey moved Thursday to visit Green Bay to head off mounting opposition to his proposal to close the state reformatory as the institution's union president called the Lucey plan "a license to steal."

Lucey will visit the city on March 19 to make public appearances defending his controversial budget proposal and to meet with officials of Reformatory Local 32 of the Wisconsin State Employees Union, the executive office announced — as Local 32 President Jerry Tierney of Green Bay was delivering blunt criticisms of the closing plans to intent lawmakers.

In an appearance before the Legislature's Joint Committee on Finance, Tierney drew rapt attention as he broke down the costs of keeping the Reformatory open — and warned of the consequences of closing the institution, as proposed in Lucey's 1973-75 budget.

"The cost of the Reformatory is in the millions of dollars," Tierney said of the budget being considered by the lawmakers.

"I make $8,000 a year. I just can't comprehend millions," he said.

But translated into a per person cost, the Reformatory can be kept open at a price of 75 cents per year for each resident of the state, he said.

"No one is going to jeopardize their security for 75 cents," he added.

Claims by the Lucey administration that prisoners from the Reformatory can be shifted elsewhere in the prison system to fill vacancies in other institutions are false, said Tierney, because the other institutions house specialized groups of prisoners, as does the Reformatory, he told the committee.

"They are mixing apples and oranges," he warned of administration proposals to send some Reformatory inmates to the maximum security state prison and others to a proposed youthful offenders institution.

Contentions that vastly expanded probation and parole programs can be used are also false, he indicated, echoing the arguments of other Lucey critics that over 91 per cent of all convicted

Hearing scheduled on school status

BY JOHN LEE
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

NEW LONDON — The School reorganization Committee has scheduled a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. March 22 in the senior high school gym to hear arguments on a petition requesting that the New London School District be changed from a unified to a common district.

The petition, filed with Cooperative Education Service Agency (CESA) coordinator Kenneth Poppy, by Ted Algiers, a member of the local chapter of the Wisconsin Property Owners League (WPOL), asks that the change be made "so that people may again have a direct voice in the spending of their tax dollar."

The petition was signed by about 750 persons with about 200 to 250 of the signatures coming from the City of New London, which has about half the student population and half the equalized valuation. If it is honored by the committee it will force a referendum on the issue.

Poppy, who acts as the committee's professional advisor, and secretary, said the hearing will cost taxpayers $600-$800, and "I can't imagine why."

"I can't imagine what they (the petition circulators) hope to accomplish with this," Poppy said. "New London ranks as one of the cheapest running districts and one of the best academically in the state."

While the WPOL, which has been circulating the petition since October, attempting to get the required 10 per cent of the signatures, say there is no particular issue being singled out by them, state law requires that petitioners show "just cause" as a prerequisite for school reorganization.

The group has previously criticized some district programs and policies including the sinking fund. The sinking fund is a special account set up by a municipality for a designated reason. The fund, which is closely monitored and audited by the State Department of Public Instruction, is used to pay for large capital expenditure projects, such as school building, remodeling, or furnishing, giving the district available cash to avoid long-term indebtedness.

Supt. H. J. Ramsdell said that the New London district has had various sinking funds since 1932, with the present fund, carrying a $428,865 balance, being designated for building and remodeling. The scheduled $600,000 remodeling project at Washington Junior High School will be paid for by the sinking fund, and the district will not have to borrow money on any long-term agreements.

He added that the district's indeb-

Board OKs $400 for recreation

AMHERST — The board of Tomorrow River Schools this week approved spending $400, plus making available district facilities, for a community summer recreation program initiated by the local Lions Club.

The program is for area youngsters between 7 and 14.

The Amherst Village Board will act as fiscal agent for the program. Area villages, towns and service organizations will be approached for other financial backing for the project. Robert Abbott has been appointed director of the venture. He will solicit funds and manage the program.

The scope of the program will depend on financial backing.

Also at its meeting this week, the school board approved spending $200 for the Parent-Teacher Association swimming program should the funds be necessary.

A representative of a firm which manufactures moveable classrooms will be invited to discuss the use of such facilities at a future board meeting. The board is considering alternatives to the present classroom shortage.

Contracts for administrative personnel for the 1973-74 school year were approved.

tedness is just 1.8 per cent, well below the maximum legal limit of 10 per cent of the equalized valuation.

The requested change has criticized by local, regional and state school personnel since the WPOL began.

In a letter dated June, 1972, Clifton Fonstad, of the State Department of Public Instruction, said that "changing from a unified to a common district would not improve the situation, but would instead be a step backward."

The primary difference between a unified and a common district would not improve the situation, but would instead be a step backward."

The primary difference between a unified and a common district is that administrative control and fiscal control for a common district is given to an annual meeting, while the unified district's school board approves the operational budget after a public budget hearing.

"While it may seem that electors in a common school district can exert more positive control over the school budget and the tax levy than in unified districts, this may be deceiving. Although the annual meeting may approve the budget and vote a school tax levy, both subsequently can be adjusted if the annual meeting has not voted a tax sufficient to operate and maintain the district schools," Fonstad added.

He also said that the type of district, unified, common, or city, makes no difference in the amounts of state aids that would be received.

He added that "school taxes in unified districts actually averaged slightly less than in common districts, and tended to be more uniform. Operational costs in New London were lower than state and CESA averages."

The per student cost at New London last year was $704, compared with an $832 state average and a $755 CESA average.

The letter added that "it would seem that your school board and administrators have done a pretty good job of keeping costs in line. Actually, New London's operational levy was one of the lowest in the CESA and over two mills (or $2 per $1,000 equalized valuation) below the state average."

The seven-member committee, which will meet March 22, includes Clarence Brownson of Shiocton, chairman; Francis Werner of New London; June Watts of Oshkosh; Mrs. Louise Jensen of Winneconne; Dave Lindsay of Manawa; Norman Foxgrover of Kaukauna; and George Diemer of rural Hortonville.

Boy loses transplant Without kidney again

BY ALICE CONNORS
Post-Crescent correspondent

CHILTON — Eight-year-old Lenny Schneider, who received a kidney from his mother last August, lost it last night in emergency surgery.

Lenny is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Schneider of route 4. He has spent all but about a month of his life since August at the University Hospital in Milwaukee.

He was doing well and was allowed to go home late last November for the holidays, but had to return after Christmas because the transplanted kidney was rebelling.

He was scheduled to have the surgery to remove the kidney next Monday, but the Schneiders received a call Thursday that further hemorrhaging of the arteries leading to the kidney had caused complications and that the surgery would have to be performed right then.

Because of the foggy weather conditions, the Schneiders were not able to rush to Milwaukee and had to send a telegram giving permission for the surgery. They left early today to be with their son.

Mrs. Schneider was advised by her son's doctors that, if all goes well, Lenny will be able to come home in two or three weeks. However, he will have to return to Milwaukee twice a week to be put on a kidney machine for six hours each time.

Lenny's name will be placed on a donor list in the hopes that he will be able to receive another kidney. However, no one can tell how long this might take.

The cheerful youngster's picture is on several Kidney Foundation posters located throughout the city which ask for donations in his behalf. All the money from the insurance policy for Lenny has been exhausted by his long stay at the hospital.

The Schneiders, who have one other son age 11, say that as soon as possible they hope to be trained to operate a kidney machine and perhaps be able to purchase or lease such a machine for Lenny's use at their home.

Contract is approved for Calumet employees

CHILTON — The Calumet County Board of Supervisors approved the new contract with courthouse employees who have affiliated with the State, County and Municipal Employees Local 1362.

The salaries under the new union contract follow closely the salaries set forth in the recent state personnel salary survey, according to County Clerk Donald Schwobe.

The salaries classification which include a 5 per cent economic adjustment and an additional adjustment to bring the wages up to the maximum classification as of Oct. 1 is as follows.

Deputy clerk of courts $478 up $33 to $511; deputy county clerk, $478 as of Oct.

1, up $78; register in probate and clerk of Juvenile Court, $557, up $37; deputy county treasurer, $478, up $78; secretary $436 up $26; maintenance man, $30, up $35;

Secretary and drafting aide $457, up $57; secretary $436, up $26 to $41; deputy register of deeds, $500, up $20; secretary administrative assistant I $657, up $68; case Aide II $504, up $72; clerk II $436, up $18; case Aide I $436, up $18; and clerk I $389, up $38.

In addition, the employees will receive time-and-one-half for overtime, three weeks vacation after ten years and four after 20 years. They also have 50 per cent of their retirement paid by the county and 90 days sick leave from the previous 75 days.

7 candidates in New London seek posts on school board

NEW LONDON — Six candidates from a field of seven will advance to the April general election for board of education posts after one hopeful is eliminated in Tuesday's primary.

The candidates, seeking three open seats on the board for three years each, include two incumbents, David Wenberg, 34, and Richard Gabriel, 39, both of route 4, New London, are seeking their second terms. Wenberg is the board's clerk, while Gabriel is the school board treasurer.

Wenberg, a former teacher, is the vice president of Hillshire Farm Co., has been a president of the local Jaycees. He is a member of Rotary and is treasurer of the New London Concert Association.

Gabriel is the owner and operator of Gabriel's New London Floral and is a Rotary member and a director of the Chamber of Commerce.

The other post is that currently held by Eugene Fuhrmann, a former board of education president, who is not seeking re-election.

The other five candidates include Roger Rusch, a Town of Caledonia, an agri-businessman; Cliff Gerndt, a Town of Lebanon agri-businessman; Byrne Henderson, a data processing manager at Simmons Co; Mary Lou Prochnow, the wife of a dairy farmer; and Aijeanne Ryan, a rip-saw operator at Simmons, who presently is on a leave of absence.

Rusch, 34, is a member of the New London Jaycees, the Readfield Rod and Gun Club, the London Aire Stock Club and many farming cooperatives and organizations.

Gerndt, 44, operates a dairy, beef and hog farm. He has been a director of the New London Co-op and a director of the Pure Milk Association. He was a member of the Emanuel Lutheran Board of Education for six years.

Henderson, 43, of 1417 Dexter St., has been employed at Simmons Co. for six years. He is a member of the Norris-Spencer Post 263 of the American Legion and a member of St. John's Episcopal Church. He also has been secretary-treasurer of the Valley Administrative Management Society.

Mrs. Prochnow, 31, has been a life-long resident of the area, and has worked for three years at Kimberly Clark, Corp.

Mrs. Ryan, 40, of route 2, New London, was an unsuccessful candidate for the school board in last spring's election, running third against four candidates.

important legal experience and the feeling for attitudes in people that he believes is important in a judge. He believes one must put in the hours to properly handle a case, as an attorney.

He recalled one case where his thoroughness paid off in clearing up the unanswered question of who was at fault in a two-car crash that killed four persons and left no witnesses. Recalling his FBI experience, he purchased some dental plaster and made an impression of tire prints, and then purchased the tires of the two vehicles.

The tires and cast were found to have similarities, he said, and that answered the question about fault.

Chmiel doesn't believe that judicial reform is so important as putting the right man on the bench. However, he does believe there is need for some reform.

He said that if a judge is a "working judge," who has experience and is willing to apply himself in an organized manner, the court will function effectively.

Chmiel has other ideas about what a judge is and should be.

"I think all of this has a total impact upon what a person is and what his values are," what his sensitivity is to people; whether he's a student of law; whether he applies himself, and whether he's a "man of his word."

Chmiel believes that a judge should be treated no differently than any other public official in ethical matters, and he should be accountable. He noted that perhaps he should be scrutinized more closely because "a judge is in a very

He said he has had the experiences to give him the knowledge that he believes is important in the legal profession, including the judiciary.

He said experiences important in his development go back to his 4-H Club days when he was president of the state organization and attended the national meeting. He also pointed with pride to his seven years in the Federal Bureau of Investigation as a special agent where he came in contact with all types of criminal cases.

Chmiel, a strong supporter of the police, recalled that he was conducting police training schools in Wisconsin and Connecticut long before it was popular as it is today. He said the FBI training was at a high level even back in the 1940s and it was invaluable to him.

He began his law practice in Appleton in 1948. He had attended Lawver e University on a scholarship some years before.

His practice almost spans the state, clients coming from many areas. He has

Stanley S. Chmiel, an Appleton attorney for the past 24 years, says his inclination to be thorough and well-prepared in his law practice is a characteristic that he believes would fit in very well in the requirements of a Circuit Court judge.

"By nature, I'm a very studious sort of fellow," he said. "I'm inclined to be thorough. I'm inclined to research everything I do, inclined to be prepared. I like to take into consideration all the facts."

Chmiel attempts to apply himself "quite conscientiously to a given set of facts and to the results." He adds that he has a "very deep general type of experience" in law.

He is one of three candidates for the 10th Judicial Circuit judgeship. The 10th district includes Outagamie, Shawano, Langlade and Menominee counties. Chmiel unsuccessfully sought the interim appointment to the post last summer when Judge Andrew Parnell retired.

Chmiel believes his long tenure as a practicing attorney have given him

CLINTONVILLE — Wayne Werth, 17, route 1, Bear Creek, and Michael Keeney, 17, route 2, Manawa, were arrested by the Clintonville police and charged with being minors transporting malt beverage in their possession on Feb. 17.

They appeared in County Court Branch 2 before Judge Nathan Wiese on Feb. 28 and pleaded guilty. They were each fined $75 plus costs or 10 days in jail.

CLINTONVILLE — Theodore Kopeck, 23, route 4, Waupaca, pleaded guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct Feb. 15, when he appeared in court before Judge Nathan Wiese Feb. 28 and was fined $75 plus costs. He had been arrested by the Clintonville police.

WAUPACA — Four local juvenile girls, ages 12, 13, 14 and 17 who ran away from home on Feb. 28, were picked up by the Winnebago County Sheriff's Department and returned to this county by Juvenile Officer George Meyer, appeared in juvenile court on Thursday.

Judge Nathan Wiese returned two of the juveniles to their homes after their parents advised the court that they could properly supervise the children. Two were sent to a receiving home where they will be detained until home relationships can be satisfactorily straightened out.

WAUPACA — Gary O. Dahlen, 19, of 820 Seventh St., was found guilty of contributing to the delinquency of a minor when he appeared before Judge Nathan Wiese, Thursday, in County Court Branch 2.

He was sentenced to 90 days in the county jail, then placed on one year's probation to the Wisconsin Department of Health and Social Services. The condition of his probation is that he spent the next four weekends in the county jail and pay the cost of court action and attorney fees.

Dahlen was charged with two counts, furnishing malt beverage to minors and contributing to the delinquency of a minor, following an incident on Sept. 30, 1972. Allegedly, the defendant purchased a three quarter barrel of beer, which was delivered to a Town of Farmington resident, and eight juveniles were found by law enforcement officers at a beer party in progress there.

Assistant District Attorney Terry Rebholz petitioned the court to dismiss the count of furnishing malt beverage to minors and the motion was granted. The right to trial by jury was waived.

NEW LONDON — Lee Phillips, 18, of 1217 Oshkosh St., forfeited $59 bond in Waupaca County Court Branch 2 this week after being charged with unlawful removal of property.

Phillips was recently charged by city police after he admitted taking one case of empty soda bottles from Bert's Marina, and cashing them in at a local super market for the $1.40 deposit.

NEW LONDON — The Chamber of Commerce has hired a full-time executive director to replace Harry Emans, the part-time executive secretary who is retiring. Eleanor Sussex of Fond du Lac will start her duties March 19.

She has been woman's editor of the Postage Daily Register, a buyer for the Boston Store in Milwaukee, and an administrative assistant to Dr. H. R. Halvorson, a department chairman at the University of Wisconsin. She has worked as an assistant to the public relations director of Triangle Publications in New York and was secretary to the vice president of industrial relations for the Fred Rueping Leather Co., Fond du Lac.

She also is a former vice president of the Fond du Lac County Republican Party.

Miss Sussex' duties will include dispatching all news releases and a monthly newsletter to members and nonmembers, increasing the membership, personally visiting all members and nonmembers to learn their ideas on recent issues, and working with the New London Industrial Opportunities, Inc.

George Kubisiak, the chamber president, said that the job will be a general one with many duties. He said she also may help coordinate and work with area civic groups and that her duties may be expanded to include handling retail complaints.

Emans, who has held the part-time post for 10 years, announced his retirement effective Jan. 1, but agreed to stay on until his replacement was found.

50 jobs at K-C are cut

NEENAH — A proximately 50 jobs in its Fox Valley research and engineering division will be eliminated by Kimberly-Clark Corp. as a result of a decision to make those jobs more responsive to present and future company needs through a series of management and organization changes. The cutback represents about 7 per cent of the company's research and engineering staff. Harry J. Sherrin, president, notified employees of the changes Thursday and said the company has decided to bring research and engineering closer organizationally to the businesses they serve. "We decided we must become even more responsive to the needs of the marketplace," Sherrin said. He said the amount of Kimberly-Clark research in some areas, such as pulp, will be substantially reduced, but that the company is organizing a new corporate research function tied to its long-range plans for entering new fields.

Under the reorganization, research and engineering, which had been a separate division, will be broken up into smaller units and assigned to production divisions. They will be primarily responsible for research on products of their respective divisions.

A small corporate research and engineering division will be retained, it was explained.

"The consequences of these decisions will redirect our research and engineering efforts to make them more responsive to the present and to the future," Sherrin said. "This does not mean we are cutting back on research. We expect heavy investment in highly productive research."

In announcing the change to employees, Sherrin said, "The management of change is not always easy. Some of your fellow employees will lose their jobs as a result of these moves since 50 jobs will be consolidated or eliminated." He said liberal severance allowances and vested rights under the pension plan would be provided.

Two vie for chairman at Fremont

FREMONT — The candidates were nominated for the office of chairman in the town of Fremont. Reinhold Koehler and Herbert Meydam will vie for the position which had been filled by Theodore Lantvit who is not seeking re-election.

Incumbent westside supervisor Melvin Laabs will be opposed on the April 3 election by Ethan Welch.

Albert Hahn was the only nominee for eastside supervisor, a position held by Lester Koepf who declined renomination.

Norman Hoeft will be unopposed for treasurer, while Mrs. Evelyn Reichenbach, incumbent, declined renomination.

Unopposed and nominated for re-election were Mrs. Nolda Rasmussen, clerk; William Goltz, assessor; and Edward Marquardt, constable.

At caucus it was decided that all electors of the town may vote for state superintendent of schools Tuesday, but only persons residing in the New London school district portion of the town will be voting for local school board members.

Credit Union at Clintonville to hold 14th annual meeting

CLINTONVILLE — The 14th annual meeting of the Clintonville Cooperative Credit Union will be at 7 p.m. today at Bennett's Supper club. The Credit Union, has 92 members and serves members of the Clintonville Cooperative.

Two directors will be elected for three-year terms to succeed Mildred Braun and Elva Frailing, whose terms expire.

Miss Braun, president, will report for the board of directors. Joann Breitenfeldt, Tigerton, treasurer, will present the financial statement. Reports will be given from the credit and examining committees.

WAUPACA — The sheriff's department is working with local police in the investigations of a series of recent break-ins.

On Feb. 23, the front door of the Standard Service Station, Main and Badger Street, was broken and $50 was stolen from the cash register.

On the same date the laundrette at Manawa lost $200 from coin boxes on 14 of its machines. The thieves, reportedly, used a key stolen from a Clintonville laundrette.

On Feb. 26, the home of Melvin Handrich, route 1, Weyauwega, was broken into and a stereo and 12 albums were taken. Handrich told the sheriff's department that he was absent from his home for about two and one-half hours in the early evening and that he had locked all doors.

At approximately 3 a.m., Tuesday at the B and B Shell Station, U. S. 10, Fremont, the front door was broken, but nothing was reported missing.

One hour later, on the same date, the Bartel Mobil Station, Fremont, was entered through a broken window and three cartons of cigarettes were taken.

Ski lessons attract 69 at Clintonville

CLINTONVILLE — A total of 69 skiers took advantage of the Clintonville Parks and Recreation Department's ski lesson program in 1973. Twenty-two returned to continue lessons started last year and 47 started skiing this year.

Of the total number, 10 were adults who took lessons on Thursday evenings, while others took lessons on Saturday mornings. There were 201 individual lessons taken during the Saturday morning sessions.

Seven Saturday lessons were held with one being cancelled due to inclement weather. The lessons started Jan. 6 and were completed Feb. 24.

"Congratulations are in order for all of the skiers that reached the white class and are now parallel skiers," Bud Carlson, director of the parks and recreation department said. They are Connie Sipiorski, Barb Hill, Barb Pierre, Greg Wilson, Dave McCarthy, Ann Oberhauser, Ted Kubiacyk, Cathy Caskey, Steve Patrick, Leanne Nuske and Lynda Nystrom. Lessons were held at the Navarino Ski Hills.

Next year the Saturday classes are expected to continue, the Thursday lessons probably will be expanded and a ski club likely will be formed.

15 members of Marion wrestling team named as letter winners

MARION — Fifteen members of the high school wrestling team have been awarded letters.

Numeral winners consist of five seniors, seven juniors, two sophomores and a freshman.

Three-year letter winners are Ron Krueger, a senior, and Rick Carley, junior. Two-year winners are Herb Meyer and Brian Hintz, both seniors; Randy Lohrenz, Mark Hintz, Doug Arndt, and Marty Meyers, juniors; and Jack Lohrenz, sophomore; first year winners are Mark Pike and Ben Michonski, seniors; Ken Lardinois and Darold Krueger, juniors; Tom Zindars, sophomore; and Mike Krueger, freshman.

Carley, who wrestled at 105 pounds, was named the team's most valuable member; Lohrenz, 185 pounds, was voted the most improved; Ron Krueger, 126 pounds, and Brian Hintz, 155 pounds, were named honorary co-captains.

Clintonville gymnasts finish winning season

CLINTONVILLE — Members of the girls' gymnastics team will compete in sectionals at Oconto on Saturday starting at 9 a.m. The first and second place winners in each category and at each level will go on to state competition at Preble Green Bay March 10.

Clintonville's team had its best record in three years with four wins and three losses. Wins were scored in two triangulars and two duals against Appleton East, Oconto (twice), Hortonville, Appleton West and Green Bay East. Losses were to Preble-Green Bay, Green Bay S.W., Wausau West and Cadott.

to include corrected figures in the printed budget documents, he told the committee.

The prison population figures were available in regular monthly publications of the Health and Social Services Department, and Nusbaum's analysts could have had the changing figures at any time during the process by asking for them, said Powers.

But State Rep. Gary Wilkom, D-Chippewa Falls, defended Lucey's administrative appointment by charging that officials in Powers' agency had refused to supply him with corrected figures two weeks ago, contending that the new figures were not available.

In response to questioning by Swan, Powers said corrections agency officials had not been consulted about the proposed closings or notified of them until Lucey made his public announcement of the plan.

Nusbaum charged that the outline of Lucey's possible policy was apparent to the state corrections officials as early as last August.

Nusbaum stressed fiscal results of the closing, saying that the prison system now has an excess capacity of about 1,600 beds and that all of the proposed Lucey budget changes will reduce the capacity to 2,021 beds. The proposals were based on the projected population of about 1,900 inmates — while Powers said the new projections indicate that that level will not be reached, and that the state should expect to have at least 2,100 inmates.

Nusbaum said any such overflow could be temporarily housed in other secure facilities. The state should not turn away from looking at the budgetary alternatives for the sake of saving existing institutions, existing programs and existing jobs, he said.

The programs can be replaced elsewhere at less cost than keeping the reformatory open, and state workers who lose their jobs can be helped by the state to find new employment, he added.

Powers stressed the different institutional needs of different categories of prisoners, contending that "any" prisoner cannot be slipped into "any" prison bed anywhere in the system.

Many reformatory inmates could be safely housed in the state prison at Waupun under the Lucey plan, said Powers. "Whether they were 16 or 60, they would have to be in that prison — the sheep with the wolves," he told the lawmakers.

The closing plans drew the support of Dr. Paul Glunz of Beaver Dam, a Lucey appointee to the Board of Health and Social Services. The department, he said, is spending 75 per cent of its correctional budget on 8.5 per cent of convicted offenders — those in prisons and juvenile facilities. The state cannot maintain a prison program in which half of the prison money goes for security, and less than 15 per cent of rehabilitation programs, he charged.

But Lucey's proposals drew the strong opposition of Health and Social Services Board Chairman Truman McNulty, who said Lucey cannot dispute the "facts" recently provided by the corrections division about the change in prison commitment rates.

The reformatory is near capacity now, and "you just can't mix pickles and milk" and redistribute those inmates to any state prison facility, he warned the committee.

Serious crimes, including rape, murder and burglary, sent 65 per cent of the reformatory inmates behind bars, said McNulty.

The inmates sent to Green Bay and Waupun are those who already have failed in other, milder forms of treatment programs, he said. "When you get sent to Green Bay and Waupun, you have already had it," he said of localized treatment programs.

"Don't be afraid to call the governor wrong," he told Democrats on the finance unit.

In a rare display of disunity, Lucey lost the influential backing of the state AFL-CIO during the Thursday session, as labor lobbyist Jack Rhel opposed Lucey's plan.

Labor has been a strong supporter of most Lucey programs, but under questioning from Democrats, Rhel said the state AFL-CIO agrees that prison reform is needed in the country, but warned that the specific Lucey proposals need "very serious study" before being put into effect.

Henry Duer, a Central State employee, warned that criminally insane patients cannot be housed at Mendota and Winnebago state mental hospitals — as proposed by Lucey — and the safety of regular patients there protected.

In the first two months of this year, he said, 546 hours of leave time have been granted Central State employees to recover from injuries sustained in attacks by criminally insane inmates in that specialized institution.

Retired Waupun Prison Warden John Burke repeated that warning. The regular state mental hospitals could not be used for the criminally insane without the creation of special security buildings, he said, separating the classes of patients. The criminally insane would lose their existing treatment programs and could not benefit from the programs administered for regular state mental patients, he said.

"Let's not go back to the days in which we locked the insane up in cages," said Burke.

"And you can't just move prisoners around as if they were going into another warehouse," he said of the Lucey transfer plans that are a part of the reformatory closing proposal.

Robert L. Cook, a Central State employee and a member of Lucey's controversial prison reform task force, said he opposed almost all recommendations of that group, including the call to close all prisons.

That task force was headed by Raymond Malmquist, a Madison soft drink company president.

"Mr. Malmquist resides in a rural area of Madison, and Mr. Malmquist bottles Pepsi-Cola for a living. What bottling Pepsi-Cola has to do with expertise on prisons, I don't know," said Cook.

Cook charged that the Lucey mental health task force recommended closing

Instant building

Motorists were a little surprised recently when they found a building sitting in the middle of National Avenue just east of Brillion. The building, that was in the path of the extension of Glenview Street in Brillion, was being moved out into the county by Gilbert Krueger on a flat bed truck. The timbers supporting the 30-by-20-foot building broke and neatly set the building on the ground. The building was dragged from the road, dismantled and hauled away. (Johnson photo)

Busy Twelve observe 50 years of benefaction

CLINTONVILLE — The Busy Twelve Club of St. Martin Lutheran Church celebrated its 50th anniversary at a noon luncheon Wednesday at the Hotel

Central State without ever visiting the institution or studying the programs they attacked.

The task force sent a staff assistant, lacking in training in psychiatry or medicine, to the hospital. The analyst ignored the hospital leadership and talked to a single, disgruntled employee before recommending the closing of the institution, charged Robert Pease of the Waupun prison, a former state employees union president.

Committee Co-chairman Dennis Conta, D-Milwaukee, said he believed many state citizens oppose the Lucey proposals on philosophical grounds, and that Pease partially does as well.

"But let's be honest. One of the reasons you are here today is to protect people's jobs," he told Pease.

Pease said he was concerned with the employment of current state workers, but challenged Conta to work a day as a prison guard and not be concerned about proposals to shift some inmates out of existing institutions.

Marson. The club was formed Feb. 28, 1923.

Mrs. Charles Fischer, 94, one of the two living charter members, was honored at the luncheon. The other charter member, Mrs. Louise Jesse, 97, was not able to attend.

The club meets every two weeks, at which time each member contributes a dime to the club's fund for the purchase of items for the church or for donations. In the past years, the club has furnished a pastor's office and purchased a statue of Christ and collection plates.

The club also held celebrations on its 25th, 30th and 40th anniversaries.

Since its inception, 36 women have been in the club. Whenever a member leaves, she is replaced, keeping the membership at 12.

Current members of the club are Mrs. Fischer, Mrs. R. C. Rekitzke, Mrs. Albert Lutz, Mrs. Tillie Mandrey, Mrs. Emma Marquardt, Mrs. Ella Kuschel, Mrs. Fred Jahn, Mrs. William Kluth, Mrs. Len Wegener, Mrs. Ed Peters, Mrs. Ted Lichtenberg and Mrs. Elmer Baerenwald. Mrs. Jesse lives at Greentree Nursing Home and is not active in the club.

3 more D. C. Eagles bailed out Thursday

Bail was posted Thursday for three members of a Chicago-based motorcycle gang, 13 of whom are charged with being party to rapes of two Appleton girls in and near Little Chute Sunday morning.

Released from custody were: Robert J. Wysocki, 27, 804 N. Monroe St., Little Chute, in whose house authorities claim rapes took place. The $10,000 corporate surety bond was posted by a representative of a Milwaukee bonding and insurance agency. William E. Lux and Bertram J. Siegel, both 27 and from Chicago, whose $10,000 cash bonds were posted by their wives.

That brings to four the number of defendants who have been bailed out. The other was Daniel J. LeDesma, 34, Chicago, whose $10,000 cash bond was posted by a Sauk County man late Monday.

Outagamie County jail officials were not certain how many of the remaining nine defendants would be released on bail before their next scheduled court appearance, a preliminary hearing Wednesday morning.

Those released on bail must abide by certain conditions set up by County Judge Nick F. Schaefer on Monday. The defendants must stay away from the alleged rape victims and must remain outside the county except during court proceedings.

Two of the nine still in custody are from this area. They are James P. Bloy, 21, 1513 S. Oneida St., Appleton, and Alan J. Snortum, 19, 230 Broad St., Menasha. The other seven, including one female defendant, Debra L. Achor, 22, are from Chicago.

Eleven male members of the gang, the D.C. Eagles, were given haircuts by an Appleton barber in a conference room at the jail Wednesday afternoon. Many of the men had their beards shaved off, while written requests for the barbering and the sending of suits, shirts and ties from relatives were made through Sheriff Calvin Spice.

The requests reportedly were made at the insistence of the defendants' attorney, Allan Eisenberg Jr., Milwaukee. The men had been clad in blue jail coveralls for their court appearances Monday and Tuesday.

Lucey . . .

ed persons in the state already are being handled under those programs.

There are 8,000 probation and parole cases in Milwaukee alone that have simply "disappeared" and have no contact with assigned correctional officers, he said. A quarter of that "missing" caseload could fill existing prison system beds, he added.

Pointing to gang rape charges in Little Chute involving the alleged assaults of two 15 year old Appleton girls by motorcycle gang members recently Tierney said:

"I can't conceive of people who would commit that crime being put in a community-based treatment center."

His reference was to the controversial recommendation of a Lucey task force on prison reform that called for the closing of all state prisons by 1975 and their replacement with community-based treatment programs.

Lucey refused to endorse that proposal, but moved in response to close the state Reformatory by spring, 1974, and to start moves to create a small-scale community treatment center program for prisoners.

Lucey's visit to Green Bay comes in the wake of large turnouts in opposition to his Reformatory proposal at a state Senate hearing in Green Bay this week, and after similar opposition at the finance unit meeting Thursday.

$2,300 collected during palsy telethon

CLINTONVILLE — Approximately $2,300 in cash and pledges were received from the Clintonville area in the Cerebral Palsy telethon last weekend.

A report was given by Craig Akey, chairman. He reported at the dinner meeting of the Lions Club Tuesday that $110 was collected in canisters, $850 in pledges, $215 in the fishbowl. Mayor Frank Sinkewicz received $540 in cash and pledges, and the Clintonville Chapter of the Future Homemakers of America had raised more than $580 from various projects.

Claude Chandler was program chairman and introduced Lowell Easley, a sixth grade teacher at Longfellow School, who showed slides and described how his students produced a television program in color.

A cease-fire but —

As the fighting — now called just truce violations — continues in Indochina, the need for diplomacy becomes even more important.

There is one encouraging fact that was not apparent before the official cease-fire took place. The United States and representatives of the North Vietnamese and the Vietcong are in official contact. In this there is less opportunity for miscalculations about intentions or incidents of fact. Although presumably American officials didn't believe verbatim everything they were told by the Thieu, Lon Nol, or Souvanna Phouma regimes before the cease-fire, they now have an added measure of security in trying to separate fact from fiction, right from wrong.

But the nuances are still obviously delicate.

Less than 24 hours after the cease-fire was proclaimed for Laos last week, American B-52 bombers struck alleged Communist troop positions. The Pentagon acknowledged the raids and said they had been made "at the request of the Royal Laotian Government" due to Communist violations of cease-fire regulations. If the bombing option were closed, American officials explained probably quite accurately, the former enemy might be further tempted to disregard voluntary restraints.

The incidents in Vietnam of cease-fire violations by North and South Vietnamese are easy to understand. There have been years of atrocities and deep antipathy. There still is much ambition and almost fanatical allegiance to ideology or individuals. This is human and even reasonable. But it puts the United States, anxious to get out, in a difficult position. It does not dare always to respond to demands for help like that "request of the Royal Laotian Government." But obviously the United States cannot let this go too far.

The head of the Canadian delegation to the International Control Commission has warned that his country will withdraw from the commission if the violations continue unchecked and there is no way to deal with them. Canada was reluctant to become part of the team in the first place. It recognized the difficulties ahead in maintaining a truce in a country with no established lines of demarcation between the opposing forces and decades of deep hatreds and fears. It probably also foresaw the difficulties of dealing with the United States, anxious to get out but aware of remnants of responsibility.

When the cease-fire was announced there may have been premature happiness in this country, particularly with the early return of some of our prisoners of war. But it isn't all over yet.

Tax assessment reform

Secretary Edward Wiegner of the state department of revenue, an energetic young man who is not averse to lecturing the legislature about the defects he has observed in the tax administration machinery since he arrived two years ago, has offered a number of provocative suggestions to the legislature for reform.

Gov. Lucey has embraced most of them in his budget bill now before the legislature, and it is unfortunate that the governor chose to obscure them in that bulging document.

One of them is a bold plan for beefing up the state's "equalization" calculations for the administration of the property tax which remains after two decades of tax revision far and away the most important of all the public revenue gatherers in this state. Government has an unfortunate tendency to employ words that have no popular understanding, or very little. Literally, "equalization" is the process by which the state undertakes to define the "true" value of property liable for taxation, as distinguished by "assessed" value as established by the local government. Typically assessed values are low, but whether they are low or high is not especially important to the taxpayer if the same ratio is applied to all owners and all properties. Most owners of homes, farms, stores, factories, whatever, understand that clearly enough.

Unfortunately, the evidence is plentiful that many of them do not understand "equalized" values, and that much of the angry rebellion about property taxation can be traced to such lack of understanding.

The "equalized" or "true" value is needed in each locality for scores of practical reasons. Taxes for the operation of counties, many school districts and other governmental entities require a calculation of actual value to safeguard against inequities that would inevitably arise out of the use of varying local assessment ratios. More important, such a consistent method of valuation is indispensable for the correct and fair distribution of many forms of state assistance distributed according to the economic capacity of a locality.

The best illustration is provided in state school aid, which is enormously important to all local taxpayers because it has provided an increasingly higher share of the money required for the operation of the rapidly rising local school budgets. Under traditional practice, the state has established "equalized" values for local districts by random samplings, but has provided a more intensive reexamination at 6-year intervals. In a time of rapid economic change, the hazards in a lag of six years are obvious. A new table of equalized values may mean, and has often meant, the abrupt withdrawal of heavy sums of state school subsidies and, inevitably, an inordinate boost in the local school tax rate. Many of the angry rebellions of the last year in rural and quasi-rural situations resulted from precisely such rude and abrupt and unexpected valuation revisions.

Mr. Wiegner now proposes to keep the equalized values up to date, with a substantial enlargement of the state assessment staff. Many of his other ideas will be challenged, some of them justly. But this reform ought to be accepted by the legislature which already has dawdled too long on the issue.

The conservatives will arise again

Evil, they say, is in the eye of the beholder. So are a lot of other things.

Take the political views of William Rusher, publisher of National Review, the conservative, successful and highly readable weekly magazine.

Conservatives, writes Rusher, "are alive and well; they will very definitely be around in 1976; and they may even, just possibly, elect one of their number to the Presidency that year." Rusher takes this view not just because of any interpretation of Nixon's landslide as one for the conservatives even though Spiro Agnew was on the ticket. Instead he writes, "it is clear that the really historic political event of 1964 was not Lyndon Johnson's election but Barry Goldwater's nomination by the GOP. For this signaled the capture of the Republican party from its longtime Eastern masters."

If it follows that the possession is still intact despite National Review's disillusion with President Nixon, what does that say about the Democratic party? Senator George McGovern was portrayed sometimes during last fall's campaign as the Democrat's Goldwater — that is he was too far out in the field, unable to appeal to the moderate majority of Americans, sort of something for the party to have a binge on once only and get out of its system once and for all. Instead was McGovern's nomination really a capture of the party by the young, the visionary, the ultra liberal? If, as Rusher says, the control of the Republicans is now in the hands of the South and of the West is that the Democrats in the North, the urban, the minorities, the East?

But Rusher warns that things in 1976 depend a lot upon what That Man in the White House does in his last term. "Will the voters... be looking for a Republican candidate they can elect, or merely for one they can lynch?" Apparently Rusher doesn't believe the latter is what happened in 1964 for the Republicans and 1972 for the Democrats.

Lucey courting business, industry

MADISON — An article of faith among Republicans for a couple of generations has been the idea that a favorable state climate for industry and commerce is best assured under the guardianship of a Republican government at the state Capitol.

Conversely, a cardinal point in the orthodox Democratic creed in the years of the rise of the Democratic party was a profound conviction that Republicans were too friendly to the businessmen and therefore not to be trusted with the management of state affairs.

Trying to attract investors

Yet today, with the most important of the traditional Democratic vote blocs secured and loyal, Gov. Patrick Lucey and his administration Democrats are holding out a plateful of goodies for the industrialist, the merchant, the investor, the business manager and others of traditional Republican inclination that even the Republicans did not conceive when they had the power.

Curiously, the deliberate courting of business by the state administration has been little noticed in a public way — which no doubt suits the subtle man in the executive office perfectly. The business community is aware of what is going on, and while some of its more literate members — in political terms — may be somewhat taken aback, they are also and obviously delighted.

Two years ago the Lucey regime revoked, in effect, a tacit agreement of the partisan politicians, the unions, and other forces that corporation tax liability should not be boosted.

In fact, it had not been raised in half a century. The state was wedded to the idea that a preferable method of extracting revenue was through the individual, employee, manager, stockholder, etc. But the corporation franchise (income) tax was revised upward. The managers and owners of business were tapped again when the administration revised all existing bracket rates of the individual income tax and then added new rates for additional upper brackets, for the first change of its kind in many years.

Personal property relief

But the emphasis is now precisely reversed. Businessmen are offered another round of relief from personal property taxation, a burdensome item in some categories of enterprise. Commerce and industry also stand to gain from additional infusions of state funds into local treasuries for the stabilization, or literal reduction, of local property taxes which are levied without regard to the prosperity or solvency of businesses.

These have had cursory publicity. But almost nothing has been told about another concession to industry, which in some instances may be more important than the others. It would revise further the apportionment of corporation tax liability for those firms whose primary markets are outside the state — which includes most of the major employers.

That formula revision two years ago was calculated to cut corporation taxes $8 million yearly. The additional change will mean another harvest of about $6 million a year, according to the market characteristics of particular corporations.

Concessions such as these, as the governor could not resist remarking recently, would have been difficult for a Republican administration to volunteer — especially if there had been Lucey Democrats on watch in legislative seats.

But the courtship is yet more ardent. Business Development Secretary William Kidd, a Lucey man, says he is working on yet some other measures that would sweeten the Wisconsin business climate with respect to tax costs.

May lower assessments

Revenue Secretary Ed Wiegner talks glowingly of the benefits to entrepreneurs and corporations of his plan to put industrial property assessment under state jurisdiction. He does not explicitly promise lower assessments, but he does not object if that impression is imprinted on the minds of listeners.

Asked about Wisconsin rules requiring full tax liability for capital gains on state income returns, he does not answer explicitly, but leaves an impression of sympathetic interest in a good question.

Such tidings are the result of happenstance, of course. Lucey's treasury will be overflowing. He can spend generously, and he can forgive tax liability, that of his hereditary opponents included. The luck of the Irish, as he would say.

Education no longer criterion of ability

It was in "The Gondoliers," I believe, that W. S. Gilbert coined the immortal line, "When everybody's somebody, nobody's anybody." In that mythical, musical land of Barataria, every citizen was given a noble title, so that a title meant absolutely nothing.

It may be one of Parkinson's Laws, or a part of Peter's Principles, that credentials get diluted as they expand. A half-century ago, only two per cent of the population was graduated from college, and so a B.A. had some distinction; today, there are so many Ph.D.s that even a post-graduate title needs bolstering in order to assure a good job.

When I started playing bridge in the 1930s, there were only a handful of Life Masters, the highest class, and the title really meant something then. Today there are 14,000 Life Masters in the U.S., some of whom can hardly tell a diamond from a spade, and the Bridge League has been forced to invent some new categories above it, such as Grand Master and International Grand Master.

For, obviously, the difference between the top 100 players in the country and the other 13,900 Life Masters is as vast as the gap that divides Life Masters from novices. All titles get diluted as they expand to take in more and more people.

This is why it is so pathetic to see the government pleas for dropouts to acquire high school diplomas. Perhaps 50 years ago, this diploma stood for something, when less than half the adults had one. But now, with more than a third of youth pressing on to college, even the college degree has lost something of its cachet. Which college you attend has become far more important than the mere possession of a B.A.

Indeed, during the 1970 unemployment slump in the U.S., those who were hardest hit were those with the most academic credentials. It was Ph.D.s in the sciences who felt the impact when Boeing retrenched, and when government war contracts were cut back. A general worker can far more easily transfer from one job to another than a specialist in microbiology or organic chemistry.

In a book published around that time, "Education and Jobs: The Great Training Robbery," Ivan Berg found that credentials may simplify the work of personnel officers but don't tell much about the ability of the holders. In the armed forces, for instance, high school graduates were not regularly and markedly superior to nongraduates, and training on the job turned out to be more important than any academic preparation.

There are so my dropouts from college today because many feel that the degree is no longer worth the effort. Like Barataria, when everybody's got one, nobody's got anything that's worth very much.

Women feel press belittles efforts

WASHINGTON (KFS) — The curious way in which television and newspapers covered the convention of the National Organization for Women here last week offers a good illustration of the equal rights movement's complaint that men refuse to take women seriously.

Journalism, according to myth, is one of the more enlightened and liberal professions. But the media, for the most part, gave little hint of that in their approach to the sixth annual gathering of the nation's largest feminist organization, which claims some 40,000 members in 400 chapters.

Like most power structures, newspapers and television are dominated by men, who comprise 99 per cent of the editors, publishers, political commentators, producers, and camera personnel. They decide what makes news and how. With the remarkable exception of the New York Times, they, incredibly chose to view the convention in sexist terms rather than as the political and socio-economic force that it is.

News Stories Buried

Roughly 75 per cent of the reporters assigned to cover the convention were female; in many newspapers, including the Washington Star, their stories wound up on the social and family pages. The Washington Post did not send a reporter to cover the convention until its final day. In the meantime, it ran wire service stories, one of which dwelt on a proposed resolution opposing discrimination based on sexual preference which had been pushed by a lesbian organization. The story ignored several dozen other similarly pending resolutions on major legal, political and economic issues of concern to women.

Two of the three network camera crews present for debates on all the resolutions turned on their lights and filmed only those involving rape, prostitution, and lesbianism. None of these three issues provoked much controversy and the resolutions were relatively blandly worded. The resolution on rape, for instance, merely created a panel to write a model law on the subject.

Men directed both camera crews involved. The women delegates realized the pattern of the networks' interest when the camera lights went on the third time, on the issue of rape. A roar of outrage swept across the ballroom, and an angry proposal to throw out the cameras was greeted with a standing ovation. "I don't blame them," a reporter at the press table said in a loud voice. But Virginia Caraballo, the organization's vice president, persuaded the convention to allow all media representatives to stay in the room.

United Press International led its story on a press conference held by NOW founder Betty Friedan with her remarks encouraging male participation in the equal rights movement. It was apparently the sexiest thing she said, but it was hardly news. NOW has tried to win male participation and cooperation since its inception. "Join Forces With Men, Women Told," one headline read.

This columnist did not read every paper's coverage of the NOW convention. But of the several papers studied in this area, only the New York Times seemed to treat the event as a straight newsworthy subject, emphasizing NOW's plans for the future and its overall convention activities.

Ms. Caraballo told the group, "We know what we have overcome by way of biased coverage and we know the truth has a way of prevailing." She appears to be something of an optimist.

Joint debate planned for 2 societies

100 YEARS AGO
Crescent, March 1, 1873.

The Joint Debate between the Oshkosh Rhetorical Society and the Fond du Lac Debating Club, so long the bone of contention between members of both associations, comes off in this city in the Chapel of Lawrence University on the evening of March 7th.

The question for discussion is as follows: "Resolved, That a Monarchical form of government is better adapted to the presentation of a war than a Republican form of government. The Oshkosh Society will take the affirmative and the Fond du Lac Society the negative side of the same. Each side will be represented by three speakers each, the whole debate taking 2 hours and 20 minutes in length. A large number of citizens from both the rival towns are expected and, of course, our own people will turn out.

Friday, Feb. 27, 1948.

George P. Paltzer was elected chairman of the St. Theresa Parish Cub Pack and Oliver J. Mathy was named cub-master.

E. H. Smith, Waupaca, was elected a director of the Wisconsin State Bottlers Association at the annual convention in Milwaukee.

Mrs. John Christmas was elected president of the Mount Mary Alumnae Association. Mrs. John Milhaupt was named vice president; Mrs. Gordon Gill, corresponding secretary; Miss Constance Vaughn, recording secretary, and Miss Rosemary Heeneenen, treasurer.

10 YEARS AGO
Friday, March 1, 1963.

Benefit Circle, King's Daughters, was sponsoring the concert appearance of the Kansas Philharmonic Orchestra later in March. Mrs. Dexter Wolfe was chairman of the patron committee; Mrs. William Playman was ticket chairman, and Mrs. Russel Berggren publicity chairman.

The Merry Mixers Square Dance Club was holding a session and potluck supper the coming Sunday in Wrightstown Legion Hall. Chairmen for the event were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Staidl, Little Chute; Mr. and Mrs. Myron Kerkhoof, Kaukauna.

The newly organized auxiliary to World War I Veterans were chartered that week with 32 members. Mrs. Louis Micheln was the group's first president.

Tourist area health care funding sought

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — A state government that spends a million dollars yearly to attract tourists to its vacation centers owes it to them to give them public health protection, says Dr. George H. Handy, state health officer.

Dr. Handy has asked the legislature's finance committee, now considering the biennial state budget bill, to authorize the staffing of an eighth field service office of his agency that has long been authorized but which has not yet been provided with operating funds.

The office would serve a broad section of northwestern Wisconsin which is one of the major centers of tourist trade each summer, and increasingly in the fall and winter seasons.

It is now insufficiently served by the staffs of existing field offices at Eau Claire and Rhinelander, according to the health agency. The eighth office proposed for staffing would be in Ashland.

The eight district system was applied uniformly to the major departments that have field offices in a state government reorganization four years ago, but health agency spokesmen said their eighth field station has never been funded.

State school superintendent campaign costs top $50,000

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — About $50,000 has been spent so far on campaigns of the 15 candidates for state superintendent of public instruction, statements on file with the secretary of state's office showed Thursday.

The candidates, most ever for the $25,000 a year job, were required to mail in their expense statements by Tuesday. They will face each other in a primary election Tuesday.

State elections supervisor Leo Fahey said the total expenditures could be the highest ever in an election for the post.

The statements showed that former state legislator Ernest Korpela of Washburn and the groups supporting him have spent the most money in the campaign at about $17,000.

The Wisconsin Educational Association Council said it spent more than $7,300 on Korpela's campaign. A group called Citizens for Quality Education

A spokesman said that the problems of district health specialists in areas of heavy vacation population tend to be more critical than those elsewhere, and pointed to the disproportionate volume of problems and requests for service during the summer in Door County, which is served from the Green Bay division office.

The political action arm of the Milwaukee County Labor Council said it had also collected money for Korpela's campaign, but had not yet spent any of it.

The second highest expenditures were those for Sara Sherkow of Madison, a consultant with the Department of Public Instruction.

Two committees reported spending about $11,800 for Mrs. Sherkow, including $9,550 donated by her husband for advertising.

A committee supporting University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point Prof. William Clements reported spending $5,420.

Expenditures for other candidates ranged from about $4,000 to nothing. Among those reporting no expenditures in the campaign was state Rep. William Rogers, D-Kaukauna.

Drink commitment law unconstitutional

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A state law which requires some drunkards committed to institutions to wait six months before seeking release has been ruled unconstitutional by Dane County Court Judge P. Charles Jones.

Jones said, in a decision reported Thursday, the wait made the law on inebriates more strict than those dealing with the release of mental patients and was a violation of due process rights.

State law requires the six-month waiting period unless a patient can obtain a certificate from the superintendent of the institution.

Jones ruled in the case of Mrs. Martin Mogensen of Tomah, who was committed to Mendota State Hospital several weeks ago by Monroe County Court Judge James Rice. Rice acted on a petition by Mrs. Mogensen's adult children.

Mrs. Mogensen is the widow of the Tomah Junior High School principal shot and killed in his office three years ago.

Jones ordered her released after a psychiatrist testified she was not a threat to anyone.

Squeeze play

Motorist Marion Stark, 47, of South Milwaukee, was not seriously injured Wednesday when her car was squeezed for 400 feet between a semitrailer tank truck and an expressway median wall. Police said the truck had collided with another car and veered into Mrs. Stark's lane. (AP Wirephoto)

'Deep Throat' ruled obscene in New York

NEW YORK (AP)—A Criminal Court judge today declared the hard-core pornographic film "Deep Throat" to be the "nadir of decadence" and found it "indisputably obscene by any legal measurement."

Judge Joel Tyler found the defendant corporation guilty of two counts of promoting obscenity and ruled it could be fined up to twice the amount of the profits the movie has grossed since it opened here last June.

The city brought the obscenity proceeding against Mature Enterprises, Inc., in a test case as part of its drive to clean up Times Square. The trial was held without a jury.

In a previous case in Binghamton,

N.Y., a jury decided that the film was not obscene.

Between last June and this past January, the theater said it grossed about $712,000. Approximately 1,700 persons have seen the film daily in the 320-seat New Mature World theater in midtown Manhattan.

A hearing will be held to determine the amount of the fine once the judge examines the corporation's books.

Asst. Dist. Atty. William Purcell said the effect of the judge's ruling was to ban the showing of the film in the city. Tyler ordered that the print of the film be turned over to the Police Department's Property Clerk's office, pending any appeal in the case.

Lynch appears certain to lose Irish premiership

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Prime Minister Jack Lynch prepared today to hand over Ireland's government to Liam Cosgrave, 52-year-old leader of a left-of-center coalition.

With 10 seats in the Dail still undecided, Cosgrave's Fine Gael—Irish Party—and the allied Labor Party had won 68 seats to 64 for Lynch's Fianna Fail—Soldiers of Destiny. Two independents also had been elected.

Cosgrave's coalition looked certain to take at least 72 seats, or half the Dail membership. Ireland is used to governments with only a slender hold on power, since its system of proportional representation makes large majorities rare. But many commentators doubted the new government would survive long. Some politicians were already preparing for another election.

Cosgrave was expected to name Brendan Corish, leader of the Laborites, his deputy premier.

The voting Thursday ended 16 years in office for Fianna Fail. Lynch, while declining to concede formally until the last vote was counted, admitted that his forces had no hope of a majority in the lower house of parliament.

Cosgrave, with more than 30 years in the Dail, is a former foreign minister. Lynch's own former minister, Brian Lenihan, was one of the chief casualties of Fianna Fail's decline.

Lynch blamed the loss of key seats on "bad luck—a matter of a few votes here and there."

But it was clear his party suffered from the absence of front-bench talent to support his own personal appeal as a former sports hero. He fired key men in his administration who were accused in 1970, and later acquitted, of diverting government money to buy arms for the guerrillas of the Irish Republican Army in Northern Ireland.

Without them, Lynch's government lacked able and experienced men in the key 45-55 age bracket. Another factor was the poor television showing of some ministers against intellectuals from the coalition's front bench.

$40 million left to foundation by Charles Mott

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — Auto industry pioneer Charles Stewart Mott, who died last month at 97, left more than $40 million to the philanthropic organization he founded.

The Mott Foundation, which received what was described as "the great bulk" of the Flint millionaire's fortune, now has assets in excess of $400 million, a foundation spokesman said Thursday.

During his lifetime, Mott, once the largest individual stockholder in General Motors Corp., gave the foundation more than $200 million.

Mott's widow, Mrs. Ruth Rawlings Mott, 71, was given Applewood Estate, the family home in Flint; a vacation home in Bermuda; the furnishings of both; and some investment properties.

There were no provisions in the will for Mott's six children, 11 grandchildren and 19 great-grandchildren. However, a Mott Foundation spokesman said trust funds had been created before Mott died.

Green Bay man dies in accident

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The death of a Green Bay man in the shadow of Lambeau Field today brought Wisconsin's 1973 traffic toll to 130—compared with 128 at this time in 1972.

Bernard Van Ark, 57, of Green Bay, was fatally injured this morning, Green Bay police said, when his car collided with another at the intersection of Lombardi and Oneida streets. He was thrown from his car and run over by a truck.

Peter C. Valle, 26, a University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee student from Oak Creek, was killed Thursday night when his car struck a bridge rail on Interstate 90-94 in dense fog near Madison and bounced into two trucks, sheriff's deputies said.

Repeal of meat quotas pushed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Skyrocketing food costs, particularly for meat, may cause a new consumer push in Congress for repeal of a 1964 import-quota law which critics say threatens American hamburger-eaters.

President Nixon suspended meat-import quotas in 1972 and again this year so that Australia and other countries could ship more low-grade beef into U.S. markets. It is used mostly by meat processors and carryout-food chains.

Although beef imports rose 20 per cent in 1972 and are expected to climb an additional 7.5 per cent this year, Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., says the law hangs as a standby sword over consumers and that it could be dropped by Nixon any time he sees fit.

"I don't trust the President on anything, and certainly not on this," Rosenthal told a reporter. "Beyond that, we don't keep laws that we don't need on the books."

Rosenthal has introduced a bill to repeal the 1964 meat-import-quota law and says rising public discontent over meat prices may help bring it to attention of Congress.

"There is a move today, a consumer revolution, for a boycott of meat," Rosenthal said. "Those who want to hold the line on quotas are making the biggest mistake of their lives."

Beef consumption has doubled in the past generation and supermarket demands appear to be snowballing, despite Rosenthal's contention that consumers may be rebelling over prices.

The 1964 quota law sets up a formula limiting imports according to U.S. domestic beef production. In recent years, those imports have been running at an equivalent level of about 6 or 7 per cent of what American cattle-producers turn out.

Rosenthal contends that U.S. consumer demand for beef is so large—and will remain that way—that American cattlemen cannot keep up with the supermarket orders, at least not at prices average families should pay.

The price situation was punctuated this week by an Agriculture Department report showing that retail beef cost an average of more than $1.22 per pound, up almost 10 per cent in a year. Cattle prices set record peaks last month, indicating that the meat-price spiral may be around for some time. Meat prices led the way in January's 2.5-per-cent food-price increase, the largest on record.

But the cattle industry, vigorously opposing any move to repeal the 1964 law, says ranchers are enlarging breeding herds and that more beef is coming to market. The growth must be gradual so that prices cattle producers get—an incentive for expansion—will not break down, spokesman say.

Don Magdanz of Omaha, Neb., who represents the National Livestock Feeders Association, says Rosenthal is "way off base" in seeking repeal of the import-quota law.

But Magdanz and other cattle representatives admit there is little justification for holding onto standby quotas at the present time. They say cattle producers—although beset by rising expenses—are making money.

Australia supplies about half the beef imported into the United States. New Zealand is another big provider, and Mexico ranks third. In all, 14 countries are eligible to ship quota-type meat into the United States.

Specifically, the law covers fresh, frozen and chilled beef, mutton and goat meat. But nearly all is beef, mostly a lowgrade type used for manufacture of hamburger, hot dogs and other processed items.

Nugent rejoins Texas Broadcasting Corp.

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Patrick J. Nugent, son-in-law of the late former President Lyndon Johnson, has rejoined Texas Broadcasting Corp. as an executive.

Nugent, who married Luci Baines Johnson, formerly was employed by Texas Broadcasting, then recently served as an officer of Communications Properties Inc. of Austin, a national cable television and communications firm. He also is a director of the Capital National Bank of Austin.

Texas Broadcasting owns and operates KTBC-AM-FM-TV, Muzak, Photo Processors and has a 50 per cent interest in Capital Cable Co. of Austin, according to J.C. Kellan, TBC president.

Ex-Milwaukee County Board chairman dies

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Eugene Grobschmidt, 66, chairman of the Milwaukee County Board for 12 years before retiring last April, died Thursday night of an apparent heart attack.

Mrs. Maier separated from mayor

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Mrs. Mary Ann Maier, the wife of Milwaukee Mayor Henry Maier who spoke at the 1972 Republican National Convention, has started legal separation proceedings against her husband, who addressed the Democratic National Convention.

Maier confirmed Thursday that he had been notified of the initiation of such proceedings, but indicated he had no further comment. Mrs. Maier's attorney said he had advised her not to talk with anyone about the matter at this time.

The complaint in the separation action, under Wisconsin law, cannot be filed until 60 days after the summons is served.

The Maiers were married in June 1941, and have two daughters.

Mrs. Maier gave one of the seconding speeches for President Nixon at the Republican National Convention last summer, although she had been a lifetime Democrat.

Maier, who serves in a nonpartisan office, is a former Democratic state senator and addressed the 1972 Democratic National Convention on the problems of cities. He is immediate past president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

Maier was not with his wife when she gave her speech at the GOP convention. Mrs. Maier and her daughters were both in Miami Beach to hear the mayor address the Democratic convention.

By TIMOTHY CURRAN
Associated Press Writer

Let's say a salesman knocked on your door one night last week and made you an offer you couldn't refuse.

But the next day, you started to have second thoughts, deciding maybe you didn't really need that vacuum cleaner, encyclopedia, set of pots and pans, or whatever. Our maybe you felt the price was going to be a little too much for your budget after all.

So you contacted the salesman to see about cancelling the deal that sounded so good the night before. Sorry, you were told, nothing could be done. It was out of his hands and the contract you signed had already been sold to a financial institution.

The financier, you found out, wasn't interested in the fact that you didn't want the product anymore, or even whether or not it worked.

That's not his concern, you were told. Just keep those payments coming in on schedule.

If such a hypothetical transaction took place, you're probably still licking your wounds and shoring up defenses against any future high-pressure sales assaults.

You will feel even worse when you hear this: If you'd told the salesman to come back and see you after March 1, you could have been spared your grief.

The Wisconsin Consumer Act, which took effect Thursday, contains provisions that would have protected you.

For one thing, the salesman would have had to give you notice of a three-day "cooling-off" period during which you could cancel the contract.

If you had decided to keep the product, then found it was defective and couldn't get satisfaction from the seller, the financial institution couldn't turn a deaf ear to your claim.

These are just two of the many wide-ranging consumer rights spelled out for the consumer in the new Wisconsin law.

The first involves what are referred to as "consumer approval transactions," and the door-to-door sale is the most common example.

All sales involving credit, and any cash transaction of more than $25, can be cancelled within three business days if they are made away from a merchant's regular place of business, or by mail or telephone.

Some firms may already have a policy of allowing you to back out on such a deal. With a few exceptions, they are required to let you cancel and to refund any down payment under the new law.

The cooling-off period can be waived by a written note in which the consumer says immediate performance is required.

The second provision, considered one of the most significant in the act, is elimination of what is known as the "holder-in-due-course" doctrine.

Under that concept, the bank, loan company or other commercial lender had no obligation to the consumer after buying the sales contract from a retailer.

If the product didn't work, or even if it wasn't delivered, the consumer still had to meet his debt obligation with no recourse against the holder of that debt.

Under the new law, all negotiable instruments other than checks are prohibited in consumer credit sales, consumer leases and interlocking consumer loans, negating the "holder-in-due-course" doctrine in such transactions.

The Wisconsin Consumer Act provides that if there is a dispute, the lender will be liable to the extent of all amounts owed him at the time he receives notice of a claim or defense of the consumer.

He also may be liable up to the total amount of all sums he has received if the consumer can't collect from the original seller, should the seller, for example, become insolvent.

"The paper buyer (financier) will have strong motivation to use that the seller lives up to promises made to the consumer," Mrs. Helen Nelson of Milwaukee, president of the Consumer Federation of America, said, "because if they don't, he'll have to."

John McKenzie of Peoples Credit Corp., Appleton, agreed persons in his industry "are going to have to be far more careful from whom we buy dealer paper."

McKenzie is president of the Wisconsin Consumer Finance Association, a licensed lender group.

"What it means basically is that if an individual goes and buys a car and the dealer writes it up on his paper, and then turns around and sells it to the consumer loan company, we would also be liable if he has problems with that car," McKenzie said. "And we can't hide behind the defense that we just bought the paper."

In most cases, the liability is for 12 months. But McKenzie said it can be longer in some instances.

The same consumer protection is provided in the case of assignment of a contract, restricting waiver-of-defense claims.

The lender is also subject to a consumer's claim and defense against a seller in an interlocking loan arrangement, one which there is a specified relationship between the lender and seller.

Other features of the Wisconsin Consumer Act include:

—Provisions under which a debtor gives the creditor power of attorney to confess judgment against him in a default proceeding are prohibited.

Under present law, such agreements are allowed on promissory notes or bonds. Under the new law, except in a residential real estate transaction, there can be no clause in a consumer credit agreement requiring the customer to pay the creditor's attorney fees.

If a customer goes to court over a dispute and wins his case, the creditor will have to pay his costs and attorney fees.

—Payments on a debt must be substantially equal, eliminating most so-called "balloon payments."

For example, a contract cannot require an unexpectedly high payment which might cause the consumer to re-finance or default.

—Maximum periods of repayment are established for close-end installment buying transactions.

Payments on an account up to $700, for example, can't be extended for longer than 25 months.

"This will prevent a consumer from signing up to pay for seven years on something that might last half that long," Mrs. Nelson said.

She said 18 per cent interest adds one-third to the price of a product over three years, and doubles it in a seven-year period.

—Creditors can't divide up a transaction in order to obtain higher interest, such as making three $500 loans at 18 per cent each instead of one $1,500 loan, which would carry the higher rate on the first $500 and drop to 12 per cent on the balance.

—Referral transactions are prohibited.

If a seller promises you a rebate on a purchase providing another person you've referred him to makes a purchase, the transaction is nullified.

What's more, you get to keep the goods without obligation.

The provision banning referral covers a transaction if the rebate depends on something taking place after the original customer becomes obligated. The seller can legally offer you a rebate for doing something before you sign on the dotted line, but not after.

—If a defective product is returned, the seller must refund not only the principal you've paid on it, but also the finance charge.

—A customer's obligation at the end of a consumer lease is limited to no more than one month's payment, unless the leased property is damaged or some other default has occurred.

Buyer information measure is debated

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The need for a comprehensive consumer protection package was questioned Thursday by the industries it would regulate in testimony before the Assembly Commerce and Consumer Affairs Committee.

The multi-faceted bill, as amended by author Rep. Michael Ferrall, D-Racine, would correct "some of the most crucial and fundamental problems facing the consumer today," Ferrall said.

Its main provision would require perishables to have shelf dates on the package; extend mandatory unit pricing to large food stores; require evidence to support product advertising claims; require gas stations to utilize visible price signs; regulate sale of flammable merchandise; regulate service dealers and require drug retailers to post prices on the 100 most popular items.

But Arnie Van Thullenar of the Wisconsin Dairy Products Association said the proposal was too "vague and has too many loopholes."

"Almost 90 per cent of the grade A dairy products are dated voluntarily now," he said.

Gary Williams, representing state automobile dealers, asked deletion of automobile service dealers from the bill, and urged passage of a substitute measure which he said was designed exclusively for that industry.

An attempt by the Wisconsin Pharmacy Examining Board, a state agency regulating pharmacists and the drug industry, to speak against the bill was stopped short by committee chairman Harout Sanasarian. The Milwaukee Democrat quoted the state statute which forbids state agencies from influencing the course of legislation.

Examining Board member Karl Marquardt apparently wanted to speak against price comparison of drugs.

Speaking for pharmacists, James Deroin of Eau Claire, said legislation already proposed, including Gov. Patrick Lucey's budget bill, would set up a Drug Quality Review Board which could lower the cost of generic prescriptions without comparison price advertising notices.

Ferrall complained that the other proposals would not facilitate comparison shopping between drug stores.

"It will be good for the economy," he said in support of his bill, "to have a well informed shopper."

Vast knowledge to be shared

Our son told us the other day if we didn't stop helping him with his homework he wouldn't get out of high school until he was 30.

Personally, I felt that was a rotten thing to say to two people who are trying to share with him our vast vat of knowledge and experience. Traditionally, Daddy has always helped the children with their math and I have helped them with their English. Any subject that is foreign to us, we toss for it.

I don't know what's been happening in math, but I do know the adviser told my son to stay away from any profession where he had to make change or double a recipe. (Actually, she suggested that he remain unmarried until he had a firmer grasp of multiplication.)

As for English, I was taught by a teacher who felt that God would never strike down a person who knew the difference between a direct and an indirect object. I was her first failure in 35 years of teaching and survived only by a method which I call, "Why apologize? Improve."

I passed this method on to my son. I have taught him it is possible to live a normal, well-rounded life...marry, have children, and go on vacations to the Smolies...without once having to distinguish between "I" and "me." When you knock on a door and someone asks, "Who is it?" Just answer, "Have you no curiosity?"

I have taught him that alumni, alumnae, alumna and alumnus are just as happy being called, "The kids I went to school with."

Also, that words with "ie" and "ei" are better off left unsaid or unwritten. Why agonize over the correct spelling of words like inauguration and dinosaur when one only happens every four years and the other is extinct.

And if you have to end a sentence with "of" and feel guilty about it, just add "which I have no doubt."

As he poured through the bookcase a couple of days ago, his father asked, "Is it a math problem, son? I have a little time."

"If you're looking for the plural of mother-in-law," I offered, "remember few people have more than one at the same time."

"No," he said hurriedly edging away, "I'm working on my sex education paper and was trying to find something on sexual relations."

I looked at my husband, "This one is yours, Barney. I didn't even get a Christmas card from them."

Courts

Scott L. Sievers, 19, 1406 W. Winnebago St., was found guilty on one count of disorderly conduct, but acquitted on one count of obstructing police officers after a nonjury trial Wednesday before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

The charges stemmed from an incident the evening of Jan. 4 in the 400 block of W. College Avenue, in which Sievers and another man, Gregory A. Huff, 20, 1625 N. Bennett St., reportedly were blocking traffic.

Huff was fined $150 and placed on probation for one year by Schaefer on Jan. 16, after Huff pleaded guilty to one count of disorderly conduct and marijuana possession.

Schaefer ordered a presentence investigation and set sentencing for Monday for Sievers, who still faces a March 21 trial for a disorderly conduct charge from a Jan. 1 incident at the George Webb Hamburger Parlor, 1939 N. Richmond St.

OSHKOSH — A $107 fine and an order to attend traffic safety school were given to a Neenah man in County Court Tuesday after he pleaded no contest to a charge of driving while under the influence of intoxicants.

Bobby E. Barthels, 43, 1598 U. S. 45, was charged with the offense on Feb. 2. He was stopped by a state patrolman on U. S. 45 at State 114 in the Town of Clayton.
